GOP Postpones Action On Vote Fraud Charges

Showdown On Kem's Proposal Deferred

WASHINGTON, July 21 (AP)—The Senate Republican Policy Committee decided today to delay until later in the week a showdown on a proposal by Sen Kem (R.-Mo.) for an investigation of Attorney General Clark's handling of Kansas City vote fraud charges.

With Democrats resisting efforts to bring up an inquiry resolution by Kem, Chairman Taft (Ohio) told reporters after a policy committee meeting:

"One way or another there will be an investigation this year of the Kansas City case."

Taft said he and Sens. Ferguson (R.-Mich.) and Wherry (R.-Neb.) had been designated as a subcommittee to attempt to work out some solution to the parliamentary knot in which the Democrats have tied the Republicans by talking about other matters in the Senate.

No All-Night Session

Taft said the decision to delay a showdown until later in the week involved abandoning plans for an all-night session of the Senate.

A proposal to take up the Kem matter, now pending before the Senate, will be laid aside to bring up a resolution disapproving President Truman's plan for reorganization of housing agencies under one head.

The Ohio Senator explained that even if Republicans attempted to hold the Senate in session throughout the night, the Democrats would be able to bring up the reorganization proposal because it has priority.

The policy chairman's statement that he believes there will be an investigation led to the immediate assumption in some quarters that House action might be sought on a somewhat similar proposal.

To get to a showdown Senate vote on the Kem resolution, the Republicans first have to win approval of a motion to take the matter away from the Senate Judiciary Committee. The committee voted 7 to 6 against conducting the proposed investigation into whether Clark fully carried out his oath in inquiring into alleged irregularities in the August, 1946, primary election in Kansas City.

Expenditures Must Be Approved

Once that were accomplished, the Kem resolution would have to go to the Senate Rules Committee for approval of the expenditures involved in holding a senatorial investigation. After that committee acted, 24 hours would have to elapse under the Senate rules before the Kem resolution could be brought before the Senate.

Under the legislative schedule outlined by Taft, this left little time for final action before Saturday if Democrats chose to talk at length. The leaders are aiming to adjourn Congress Saturday.

House Sends Anti-Poll Tax Measure To Senate

WASHINGTON, July 21 (AP)—Smashing down an incipient filibuster, the House passed and sent to the Senate today an anti-poll tax bill.

The 290 to 112 vote that approved the legislation in a surprise maneuver engineered by the Republican leadership was 22 votes more than the two-thirds required for passage.

(A two-thirds vote was required because the measure was called up for consideration out of the regular order of business.)

The legislation, if approved by the Senate, would make it unlawful for any state or municipality to require payment of a poll tax as a prerequisite to voting in a primary or general election for presidential and vice-presidential electors and members of Congress.

Seven states — Virginia, Texas, Mississippi, Tennessee, South Carolina, Alabama, and Arkansas—now have poll tax laws.

Reds "Pushing" For Third Party Which Henry Wallace Might Lead, Witness Tells House Committee

IN BABY CASE—Police Chief Stanley W. Switter said yesterday that Roger Gue, 6, (center), made a statement admitting the "accidental killing" of two babies at Massillon (Ohio) City Hospital June 6. The boy is shown in a recent pose with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roger Gue.

Steele Will Furnish "New Republic" Data

WASHINGTON, July 21 — (AP) — The House Committee on Unamerican Activities took to the warpath against Henry A. Wallace anew today after testimony that the Communists are "pushing" for a third party which he might head.

The testimony came from Walter S. Steele, chairman of the National Security Committee of the American Coalition of Patriotic, Civic and Fraternal Societies.

After hearing his story, the committee asked for records he said he has on the ownership of the New Republic, weekly magazine of which Wallace is editor. Steele replied he would be glad to furnish them.

Steele, the first of 14 witnesses slated for a week of hearings on Communist activities, testified that American Reds have used wartime atomic experts on the faculties of their schools.

It was when he told of Communists working for a major third party of "leftists" that he turned to a discussion of Wallace, prompted by pointed questions from Rep. Mundt (R-S.D.).

The national committee of the Communist Party issued a call at a meeting in New York City on February 23, 1946, Steele said, for "the immediate formation of a coalition of left-wing elements into a third party" early in 1947.

"Immediately thereafter," he continued, "a reorganizing of political Red fronts was begun. This resulted in the forming of the Progressive Citizens of America x x x x."

He said this organization is the machinery through which other parties will be penetrated or a third party launched.

"Is that the organization," Mundt inquired, "of which one Henry A. Wallace is a spokesman and member?"

"He is," Steele responded.

Under further questioning, Steele said the Progressive Citizens is linked with a California group headed by Robert Kenny which has sounded a Wallace-for-President call. Steele said Kenny has "headed some other fronts."

"Do you know anything about the ownership of the New Republic magazine?" Mundt said.

"I have the records in my office," the witness replied.

"Isn't it financied almost exclusively by foreign capital?"

"Almost 98 per cent," Steele answered.

He said it was incorporated originally in England and now is incorporated in Canada.

Chairman J. Parnell-Thomas (R-N.J.) then asked Steele whether he could supply his records on the magazine. The witness quickly assented.

Michael Straight, publisher of the New Republic, commented in New York that "these are stale charges which have been brought up repeatedly and which have been repeatedly disproved." He added that Thomas "must have heard that the New Republic is about to print an article about him."

At a New Jersey meeting of the Progressive Citizens of America, Steele testified, the headline speaker said that if Wallace is not accepted by the Democrats as their presidential candidate, there will be a third party, known as the People's Party.

A People's Party already has been incorporated with headquarters in Washington, Steele said. He listed Brig. Gen. H. C. Holdridge, retired, as national chairman. He said the incorporators include a former Communist leader of Columbus, O., and a number of fronters. He did not name them.

Boy Admits "Accidental Killing" Of Two Babies At Massillon Hospital

Dropped Them From Cribs While Playing

MASSILLON, O., July 21 (AP)—A six-year-old boy told Police Chief Stanley W. Switter today he dropped two baby girls later found dead of fractured skulls at City Hospital, but the county prosecutor doubted his story.

The boy, Roger Gue, of Navarre, O., was quoted in a 400-word statement as saying he was playing with the children while he was a patient there with a broken arm, dropped them, then placed them back dying in their cribs.

Chief Switter, who interviewed Roger and issued a transcript of the questioning, said he was satisfied that this "accidental death" solution closes the 46-day-old mystery.

The babies were Diana Jean Brand, eight-week-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Brand, and Rosemary Morton, 10-week-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. Morton, all of Massillon.

Sticks To Murder Theory

The infants died, shortly after they were found in their cribs.

Sticking to his murder theory, Prosecutor D. Deane McLaughlin, insisted:

"Our investigation continues. The confession reported by two newspaper reporters does not close the case for us.

"I talked with Mr. and Mrs. Gue in their Navarre home. Both expressed doubt that Roger was telling the truth. (Chief Switter said the parents believed the story). They told me and Mr. Grossglaus (Harry Grossglaus, a detective) that each time after acting out the scene, Roger repeated:

"'It's just make believe.'"

Parents Sued Hospital

The parents have since sued the hospital for $200,000 damages, charging carelessness.

The statement in question and answer form, was taken in the presence of the boy's parents, Chief

Haifa Blast Boosts Holy Land Deaths

JERUSELEM, July 21 (AP) — A mine blast in Haifi that killed one person and wounded seven others touched off the third straight night of terror in the Holy Land tonight as the British placed 90,000 Jews in most parts of Jeruselem under dawn to dusk house arrest in an effort to curb violence in the past 48 hours.

The Haifa explosion occurred shortly after it was announced officially that the 4,500 unauthorized Jewish immigrants who landed here last week had been deported to France, where they began their exodus to the Holy Land.

During the night the Jewish underground resistance group Irgun Zvai Leumi appealed to members of Palestine's two other extremist organizations, the Stern Gang and Hagana, to join its offensive against British rule.

Palestine casualties in the last 48 hours rose to five dead and 29 wounded with the road mine detonation in Haifa which blew up an army jeep as soldiers were announcing curfew hours to Haifa's 50,000 Jews. A 10-year-old Jewish boy was killed by a splinter from the mine and three soldiers, a Jewish interpreter, a woman and two children

Two Killed In Crash Of Train And Truck

KENTON, Del., July 21 (AP) — Two persons were killed including an unidentified boy, in the collision of a Pennsylvania Railroad Diesel engine-single passenger coach combination and the truck in which the victims were riding on the Kenton, Del.-Sudlersville, Md., road, Coroner John R. Rogers, Jr., of Kenton, reported tonight.

Coroner Rogers said the other victim was tentatively identified from papers in his pocket as William G. Gohrer, a Ward, Pa., poultry man. The truck was demolished and the man and boy badly mangled, Rogers said.

U.S. Protests Reds' Failure To Pay For Oil Equipment

WASHINGTON, July 21 (AP)—The United States has protested Russia's failure to pay for 7,000 tons of oil equipment owned by a Romanian subsidiary of Standard Oil of New Jersey and removed from Romania by Soviet forces.

This was disclosed late today by the State Department. It announced the American Embassy in Moscow has presented a note to the Russian Foreign Office, protesting the refusal of Russian members of a joint American-Soviet commission to agree on a settlement of the case.

The department said the property, valued at about $1,000,000, was taken from Romania late in 1944. It belonged to Romano-Americana, Standard's subsidiary, it said.

Strike Ties Up S. P. Railroad's Pacific Lines

Early Settlement Predicted By Union

SAN FRANCISCO, July 21 (AP) — A strike by locomotive engineers against the Southern Pacific Railroad's Pacific lines began at 6 p. m., PST tonight, but an hour and a quarter later, a spokesman for the union stepped out of a day-long negotiation meeting to predict a settlement tonight.

In the day's first optimistic statement from a union official, P. O. Peterson, West Coast chairman of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, told newsmen:

"We reached a tentative agreement on 20 out of the 20 rules (for which the brotherhood was striking.)

"We are hanging on language. I think there will be a settlement tonight."

As Peterson spoke, reports already had been received from more than a dozen cities that the strike had taken effect. Trains not already under way remained in terminals. Pickets appeared before company properties in several cities.

Engineers Leave Trains

The railroad announced half an hour after the strike deadline that its first reports showed the engineers had walked off the engines at more than a dozen cities from Oregon to Texas, and that the first pickets had appeared.

"The engineers have walked off the engines at West Oakland, Bakersfield, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Reno, Sparks, Nev., Ugene, Ore., El Paso, Tex., Sacramento, Roseville, Calif., Ogden, Yuma and Tucson," a company spokesman said.

"In addition, property is being picketed at El Paso, Sparks, Ogden, Yuma and Tucson."

Pickets also appeared at the company's Third and Townsend Streets station in San Francisco.

Truman Creates Board

A brotherhood spokesman who announced shortly before the deadline that the strike was on, refused to make further comment when questioned at 6 p. m.

The brotherhood called its strike to force the railroad to make changes in working rules. Although President Truman created an emergency board to intervene, naming its members today, the brotherhood took the position that the 60-day waiting period provided in such instances did not apply since a similar board had covered the same issues in 1945.

The strike was called at a time of heavy shipments of western agricultural products eastward and drew strong protests from farm interests.

P. O. Peterson, West Coast chairman of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, made no statement to newsmen when he answered a 6 p. m. knock on the door of the mediation rooms.

8,000 Miles Of Track Affected

A few minutes earlier, Peterson had said the strike had not been called off and was on, as scheduled at 6 p. m.

Newsmen reported they saw persons inside the mediation room at a typewriter when they knocked on the door as the deadline expired.

The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, who scheduled the strike in a bid to gain changes in working rules, had announced earlier that all trains in service at 6 p. m. (PST) would continue to their division points.

The walkout would involve 3,500 engineers and idle 25,000 other S. P. employes and tie up some 8,000 miles of track from Oregon to Texas.

The Southern Pacific Railroad's Pacific lines embrace all S. P. tracks south of Portland, Ore., and West of Ogden, Utah, Tucumacari, N. M., and El Paso, Tex., including the Pacific and Northwestern and San Diego and Arizona Eastern Railways, two S. P. subsidiaries.

Like A Rainbow

BALTIMORE, July 21 (AP)—Police said a large section of a Gay Street block "looked like a rainbow" today after a collision between a street car and a painter's truck.

Many gallons of multi-colored paint spilled from the truck and two persons on the truck suffered slight injuries, police said.

Cohen Resigns State Dept. Counselor Post; Bohlen Is Nominated

RESIGNS—Benjamin V. Cohen (above) resigned yesterday as counselor of the State Department. President Truman nominated Charles E. Bohlen to succeed him.

Russian Expert Is Elevated By Truman

WASHINGTON, July 21 (AP) — "Ben" Cohen, last of the original "brain trust" of early Roosevelt administration days, bowed out today when President Truman accepted his resignation as counselor of the State Department.

To succeed him the President nominated Charles E. Bohlen, veteran foreign service officer and the State Department's Russian expert.

The shift enables Secretary of State Marshall to keep indefinitely at his side his closest adviser on Soviet matters. Bohlen would have been due for a foreign assignment next January under a law limiting foreign service officers to tours of four years in the United States. The rule does not apply to posts requiring Senate confirmation, such as the position of counselor.

Vincent Named Swiss Envoy

Also sent to the Senate along with the Bohlen nomination was that of John Carter Vincent, another career diplomat, to be Minister to Switzerland.

The 52-year-old Cohen—his signature reads "Benjamin V." but the government top level all knows him as "Ben"—steps out July 31. He wrote that after 14 years he wished "to take a rest free from all official responsibilities."

Mr. Truman said he accepted the resignation "regretfully" after consultation with Secretary Marshall.

Cohen had proposed to step out when James F. Byrnes left the office of Secretary of State, and said in his letter to Mr. Truman that he had agreed only "to stay on until after the Moscow conference" last spring.

Cohen's identification with the upper stratum of officialdom had its beginning back in 1933 in the formation of an unofficial partnership with Thomas G. Corcoran—widely publicized as "Tommy the Cork," President Roosevelt's emissary extraordinary to the rest of government.

Worked As Team

The two were called together that year for long day-and-night sessions on one of the early "New Deal" regulatory laws, governing stock markets.

They worked as a team until 1940 when Corcoran married and left the government. Their imprint, always unofficially, was on much of the subsequent "New Deal" legislation.

Cohen was special assistant to four attorneys general between 1933 and 1941, then went to London as legal adviser to Ambassador John G. Winant.

Returning to Washington in 1942, he became general counsel for

Moves To Avert Depression Urged By Nation's Chief

Declares Prosperity On "Temporary Props"

WASHINGTON, July 21. (AP)—President Truman told the nation today that its "unprecedented prosperity" now is based largely on "temporary props."

"As they weaken," he declared, "we shall need to make many basic readjustments"—wage and salary increases "in some cases," lower prices "in the numerous instances where profit margins permit or where future profits would be better protected by assuring larger volume through lower prices," new social legislation, and restoration of some wartime government controls.

The President cautioned that the adjustments "must be made before the lack of them produces serious unemployment and business decline." He added that "adjustment through recession or depression is tragic, costly, and wasteful."

Midyear Economic Report

The Chief Executive's statement was sent to Congress in the form of a midyear economic report under the 1946 Employment Act but it was addressed to the general public too. It was drafted with the help of the Council of Economic Advisers, members of the Cabinet and heads of government agencies.

Mr. Truman reported civilian production now at a record rate of $225,000,000,000 a year and civilian employment at an all-time peak of more than 60,000,000.

He said that structure could be put "on a firm foundation of enduring prosperity and peace." But he listed three "temporary props" holding it up now:

1. "The reconversion demands of business and the backlog demands of consumers." He termed these "extraordinary demands."

Consumers Spend Most Of Income

2. "Extensive use of savings and credit." The report showed that consumers now are spending more than 93 per cent of their income after taxes and saving less than seven per cent, while during the war they spent only 75 per cent. It cited a Federal Reserve Board survey showing that nearly one-fourth of the families in this country had no government bonds nor bank accounts in February.

3. "An extraordinary excess of exports over imports." This is due to the food, machinery and other relief and rehabilitation goods sent abroad.

The President noted that "new foreign aid programs" are in the making. And he said that the United States will have to provide "additional credits, governmental or private."

But he declared that "we did not and should not embark upon foreign aid programs as a device for supporting maximum production and employment at home."

Great Gildersleeve Disclosed As Father

HOLLYWOOD, July 21 (AP) — Harold Peary, radio's Great Gildersleeve, was disclosed today as a father.

He and Mrs. Peary—the former Gloria Holliday, radio actress — announced that their son, Page, was born prematurely last March 9.

Simultaneously, it was revealed that the couple was married secretly July 8, 1946, at Tijuana, Mex., and that the ceremony was repeated June 24, 1947, at Yerington, Nev., following entrance June 20, of a final divorce decree by the comic's first wife, Betty.

Ground Forces Strike; Planes Bomb Airports

Indonesian Capital Blacked Out By Raid

BATAVIA, Java, Tuesday, July 22 (AP) — Dutch ground forces struck against the Indonesian army and guerrilla forces at several undisclosed points in Java and Sumatra today as the second day of Dutch "police" action opened under weather conditions ideal for aircraft and armored units.

Dutch military planes, singly and in pairs, began flying from Batavia toward the forward areas shortly after dawn.

Yesterday, Netherlands planes blasted Indonesian airfields on Java and Sumatra, but a tropical deluge of rain hampered ground and armored activities and, to an extent, air operations.

The Netherlands army command continued to withhold official information as to where contact between the opposing forces was established, but Indonesian republic reports indicated the Dutch were attacking in the Bandoeng, Buitenzorg, Semarang and Soerabaja areas of Java.

Although there has been no indication of the extent of the casualties suffered by either side since the hostilities began shortly before midnight Sunday, a semi-official Dutch dispatch from Bandoeng said five Dutch soldiers were killed and 10 wounded by Indonesian booby traps early Monday.

Capital Airport Raided

The Dutch, claiming their military forces were taking "police action" against the republic, urged Indonesians to lay down their arms.

Republican officials accused the Dutch of starting a full-scale "colonial war." Indonesian troops were ordered to "counterattack" wherever they were attacked.

Jogjakarta, the Indonesian capital situated near the center of rich Java, was blasked out following a raid by four Dutch planes on its airport.

The Republican Ministry of Information at Jogjakarta said 80 Dutch soldiers had landed from the sea at Ketapang, just north of Banjoewangi, the principal rice harbor of the East Java coast. Banjoewangi is more than 500 miles from the western tip of Java.

Other Indonesian sources reported heavy land fighting underway at Bandoeng and Semarang, in Western and Central Java, respectively.

Dutch pamphlets dropped over Republican territory said the Netherlands army was advancing to guarantee terms of the Cheribon agreement, under which the independence of the United States of Indonesia was to become effective January 1, 1949.

Although the Dutch imposed only a light censorship on military news, correspondents were able to obtain little detailed information from Dutch sources. The Netherlands army took over the Batavia office of the Indonesian news service Antara and ordered the agency to stop issuing news bulletins to correspondents.

Dutch officials said there would be no censorship of political news,

ARGENTINE ARMY PLANE CRASH TAKES 17 LIVES

BUENOS AIRES, July 21. (AP)—Seventeen persons were killed today in the crash of an Argentine army four-engine transport plane as it took off, plunged into a crowd and burst into flames during army maneuvers at El Palomar military airfield.

Three of the victims, a government communique said, were civilian spectators. The other dead were military personnel and war department employes.

The government announcement, issued hours after the accident, listed five persons as injured, two critically, among them the pilot, Lt. Carlos Rey.

Cause of the crash, which occurred on takeoff, was "unknown," said a communique by the Argentine Air Secretariat.

The plane in taking off went the length of the runway, barely cleared the field and then crashed in flames after striking telegraph wires. Several occupants were reported to have escaped by leaping from the plane cabin, but those remaining inside were burned when the gasoline tanks exploded.

U. S. Expresses Regret Over Indonesian War

WASHINGTON, July 21 — (AP) — The United States expressed "profound regret" today over the new flareup of fighting in Indonesia and said this government still stands ready to discuss American economic aid when an interim regime can be agreed upon.

The American official position was given in a formal State Department announcement after telephoned consultations with United States embassies in the Hague and London.

Earlier it was disclosed that the department gave its blessings to an offer by Britain of her "good offices" in trying to wind up the hostilities which broke out with a resort to force by the Netherlands.

"Keep Your Pin Up"

Expectant Fathers Club Formed To Make Sure Baby's Diapers Fit

WASHINGTON, July 21 (AP)—The formation of a national expectant fathers club was announced today.

It's an effort to keep many nice babies from growing up to be unpleasant characters—mainly because their diapers don't fit.

William Gause, of Memphis, president of the National Institute of Diaper Services, told a news conference:

"This is not just a gag. Look at what the psychologists and peditatricians are saying. The first year is the most important.

"If he's treated rough, if his diaper doesn't fit, the baby may lose that sense of security he needs to grow into a well rounded personality."

The services' secretary, George Garland, of Great Neck, N. Y., then took over. He said that even now diaper truck drivers are giving diaper-pinning lessons to mama, papa and baby-sitter.

Somebody wondered, is a man or a woman the best diaper-changer?

"A man," said Garland. "That's because he goes at it more scientifically. A woman is inclined to think she can get by on her intuition."

Several lady reporters intuitively began making unladylike noises, but Garland never faltered.

"Look at cooking," he said. "The same is true there. All the best chefs are men."

He said it's because of this masculine superiority that the diaper people are helping to form this new national organization.

"It's for men who are going to be expectant fathers," he said. And then he hastily corrected himself: "For men who are expectant fathers."

Surplus Is Going

War Assets Administrator Reports Himself "Within Sight Of Sellout"

WASHINGTON, July 21 — (AP) — War Assets Administrator Robert M. Littlejohn reported himself "within sight of a sellout" of surplus war goods tonight.

He disclosed negotiations looking to the sale of much of what he has left for foreign rehabilitation.

Littlejohn told a news conference he has been talking with the War and State Departments for three months on the possibility of shipments from "all categories" of remaining surplus, including machine tools and clothing. He did not elaborate on the progress of the talks.

Simultaneously, the former major general spurned a congressional suggestion that he step out in favor of a civilian management. He read a letter from President Truman complimenting him on the "speed, strength and stamina" of the disposal effort since Littlejohn took charge exactly one year ago.

"Receipts from surplus property disposal in the past fiscal year totalled more than $2,800,000,000, the greater part of which was deposited by your agency," Mr. Truman wrote.

"This is a fine record."

Littlejohn released a bulky report on WAA's disposal achievement in his year's administration. It followed criticism July 2 by a House Appropriations Subcommittee, headed by Rep. Rizley (R-Okla), that WAA has a history of "confusion, carelessness and chaos."

New criticism was poured on Littlejohn today. Rep. Ploeser (R-Mo.), chairman of the House Small Business Committee, said he was forced to "doubt the veracity of a number of statements" made in Littlejohn's first-anniversary report.

The representative challenged WAA's claim that RFC purchased $577,000,000 worth of surplus for small business in the last year. RFC reports that only $53,373,613 was purchased, or "one-tenth the amount claimed by Gen. Littlejohn," Ploeser said in a statement.

GOP Postpones Action On Vote Fraud Charges

Showdown On Kem's Proposal Deferred

WASHINGTON, July 21 (AP)—The Senate Republican Policy Committee decided today to delay until later in the week a showdown on a proposal by Sen Kem (R.-Mo.) for an investigation of Attorney General Clark's handling of Kansas City vote fraud charges.

With Democrats resisting efforts to bring up an inquiry resolution by Kem, Chairman Taft (Ohio) told reporters after a policy committee meeting:

"One way or another there will be an investigation this year of the Kansas City case."

Taft said he and Sens. Ferguson (R.-Mich.) and Wherry (R.-Neb.) had been designated as a subcommittee to attempt to work out some solution to the parliamentary knot in which the Democrats have tied the Republicans by talking about other matters in the Senate.

No All-Night Session

Taft said the decision to delay a showdown until later in the week involved abandoning plans for an all-night session of the Senate.

A proposal to take up the Kem matter, now pending before the Senate, will be laid aside to bring up a resolution disapproving President Truman's plan for reorganization of housing agencies under one head.

The Ohio Senator explained that even if Republicans attempted to hold the Senate in session throughout the night, the Democrats would be able to bring up the reorganization proposal because it has priority.

The policy chairman's statement that he believes there will be an investigation led to the immediate assumption in some quarters that House action might be sought on a somewhat similar proposal.

To get to a showdown Senate vote on the Kem resolution, the Republicans first have to win approval of a motion to take the matter away from the Senate Judiciary Committee. House Sends Anti-Poll Tax Measure To Senate

WASHINGTON, July 21 (AP)—Smashing down an incipient filibuster, the House passed and sent to the Senate today an anti-poll tax bill.

The 290 to 112 vote that approved the legislation in a surprise manouver engineered by the Republican leadership was 22 votes more than the two-thirds required for passage.

(A two-thirds vote was required because the measure was called up for consideration out of the regular order of business.)

The legislation, if approved by the Senate, would make it unlawful for any state or municipality to require payment of a poll tax as a prerequisite to voting in a primary or general election for presidential and vice-presidential electors and members of Congress.

Seven states — Virginia, Texas, Mississippi, Tennessee, South Carolina, Alabama, and Arkansas—now have poll tax laws.

Reds "Pushing" For Third Party Which Henry Wallace Might Lead, Witness Tells House Committee

Steele Will Furnish "New Republic" Data

WASHINGTON, July 21 — (AP) — The House Committee on Unamerican Activities took to the warpath against Henry A. Wallace anew today after testimony that the Communists are "pushing" for a third party which he might head.

The testimony came from Walter S. Steele, chairman of the National Security Committee of the American Coalition of Patriotic, Civic and Fraternal Societies.

After hearing his story, the committee asked for records he said he has on the ownership of the New Republic, weekly magazine of which Wallace is editor. Steele replied he would be glad to furnish them.

Steele, the first of 14 witnesses slated for a week of hearings on Communist activities, testified that American Reds have used wartime atomic experts on the faculties of their schools.

It was when he told of Communists working for a major third party of "leftists" that he turned to a discussion of Wallace, prompted by pointed questions from Rep. Mundt (R-S.D.).

The national committee of the Communist Party issued a call at a meeting in New York City on February 23, 1946, Steele said, for "the immediate formation of a coalition of left-wing elements into a third party" early in 1947.

"Immediately thereafter," he continued, "a reorganizing of political Red fronts was begun. This resulted in the forming of the Progressive Citizens of America x x x x."

He said this organization is the machinery through which other parties will be penetrated or a third party launched.

"Is that the organization," Mundt inquired, "of which one Henry A. Wallace is a spokesman and member?"

"He is," Steele responded.

Under further questioning, Steele said the Progressive Citizens is linked with a California group headed by Robert Kenny which has sounded a Wallace-for-President call. Steele said Kenny has "headed some other fronts."

"Do you know anything about the ownership of the New Republic magazine?" Mundt said.

"I have the records in my office," the witness replied.

"Isn't it financied almost exclusively by foreign capital?"

"Almost 98 per cent," Steele answered.

He said it was incorporated originally in England and now is incorporated in Canada.

Chairman J. Parnell Thomas (R-N.J.) then asked Steele whether he could supply his records on the magazine. The witness quickly assented.

Michael Straight, publisher of the New Republic, commented in New York that "these are stale charges which have been brought up repeatedly and which have been repeatedly disproved." He added that Thomas "must have heard that the New Republic is about to print an article about him."

At a New Jersey meeting of the Progressive Citizens of America, Steele testified, the headline speaker said that if Wallace is not accepted by the Democrats as their presidential candidate, there will be a third party, known as the People's Party.

A People's Party already has been incorporated with headquarters in Washington, Steele said. He listed Brig. Gen. H. C. Holdridge, retired, as national chairman. He said the incorporators include a former Communist leader of Columbus, O., and a number of fronters. He did not name them.

IN BABY CASE—Police Chief Stanley W. Switter said yesterday that Roger Gue, 6, (center), made a statement admitting the "accidental killing" of two babies at Massillon (Ohio) City Hospital June 6. The boy is shown in a recent pose with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roger Gue.

Boy Admits "Accidental Killing" Of Two Babies At Massillon Hospital

Dropped Them From Cribs While Playing

MASSILLON, O., July 21 (AP)—A six-year-old boy told Police Chief Stanley W. Switter today he dropped two baby girls later found dead of fractured skulls at City Hospital, but the county prosecutor doubted his story.

The boy, Roger Gue, of Navarre, O., was quoted in a 400-word statement as saying he was playing with the children while he was a patient there with a broken arm, dropped them, then placed them back dying in their cribs.

Chief Switter, who interviewed Roger and issued a transcript of the questioning, said he was satisfied that this "accidental death" solution closes the 46-day-old mystery.

The babies were Diana Jean Brand, eight-week-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Brand, and Rosemary Morton, 10-week-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. Morton, all of Massillon.

Sticks To Murder Theory

The infants died, shortly after they were found in their cribs.

Sticking to his murder theory, Prosecutor D. Deane McLaughlin, insisted:

"Our investigation continues. The confession reported by two newspaper reporters does not close the case for us.

"I talked with Mr. and Mrs. Gue in their Navarre home. Both expressed doubt that Roger was telling the truth. (Chief Switter said the parents believed the story). They told me and Mr. Grossglaus (Harry Grossglaus, a detective) that each time after acting out the scene, Roger repeated:

"'It's just make believe.'"

Parents Sued Hospital

The parents have since sued the hospital for $200,000 damages, charging carelessness.

Haifa Blast Boosts Holy Land Deaths

JERUSELEM, July 21 (AP) — A mine blast in Haifi that killed one person and wounded seven others touched off the third straight night of terror in the Holy Land tonight as the British placed 90,000 Jews in most parts of Jeruselem under dawn to dusk house arrest in an effort to curb violence in the past 48 hours.

The Haifa explosion occurred shortly after it was announced officially that the 4,500 unauthorized Jewish immigrants who landed here last week had been deported to France, where they began their exodus to the Holy Land.

During the night the Jewish underground resistance group Irgun Zvai Leumi appealed to members of Palestine's two other extremist organizations, the Stern Gang and Hagana, to join its offensive against British rule.

Palestine casualties in the last 48 hours rose to five dead and 29 wounded with the road mine detonation in Haifa which blew up an army jeep as soldiers were announcing curfew hours to Haifa's 50,000 Jews. A 10-year-old Jewish boy was killed by a splinter from the mine and three soldiers, a Jewish interpreter, a woman and two children

U.S. Protests Reds' Failure To Pay For Oil Equipment

WASHINGTON, July 21 (AP)—The United States has protested Russia's failure to pay for 7,000 tons of oil equipment owned by a Romanian subsidiary of Standard Oil of New Jersey and removed from Romania by Soviet forces.

This was disclosed late today by the State Department. It announced the American Embassy in Moscow has presented a note to the Russian Foreign Office, protesting the refusal of Russian members of a joint American-Soviet commission to agree on a settlement of the case.

The department said the property, valued at about $1,000,000, was taken from Romania late in 1944. It belonged to Romano-Americana, Standard's subsidiary, it said.

Two Killed In Crash Of Train And Truck

KENTON, Del., July 21 (AP) — Two persons were killed including an unidentified boy, in the collision of a Pennsylvania Railroad Diesel engine-single passenger coach combination and the truck in which the victims were riding on the Kenton, Del.-Sudlersville, Md., road, Coroner John R. Rogers, Jr., of Kenton, reported tonight.

Coroner Rogers said the other victim was tentatively identified from papers in his pocket as William G. Gohrer, a Ward, Pa., poultry man. The truck was demolished and the man and boy badly mangled, Rogers said.

Strike Ties Up S. P. Railroad's Pacific Lines

Early Settlement Predicted By Union

SAN FRANCISCO, July 21 (AP) — A strike by locomotive engineers against the Southern Pacific Railroad's Pacific lines began at 6 p. m., PST tonight, but an hour and a quarter later, a spokesman for the union stepped out of a day-long negotiation meeting to predict a settlement tonight.

In the day's first optimistic statement from a union official, P. O. Peterson, West Coast chairman of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, told newsmen:

"We reached a tentative agreement on 20 out of the 20 rules (for which the brotherhood was striking.)

"We are hanging on language. I think there will be a settlement tonight."

As Peterson spoke, reports already had been received from more than a dozen cities that the strike had taken effect. Trains not already under way remained in terminals. Pickets appeared before company properties in several cities.

Engineers Leave Trains

The railroad announced half an hour after the strike deadline that its first reports showed the engineers had walked off the engines at more than a dozen cities from Oregon to Texas, and that the first pickets had appeared.

"The engineers have walked off the engines at West Oakland, Bakersfield, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Reno, Sparks, Nev., Ugene, Ore., El Paso, Tex., Sacramento, Roseville, Calif., Ogden, Yuma and Tucson," a company spokesman said.

"In addition, property is being picketed at El Paso, Sparks, Ogden, Yuma and Tucson."

Pickets also appeared at the company's Third and Townsend Streets station in San Francisco.

Truman Creates Board

A brotherhood spokesman who announced shortly before the deadline that the strike was on, refused to make further comment when questioned at 6 p. m.

The brotherhood called its strike to force the railroad to make changes in working rules. Although President Truman created an emergency board to intervene, naming its members today, the brotherhood took the position that the 60-day waiting period provided in such instances did not apply since a similar board had covered the same issues in 1945.

The strike was called at a time of heavy shipments of western agricultural products eastward and drew strong protests from farm interests.

P. O. Peterson, West Coast chairman of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, made no statement to newsmen when he answered a 6 p. m. knock on the door of the mediation rooms.

8,000 Miles Of Track Affected

A few minutes earlier, Peterson had said the strike had not been called off and was on as scheduled at 6 p. m.

Newsmen reported they saw persons inside the mediation room at a typewriter when they knocked on the door as the deadline expired.

The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, who scheduled the strike in a bid to gain changes in working rules, had announced earlier that all trains in service at 6 p. m. (PST) would continue to their division points.

The walkout would involve 3,500 engineers and idle 25,000 other S. P. employes and tie up some 8,000 miles of track from Oregon to Texas.

The Southern Pacific Railroad's Pacific lines embrace all S. P. tracks south of Portland, Ore., and West of Ogden, Utah, Tucumacari, N. M., and El Paso, Tex., including the Pacific and Northwestern and San Diego and Arizona Eastern Railways, two S. P. subsidiaries.

Like A Rainbow

BALTIMORE, July 21 (AP)—Police said a large section of a Gay Street block "looked like a rainbow" today after a collision between a street car and a painter's truck.

Many gallons of multi-colored paint spilled from the truck and two persons on the truck suffered slight injuries, police said.

Cohen Resigns State Dept. Counselor Post; Bohlen Is Nominated

RESIGNS—Benjamin V. Cohen (above) resigned yesterday as counselor of the State Department. President Truman nominated Charles E. Bohlen to succeed him.

Russian Expert Is Elevated By Truman

WASHINGTON, July 21 (AP) — "Ben" Cohen, last of the original "brain trust" of early Roosevelt administration days, bowed out today when President Truman accepted his resignation as counselor of the State Department.

To succeed him the President nominated Charles E. Bohlen, veteran foreign service officer and the State Department's Russian expert.

The shift enables Secretary of State Marshall to keep indefinitely at his side his closest adviser on Soviet matters. Bohlen would have been due for a foreign assignment next January under a law limiting foreign service officers to tours of four years in the United States. The rule does not apply to posts requiring Senate confirmation, such as the position of counselor.

Vincent Named Swiss Envoy

Also sent to the Senate along with the Bohlen nomination was that of John Carter Vincent, another career diplomat, to be Minister to Switzerland.

The 52-year-old Cohen—his signature reads "Benjamin V." but the government top level all knows him as "Ben"—steps out July 31. He wrote that after 14 years he wished "to take a rest free from all official responsibilities."

Mr. Truman said he accepted the resignation "regretfully" after consultation with Secretary Marshall.

Cohen had proposed to step out when James F. Byrnes left the office of Secretary of State, and said in his letter to Mr. Truman that he had agreed only "to stay on until after the Moscow conference" last spring.

Cohen's identification with the upper stratum of officialdom had its beginning back in 1933 in the formation of an unofficial partnership with Thomas G. Corcoran—widely publicized as "Tommy the Cork," President Roosevelt's emissary extraordinary to the rest of government.

Worked As Team

The two were called together that year for long day-and-night sessions on one of the early "New Deal" regulatory laws, governing stock markets.

They worked as a team until 1940 when Corcoran married and left the government. Their imprint, always unofficially, was on much of the subsequent "New Deal" legislation.

Cohen was special assistant to four attorneys general between 1933 and 1941, then went to London as legal adviser to Ambassador John G. Winant.

Returning to Washington in 1942, he became general counsel for

Moves To Avert Depression Urged By Nation's Chief

Declares Prosperity On "Temporary Props"

WASHINGTON, July 21. (AP)—President Truman told the nation today that its "unprecedented prosperity" now is based largely on "temporary props."

"As they weaken," he declared, "we shall need to make many basic readjustments"—wage and salary increases "in some cases," lower prices "in the numerous instances where profit margins permit or where future profits would be better protected by assuring larger volume through lower prices," new social legislation, and restoration of some wartime government controls.

The President cautioned that the adjustments "must be made before the lack of them produces serious unemployment and business decline." He added that "adjustment through recession or depression is tragic, costly, and wasteful."

Midyear Economic Report

The Chief Executive's statement was sent to Congress in the form of a midyear economic report under the 1946 Employment Act but it was addressed to the general public too. It was drafted with the help of the Council of Economic Advisers, members of the Cabinet and heads of government agencies.

Mr. Truman reported civilian production now at a record rate of $225,000,000,000 a year and civilian employment at an all-time peak of more than 60,000,000.

He said that structure could be put "on a firm foundation of enduring prosperity and peace." But he listed three "temporary props" holding it up now:

1. "The reconversion demands of business and the backlog demands of consumers." He termed these "extraordinary demands."

Consumers Spend Most Of Income

2. "Extensive use of savings and credit." The report showed that consumers now are spending more than 93 per cent of their income after taxes and saving less than seven per cent, while during the war they spent only 75 per cent. It cited a Federal Reserve Board survey showing that nearly one-fourth of the families in this country had no government bonds nor bank accounts in February.

3. "An extraordinary excess of exports over imports." This is due to the food, machinery and other relief and rehabilitation goods sent abroad.

The President noted that "new foreign aid programs" are in the making. And he said that the United States will have to provide "additional credits, governmental or private."

But he declared that "we did not and should not embark upon foreign aid programs as a device for supporting maximum production and employment at home."

Great Gildersleeve Disclosed As Father

HOLLYWOOD, July 21 (AP) — Harold Peary, radio's Great Gildersleeve, was disclosed today as a father.

He and Mrs. Peary—the former Gloria Holliday, radio actress — announced that their son, Page, was born prematurely last March 9.

Simultaneously, it was revealed that the couple was married secretly July 8, 1946, at Tijuana, Mex., and that the ceremony was repeated June 24, 1947, at Yerington, Nev., following entrance June 20, of a final divorce decree by the comic's first wife, Betty.

Ground Forces Strike; Planes Bomb Airports

Indonesian Capital Blacked Out By Raid

BATAVIA, Java, Tuesday, July 22 (AP) — Dutch ground forces struck against the Indonesian army and guerrilla forces at several undisclosed points in Java and Sumatra today as the second day of Dutch "police" action opened under weather conditions ideal for aircraft and armored units.

Dutch military planes, singly and in pairs, began flying from Batavia toward the forward areas shortly after dawn.

Yesterday, Netherlands planes blasted Indonesian airfields on Java and Sumatra, but a tropical deluge of rain hampered ground and armored activities and, to an extent, air operations.

The Netherlands army command continued to withhold official information as to where contact between the opposing forces was established, but Indonesian republic reports indicated the Dutch were attacking in the Bandoeng, Buitenzorg, Semarang and Soerabaja areas of Java.

Although there has been no indication of the extent of the casualties suffered by either side since the hostilities began shortly before midnight Sunday, a semi-official Dutch dispatch from Bandoeng said five Dutch soldiers were killed and 10 wounded by Indonesian booby traps early Monday.

Capital Airport Raided

The Dutch, claiming their military forces were taking "police action" against the republic, urged Indonesians to lay down their arms.

Republican officials accused the Dutch of starting a full-scale "colonial war." Indonesian troops were ordered to "counterattack" wherever they were attacked.

Jogjakarta, the Indonesian capital situated near the center of rich Java, was blasked out following a raid by four Dutch planes on its airport.

The Republican Ministry of Information at Jogjakarta said 80 Dutch soldiers had landed from the sea at Ketapang, just north of Banjoewangi, the principal rice harbor of the East Java coast. Banjoewangi is more than 500 miles from the western tip of Java.

Other Indonesian sources reported heavy land fighting underway at Bandoeng and Semarang, in Western and Central Java, respectively.

Dutch pamphlets dropped over Republican territory said the Netherlands army was advancing to guarantee terms of the Cheribon agreement, under which the independence of the United States of Indonesia was to become effective January 1, 1949.

Although the Dutch imposed only a light censorship on military news, correspondents were able to obtain little detailed information from Dutch sources. The Netherlands army took over the Batavia office of the Indonesian news service Antara and ordered the agency to stop issuing news bulletins to correspondents.

Dutch officials said there would be no censorship of political news,

ARGENTINE ARMY PLANE CRASH TAKES 17 LIVES

BUENOS AIRES, July 21. (AP)—Seventeen persons were killed today in the crash of an Argentine army four-engine transport plane as it took off, plunged into a crowd and burst into flames during army maneuvers at El Palomar military airfield.

Three of the victims, a government communique said, were civilian spectators. The other dead were military personnel and war department employes.

The government announcement, issued hours after the accident, listed five persons as injured, two critically, among them the pilot, Lt. Carlos Rey.

Cause of the crash, which occurred on takeoff, was "unknown," said a communique by the Argentine Air Secretariat.

The plane in taking off went the length of the runway, barely cleared the field and then crashed in flames after striking telegraph wires. Several occupants were reported to have escaped by leaping from the plane cabin, but those remaining inside were burned when the gasoline tanks exploded.

U. S. Expresses Regret Over Indonesian War

WASHINGTON, July 21 — (AP) — The United States expressed "profound regret" today over the new flareup of fighting in Indonesia and said this government still stands ready to discuss American economic aid when an interim regime can be agreed upon.

The American official position was given in a formal State Department announcement after telephoned consultations with United States embassies in the Hague and London.

Earlier it was disclosed that the department gave its blessings to an offer by Britain of her "good offices" in trying to wind up the hostilities which broke out with a resort to force by the Netherlands.

"Keep Your Pin Up"

Expectant Fathers Club Formed To Make Sure Baby's Diapers Fit

WASHINGTON, July 21 (AP)—The formation of a national expectant fathers club was announced today.

It's an effort to keep many nice babies from growing up to be unpleasant characters—mainly because their diapers don't fit.

William Gause, of Memphis, president of the National Institute of Diaper Services, told a news conference:

"This is not just a gag. Look at what the psychologists and pedatricians are saying. The first year is the most important.

"If he's treated rough, if his diaper doesn't fit, the baby may lose that sense of security he needs to grow into a well rounded personality."

The services' secretary, George Garland, of Great Neck, N. Y., then took over. He said that even now diaper truck drivers are giving diaper-pinning lessons to mama, papa and baby-sitter.

Somebody wondered, is a man or a woman the best diaper-changer?

"A man," said Garland. "That's because he goes at it more scientifically. A woman is inclined to think she can get by on her intuition."

Several lady reporters intuitively began making unladylike noises, but Garland never faltered.

"Look at cooking," he said. "The same is true there. All the best chefs are men."

He said it's because of this masculine superiority that the diaper people are helping to form this new national organization.

"It's for men who are going to be expectant fathers," he said. And then he hastily corrected himself: "For men who are expectant fathers."

Surplus Is Going

War Assets Administrator Reports Himself "Within Sight Of Sellout"

WASHINGTON, July 21 — (AP) — War Assets Administrator Robert M. Littlejohn reported himself "within sight of a sellout" of surplus war goods tonight.

He disclosed negotiations looking to the sale of much of what he has left for foreign rehabilitation.

Littlejohn told a news conference he has been talking with the War and State Departments for three months on the possibility of shipments from "all categories" of remaining surplus, including machine tools and clothing. He did not elaborate on the progress of the talks.

Simultaneously, the former major general spurned a congressional suggestion that he step out in favor of a civilian management. He read a letter from President Truman complimenting him on the "speed, strength and stamina" of the disposal effort since Littlejohn took charge exactly one year ago.

"Receipts from surplus property disposal in the past fiscal year totalled more than $2,800,000,000, the greater part of which was deposited by your agency," Mr. Truman wrote.

"This is a fine record."

Littlejohn released a bulky report on WAA's disposal achievement in his year's administration. It followed criticism July 2 by a House Appropriations Subcommittee, headed by Rep. Rizley (R-Okla), that WAA has a history of "confusion, carelessness and chaos.

New criticism was poured on Littlejohn today. Rep. Ploeser (R-Mo.), chairman of the House Small Business Committee, said he was forced to "doubt the veracity of a number of statements" made in Littlejohn's first-anniversary report.

The representative challenged WAA's claim that RFC purchased $577,000,000 worth of surplus for small business in the last year. RFC reports that only $53,373,613 was purchased, or "one-tenth the amount claimed by Gen. Littlejohn," Ploeser said in a statement.

Doubts Voiced About Admitting Albania To U.N.

Four Great Powers Disagree With USSR

LAKE SUCCESS, July 21 (AP) — Four great powers, disagreeing sharply with Russia, expressed "grave" doubts today about admitting Soviet-sponsored Albania to the United Nations.

Principles laid down by delegates at a meeting of the Membership Committee of the United Nations Security Council indicated that the applications of Albania and eight other countries would have rough sledding, with no present assurance that any would be accepted.

Other United Nations developments:

1. In the Eocnomic and Social Council, Soviet Russia successfully defended Hungary against a Cuban attempt to put the present Communist-dominated government of Hungary into the "undemocratic" class in which the United Nations has put Franco Spain. The council, by 10 to 1 vote, with the United States abstaining, approved Hungary's application for membership in the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO).

Atomic Quota Plan Endorsed

2. Frederick H. Osborn, United States deputy on the Atomic Energy Commission, said in the commission's Political Committee that an overall plan for quotas for source material, nuclear fuel and dangerous facilities should be written into an atomic control treaty. He thus agreed partly with Soviet Russia on a quota system but the United States and Russia still do not see eye-to-eye on international or national ownership of atomic facilities and materials.

Hayden Raynor, United States, drafted two questions for Albania. He asked whether Albania intended to comply with the April recommendation by the Security Council that Britain and Albania take their Corfu mine dispute to the International Court of Justice and, if so, when.

Shift In Council Lineup

A major shift in the council lineup from last year came when Pierre Ordonneau, of France, reversed his country's approval of Albania and said the council should ask Albania about her intentions. He said France's opinion of Albania had been seriously damaged by her attitude in the Corfu case and the attitude of the Albanian delegations before the Security Council.

Brazil, which voted with Russia, Poland, Mexico and France for Albania last August, endorsed the United States questions, as did Belgium. Britain, China and Australia voiced their "doubts" about Albania's "peace-loving character."

Alexei N. Krasilnikov, Russia, defended Albania against what he called "slanders."

of Police Switter, James Ellen, a private investigator, and Willard Schaurer, a Pittsburgh newspaperman. The questioning was conducted by Ellen.

In the statement, young Gue admitted playing with the babies and said there was no one in the room at the time.

He said he had climbed up the cribs. After putting the babies back in their cribs he related he started to run back to his wheel chair near the elevator, but then changed to a walk "because you aren't supposed to run in a hospital."

Glad He Has Told Truth

He said he later returned to the scene and that a nurse washed his hands and asked him if he had played with the babies. He told her he hadn't been, "because I was afraid."

He said he liked babies and was glad he had told the truth.

Mrs. Gue, in answer to a question, said she was satisfied the story was true and that she had known "right along that he wasn't telling the truth."

In previous questioning, the boy had told of seeing a boy about 15 years old "puck up one of the babies and slam her against the floor."

Md. Police Stationery Used In Error, Ober Says

BALTIMORE, July 21—(AP)—The use of Maryland State Police stationery in soliciting contributions for the force's recruiting campaign was termed a mistake yesterday by Col. Beverly Ober, superintendent of the law enforcement agency.

The stationery was used for letters signed by Abraham Watner, vice chairman of the committee which is assisting in the recruiting drive.

Received last week by hundreds of Maryland businessmen, the letters ask for contributions of "not more than $250" to help defray expenses of the drive, which was expected to cost $15,000.

Responding to inquiries at state police headquarters in Pikesville, Ober said, "the letters should never have been written on police stationery."

The stationery, he added, was given to the committee without his knowledge.

Other terrorists in the Haifa region blasted the Iraq Petroleum Company's pipe line in three places, once at Haifa and twice at Tiberius, but caused slight damage. At least eight Jews were arrested in connection with the sabotage.

Another explosion in Haifa, believed at first to have been another attack, proved to be the detonation by the army of a quantity of ammunition found near a military camp on Mount Carmel.

With a quarter of its Jewish population under nightly curfew in Haifa, Jerusalem and Natanya, the Holy Land was more tense than in many months.

Fears of more violent actions grew in army circles.

Groves Denies He Tried To Discredit Atom Group

WASHINGTON, July 21. (AP)—Maj. Gen. Leslie R. Groves, who directed the Army's development of the atomic bomb, made a heated formal denial today of "innuendoes" that he sought to discredit the job done by the civilian commission which has taken over atomic affairs.

Groves, in an unusual official statement through the War Department, said "erroneous reports have been widely circulated in the last few days concerning my position on atomic energy matters." He said several reports have "insinuated that I have encouraged a campaign to discredit the administration" of the Atomic Energy Commission headed by David E. Lilienthal.

He said Secretary of War Patterson had "expressed the desire that I issue a statement" on the matter, and declared:

"All such reports and innuendoes are absolutely untrue."

and that Republican newspapers here would be allowed to continue to publish.

Dutch military sources said torrential downpours slowed their armor and infantry, and the first communique told only of aerial activity, adding that operations were hindered by "very bad weather."

The communique stated that the planes which had gone into action against Republican airdromes were American types. Squadrons of Mustang fighters (P-51s) made the initial attacks, the announcement said, and these were followed by Mitchell reconnaissance bombers (D-25s).

Soekarno, in a radio appeal from the Indonesian capital of Jogjakarta urged the nations of the world to bring the Indonesian question before the United Nations Security Council.

Gen. Soedirman, commander-in-chief of the Indonesian army, announced over the radio that Dutch infantrymen, supported by planes, had launched a heavy attack from the important city of Bandoeng, in Western Java, toward the rich, rice paddies of the Sundanese.

He declared heavy fighting was underway near Dutch-held Semarang, the most important city in Central Java, and that the Dutch were attacking "at random" not only along front lines "but also in the interior"—a possible indication of airborne operations.

The Jogjakarta radio said Indonesian underground elements had arisen within Semarang, and heavy fighting was underway at Gunung Pati, 10 miles from that city.

Dutch artillery has gone into action south of Bandoeng, the Republican radio declared, and Dutch planes launched a rocket attack on Malaya in Western Java.

Doubts Voiced About Admitting Albania To U.N.

Four Great Powers Disagree With USSR

LAKE SUCCESS, July 21 (AP) — Four great powers, disagreeing sharply with Russia, expressed "grave" doubts today about admitting Soviet-sponsored Albania to the United Nations.

Principles laid down by delegates at a meeting of the Membership Committee of the United Nations Security Council indicated that the applications of Albania and eight other countries would have rough sledding, with no present assurance that any would be accepted.

Other United Nations developments:

1. In the Eocnomic and Social Council, Soviet Russia successfully defended Hungary against a Cuban attempt to put the present Communist-dominated government of Hungary into the "undemocratic" class in which the United Nations has put Franco Spain. The council, by 10 to 1 vote, with the United States abstaining, approved Hungary's application for membership in the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO).

Atomic Quota Plan Endorsed

2. Frederick H. Osborn, United States deputy on the Atomic Energy Commission, said in the commission's Political Committee that an overall plan for quotas for source material, nuclear fuel and dangerous facilities should be written into an atomic control treaty. He thus agreed partly with Soviet Russia on a quota system but the United States and Russia still do not see eye-to-eye on international or national ownership of atomic facilities and materials.

Hayden Raynor, United States, drafted two questions for Albania. He asked whether Albania intended to comply with the April recommendation by the Security Council that Britain and Albania take their Corfu mine dispute to the International Court of Justice and, if so, when.

Shift In Council Lineup

A major shift in the council lineup from last year came when Pierre Ordonneau, of France, reversed his country's approval of Albania and said the council should ask Albania about her intentions. He said France's opinion of Albania had been seriously damaged by her attitude in the Corfu case and the attitude of the Albanian delegations before the Security Council.

Brazil, which voted with Russia, Poland, Mexico and France for Albania last August, endorsed the United States questions, as did Belgium. Britain, China and Australia voiced their "doubts" about Albania's "peace-loving character."

Alexei N. Krasilnikov, Russia, defended Albania against what he called "slanders."

of Police Switter, James Ellen, a private investigator, and Willard Schaurer, a Pittsburgh newspaperman. The questioning was conducted by Ellen.

In the statement, young Gue admitted playing with the babies and said there was no one in the room at the time.

He said he had climbed up the cribs. After putting the babies back in their cribs he related he started to run back to his wheel chair near the elevator, but then changed to a walk "because you aren't supposed to run in a hospital."

Glad He Has Told Truth

He said he later returned to the scene and that a nurse washed his hands and asked him if he had played with the babies. He told her he hadn't been, "because I was afraid."

He said he liked babies and was glad he had told the truth.

Mrs. Gue, in answer to a question, said she was satisfied the story was true and that she had known "right along that he wasn't telling the truth."

In previous questioning, the boy had told of seeing a boy about 15 years old "puck up one of the babies and slam her against the floor."

Md. Police Stationery Used In Error, Ober Says

BALTIMORE, July 21—(AP)—The use of Maryland State Police stationery in soliciting contributions for the force's recruiting campaign was termed a mistake yesterday by Col. Beverly Ober, superintendent of the law enforcement agency.

The stationery was used for letters signed by Abraham Watner, vice chairman of the committee which is assisting in the recruiting drive.

Received last week by hundreds of Maryland businessmen, the letters ask for contributions of "not more than $250" to help defray expenses of the drive, which was expected to cost $15,000.

Responding to inquiries at state police headquarters in Pikesville, Ober said, "the letters should never have been written on police stationery."

The stationery, he added, was given to the committee without his knowledge.

Axtell, openly supported in the primary by President Truman, was defeated in the November election by Rep. Albert Reeves, Jr., a Republican.

After the Kansas City Star inquiry, a state grand jury indicted 71 persons.

7 Die In Fireworks Blast

BUENOS AIRES, July 21 (AP) — Seven persons were killed and two others were listed as missing today following an explosion in a fireworks factory in Canuelas, a Buenos Aires suburb.

A Garnerville, N. Y., ice cream firm permitted a pollutant to run into Turn pond, Haverstraw, in quantities injurious to fish. The state collected $200.

Other terrorists in the Haifa region blasted the Iraq Petroleum Company's pipe line in three places, once at Haifa and twice at Tiberius, but caused slight damage. At least eight Jews were arrested in connection with the sabotage.

Another explosion in Haifa, believed at first to have been another attack, proved to be the detonation by the army of a quantity of ammunition found near a military camp on Mount Carmel.

With a quarter of its Jewish population under nightly curfew in Haifa, Jerusalem and Natanya, the Holy Land was more tense than in many months.

Fears of more violent actions grew in army circles.

Groves Denies He Tried To Discredit Atom Group

WASHINGTON, July 21. (AP)—Maj. Gen. Leslie R. Groves, who directed the Army's development of the atomic bomb, made a heated formal denial today of "innuendoes" that he sought to discredit the job done by the civilian commission which has taken over atomic affairs.

Groves, in an unusual official statement through the War Department, said "erroneous reports have been widely circulated in the last few days concerning my position on atomic energy matters." He said several reports have "insinuated that I have encouraged a campaign to discredit the administration" of the Atomic Energy Commission headed by David E. Lilienthal.

He said Secretary of War Patterson had "expressed the desire that I issue a statement" on the matter, and declared:

"All such reports and innuendoes are absolutely untrue."

and that Republican newspapers here would be allowed to continue to publish.

Dutch military sources said torrential downpours slowed their armor and infantry, and the first communique told only of aerial activity, adding that operations were hindered by "very bad weather."

The communique stated that the planes which had gone into action against Republican airdromes were American types. Squadrons of Mustang fighters (P-51s) made the initial attacks, the announcement said, and these were followed by Mitchell reconnaissance bombers (D-25s).

Soekarno, in a radio appeal from the Indonesian capital of Jogjakarta urged the nations of the world to bring the Indonesian question before the United Nations Security Council.

Gen. Soedirman, commander-in-chief of the Indonesian army, announced over the radio that Dutch infantrymen, supported by planes, had launched a heavy attack from the important city of Bandoeng, in Western Java, toward the rich, rice paddies of the Sundanese.

He declared heavy fighting was underway near Dutch-held Semarang, the most important city in Central Java, and that the Dutch were attacking "at random" not only along front lines "but also in the interior"—a possible indication of airborne operations.

The Jogjakarta radio said Indonesian underground elements had arisen within Semarang, and heavy fighting was underway at Gunung Pati, 10 miles from that city.

Dutch artillery has gone into action south of Bandoeng, the Republican radio declared, and Dutch planes launched a rocket attack on Malaya in Western Java.

Bus Depot Permit Will Be Cancelled End Of This Year

Mayor, Council Vote To Force Site Change

Six bus companies that have been using the Frederick Street Bus Terminal as a depot for passengers will be notified this week that the city will terminate its permit for that location effective December 31, 1947, following action of the municipal government yesterday morning.

The Mayor and Council ordered the permit cancelled as a result of the traffic problem which has been prevalent in the vicinity of the terminal for the past couple of years.

Keegan To Send Notices

William V. Keegan, commissioner of police and firemen, said he will send notices to the six bus companies this week informing officials that the permit for operation at the Frederick Street stand will be cancelled at the end of this year.

The relocation of the largest bus terminal in the city has been discussed for the past year by both city officials and heads of the bus companies, but while several locations have been considered definite action has never been taken.

Most recent of the sites under consideration is the present location of the Southern Hotel, North Mechanic Street, John T. Fey, attorney for the owners of the hotel was expected to make a report on consideration of the site last week, but did not appear at the council meeting yesterday.

Commissioner Keegan said yesterday afternoon that the condition at the present bus terminal has been growing steadily worse and the action of the Mayor and Council was taken as a means to force action on relocation of the terminal. He declared he had no suggestions to make concerning the relocation of the terminal, but explained that it must be moved back from Frederick Street.

Six Companies Affected

Bus companies that will be affected are the Blue Ridge, Blue and White, Reynolds and Somerset lines along with the Cumberland and Westernport Transit Company and the Albright line.

Action was deferred on the application of Societa' di M. S. Cristofore Columbo for exemption from paying city taxes as a charitable organization until clarification is received on a similar tax case pending before the State Tax Commission. The organization applied to the city after the Board of County Commissioners ordered it exempt from county and state taxes. The application was made in the name of John Basile, president.

Rutgers Rows Well But Is Defeated

BRUSSELS, July 21 (AP)—Rutgers University of New Brunswick, N. J., rowed well today in the International Senior Eighths event of Brussels' Rowing Regattas, but found Delfsche Sport, Dutch finalist of this year's Grand Challenge Cup at Henley, just too good for them.

The Belgian Club "Cercle Des Regates De Bruxelles" loaned the Americans their best boat for the race.

Rowing powerfully right from the start, Rutgers soon made up the lead of a quarter length taken by Delfsche Sport, and half-way through the race of two kilometers was leading by a short nose.

Half mile from the finish line Delfsche rowed even and won by a length and a quarter.

DEATHS

MRS. McCLELLAN KIFER

Mrs. Rosalie Kifer, 46, wife of McClellan Kifer, died last night at 6 o'clock at her home in Woodlawn, LaVale, after an illness of one year.

She was a daughter of the late Wasson O. and Elsie Starliper Meyers and was a native of Town Creek but had been a resident of LaVale for a number of years. She was a member of North Cumberland Assembly of God Church.

Also surviving are three sons and three daughters by a former marriage, Clyde, James and Edward Bishop, all of Bell Fontaine, Ohio, Miss Bernadine Bishop, Oldtown; Mrs. Edith Howdyshell, Wiley Ford, W. Va., and Mrs. Claude Higgs, Baltimore.

Two sisters, Mrs. Argyle Crabtree, Oldtown, and Mrs. Carlton Harper, Paw Paw, W. Va.; four brothers, Jesse Meyers, Eckhart; Patrick Meyers, this city; Jack Meyers, Ridgeley, and Otha Meyers, Paw Paw.

Three step daughters, Miss Anna M. Kifer and Mrs. Sarah Seeders, both of this city, and Miss Grace Kifer, LaVale, and three step sons, McClellan, John G. and Vernon F. Kifer also survive.

The body is at the Kight Funeral Home.

FRANK SHANHOLTZER

A funeral service for Frank Shanholtzer, 98, who died early yesterday morning at his home in Levels, W. Va., will be conducted tomorrow at 2 p. m. in Levels Methodist Church. Burial will be in Levels Cemetery.

Mr. Shanholtzer, a former blacksmith, had been in failing health for some time and fell twice last week. He was born June 10, 1849, in Hampshire County.

Besides his widow, who is 87, he is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Levia Snyder, Levels, and Mrs. Jessie Leasure and Mrs. Lottie Williamson, both of this city. Eleven grandchildren and eight great grandchildren also survive.

MRS. ISAAC KING

HAGERSTOWN, July 21 — Mrs. Anna Wiebel King, 73, died this morning in Washington County Hospital, Hagerstown, where she has been a patient for two weeks.

A former resident of Cumberland, she was the daughter of the late John and Elizabeth Wiebel, who resided at 128 Hanover Street, Cumberland.

Besides her husband, Isaac King, she is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Sophia Fitzsimmons, Wilkensburg, Pa., and Mrs. S. E. Baechtel, who resides at the King residence in Hagerstown, and a brother, F. W. Wiebel, Baltimore.

She was a member of St. Mark's Lutheran Church, Hagerstown, for the past 50 years.

A funeral service will be held Thursday in St. Mark's Church.

MRS. FREY RITES

A solemn requiem mass will be celebrated today at 9 a. m., in SS. Peter and Paul Catholic Church for Mrs. Molly A. Frey, 72, 841 Camden Avenue, who died Saturday in Memorial Hospital. Interment will be in the church cemetery.

Pallbearers will be Lewis Kienhofer, Andrew Lear, James G. King, Bernard Gillum, Joseph Kienhofer and Robert Ruppert.

News Briefs

Lewyn C. Davis, principal of Central High School, Lonaconing, will be the guest speaker at the Optimist Club meeting tomorrow at 6:15 p. m. at Central YMCA. His subject will be "Music."

Dr. C. N. Foose, Jr., of LaVale, will speak to the Kiwanis Club at its meeting Thursday at 12:15 p. m. in Central YMCA on the subject "Veterinary Medicine".

But Why Not Wins Big Race

CHICAGO, July 21 (AP)—But Why Not, a 3-year-old filly carrying the chocolate brown colors of King Ranch, hauled down first prize of $24,250 in the $35,050 Arlington Matron Handicap before 17,500 today at Arlington Park.

Under the handling of Warren Mehrtens the favored stablemate of Assault finished one-half length in front of Mrs. Albert Sabbath's Say Blue, a 25-1 shot. In third position, just a neck behind, was Christiana Stable's Camargo, which was held at 30-1. Say Blue and Camargo also are 3-year-olds.

A lightweight wall for small homes has been developed, made with a panel of laminated aluminum on which a bakelite resin is used.

Hearing On Sewer To Be Held Aug. 8 By Mayor, Council

A public hearing will be held August 4 to discuss an ordinance calling for the sewering or otherwise improving of Eichner Avenue, according to an order of the Mayor and City Council yesterday. The meeting will be called at 10 a. m.

City Clerk S. E. Griminger was ordered to give 10-days' notice, by publication in local newspapers, of the hearing at which all persons affected by the proposed sewering and improvements of the street may be heard.

The sewering will be done from the intersection of Eichner Avenue with Bedford Street to the intersection with Frederick Street, "the same being a public street and not less than one block in length, and 10 years have elapsed since the completion of the sewering or otherwise improving of said street."

Another order authorized by the Mayor and City Council gave three members of the Board of Zoning Appeals a fee of $10 a month effective July 1, this year. Heretofore, the members have received no compensation for their services.

Appointment of six temporary playground leaders, whose service may be terminated at any time, was approved and their salary fixed at $21 per week. They are, Betty E. Kingston, Doris M. Harris, Alice S. Wiseman, Genevieve Murphy, Grace C. VanPelt and Wilma L. Steele.

City Engineer Ralph L. Rizer was authorized to prepare plans and specifications for the construction of a new bridge over the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal in the South End. Rizer said he had received an offer for the removal of the old structure which was accepted.

Other action taken at yesterday's meeting includes:

Refunding of $6.40 to Aaron Lazarus, Jr., 23 North Liberty Street for overpayment of water rent in the name of James Clark on property at 116 South Centre Street.

Refund of $45.63 to Charles Edward Jenkins, Route 4, for 1947 taxes on property at 206 Pennsylvania Avenue.

Refund of $9 to N. H. Berman, 314 McClatchey, Upper Darby, Pa., on water rent of Donna Tilgman, 301 Washington Street.

Kelly Local Awaits Wage Boost Instructions

An official of Local 26, United Rubber, Cork, Linoleum and Plastic Workers of America, CIO, said yesterday the local has received no official instructions in regards to the announcement that a wage increase is being sought from the "Big Four" rubber companies.

The URCLPWA yesterday cited rising living costs as the chief reason for the wage requests from Goodyear, Goodrich, U. S. Rubber and Firestone companies. A four-month reopening clause was incorporated in contracts signed March 22.

A. E. Johnson, Local 26 president, said the union here has a similar reopening clause dating from April 26—which means that wage talks could begin here August 26.

No specific estimate of the amount of increase to be asked of the Big Four companies has been announced, but it is taken for granted that any increases won would be placed into effect elsewhere since those companies traditionally set the pattern for the industry.

Two Motorists Convicted On Drunk Driving Counts

Two men arrested by Trooper G. M. Rotruck were found guilty of drunken driving charges yesterday before Magistrate James Kenney, Frostburg, one being committed to the County Jail in default of bond and the second being fined $110 and costs.

George W. Martin, Quantico, Va., was committed to jail for 41 days in default of $110 fine and Lawrence A. Minnick, Long Stretch, Garrett County, paid the fine, on a similar charge.

Mary E. Cooper, RFD 1, Frostburg, forfeited $11.45 on a charge of failing to notify the owner of a truck that was struck by her car. William O. Dolden, Frostburg, was fined $5 and costs on a reckless driving charge and Joseph C. Lancaster, Midland, forfeited bond of $11.45 when he failed to appear to answer to charges of exceeding 50 miles an hour in Frostburg.

State 4-H Leaders Study Conservation

Delegates from 4-H Clubs representing all Maryland counties are attending a conservation camp this week at Pleasant Valley Recreation Area, Bittinger, in Garrett County.

The program includes a study of problems in the field of forestry, wildlife and soil conservation, according to W. Sherwood Wilson, Maryland extension boys' club agent.

The course of study will include practical demonstrations, lectures and exhibits of pelts, and many types of game birds and animals found in Maryland.

John Cotton, extension conservationist of the University of Maryland, will have charge of the study of soil conservation. William Parr, district forester was assigned to give demonstrations of fighting forest fires and equipment used in battling blazes which threaten the woodlands. Parr was to include proper methods of establishing fire lines in his demonstration.

Divorce Actions

Two divorce decrees were signed yesterday by Chief Judge William A. Huster in Circuit Court.

Mrs. Nellie O. Crowe, Frostburg, was granted a divorce from Ellis E. Crowe, Cresaptown.

Mrs. Nina Lillian Thrasher was given divorce from Calvin C. Thrasher and the right to resume her maiden name, Nina Lillian Price.

A bill of complaint was filed by John C. Albright against Mary C. Albright.

License Transfer

An application was filed in the office of the clerk of court yesterday, for the transfer of the club license issued to John C. Fisher, to Harvey C. Landis, for the Regal Club, 162 Baltimore Street. The application will be referred to the Allegany Liquor Control Board.

Buzzard's Hearing Is Scheduled Today

Magistrate Oliver H. Bruce set trial for Charles Buzzard, North Mechanic Street, who is charged with maintaining a gaming device and operating a gambling establishment, for Police Court this morning. Buzzard is free on $25 bond.

William Getz, 1514 Bedford Street, Julia Getz, his estranged wife, and Robert Forebeck, her brother, appeared for a hearing in Police Court yesterday following an altercation on Bedford Street Saturday night. Forebeck was fined $10 and Getz $5.

Mack Oster, of 308 Virginia Avenue, received a fine of $25 for carrying concealed weapons. He was arrested Sunday morning by Lt. James Van for being drunk, and when searched at headquarters, was found in possession of steel knuckles.

Richard Statler, 522 City View Terrace, forfeited a $15 bond this morning on a drunk and disorderly charge, after being arrested Sunday afternoon for creating a disturbance at his home.

Arrested For Gambling

A man identified as Dominick Mundy, 130 Mechanic Street, was arrested last night at 10.05 o'clock on charges of maintaining a gaming device. He was released on $25 bond for a hearing this morning. Detective Thomas J. See and Officer Arthur Kendell made the arrest. Police said a "poker game" was in progress.

Will Collect Waste Paper

The monthly waste paper collection will be made in the Dingle and on West Side this morning beginning at 9 a. m. All paper, cardboard and magazines will be collected if it is tied in a bundle and placed on the curb in front of the home.

Four tons of paper were collected yesterday in the outlying districts of the city.

DEATHS

MRS. McCLELLAN KIFER

Mrs. Rosalie Kifer, 46, wife of McClellan Kifer, died last night at 6 o'clock at her home in Woodlawn, LaVale, after an illness of one year.

She was a daughter of the late Wasson O. and Elsie Starliper Meyers and was a native of Town Creek but had been a resident of LaVale for a number of years. She was a member of North Cumberland Assembly of God Church.

Also surviving are three sons and three daughters by a former marriage, Clyde, James and Edward Bishop, all of Bell Fontaine, Ohio, Miss Bernadine Bishop, Oldtown; Mrs. Edith Howdyshell, Wiley Ford, W. Va., and Mrs. Claude Higgs, Baltimore.

Two sisters, Mrs. Argyle Crabtree, Oldtown, and Mrs. Carlton Harper, Paw Paw, W. Va.; four brothers, Jesse Meyers, Eckhart; Patrick Meyers, this city; Jack Meyers, Ridgeley, and Otha Meyers, Paw Paw.

Three step daughters, Miss Anna M. Kifer and Mrs. Sarah Seeders, both of this city, and Miss Grace Kifer, LaVale, and three step sons, McClellan, John G. and Vernon F. Kifer also survive.

The body is at the Kight Funeral Home.

FRANK SHANHOLTZER

A funeral service for Frank Shanholtzer, 98, who died early yesterday morning at his home in Levels, W. Va., will be conducted tomorrow at 2 p. m. in Levels Methodist Church. Burial will be in Levels Cemetery.

Mr. Shanholtzer, a former blacksmith, had been in failing health for some time and fell twice last week. He was born June 10, 1849, in Hampshire County.

Besides his widow, who is 87, he is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Levia Snyder, Levels, and Mrs. Jessie Leasure and Mrs. Lottie Williamson, both of this city. Eleven grandchildren and eight great grandchildren also survive.

MRS. ISAAC KING

HAGERSTOWN, July 21 — Mrs. Anna Wiebel King, 73, died this morning in Washington County Hospital, Hagerstown, where she has been a patient for two weeks.

A former resident of Cumberland, she was the daughter of the late John and Elizabeth Wiebel, who resided at 128 Hanover Street, Cumberland.

Besides her husband, Isaac King, she is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Sophia Fitzsimmons, Wilkensburg, Pa., and Mrs. S. E. Baechtel, who resides at the King residence in Hagerstown, and a brother, F. W. Wiebel, Baltimore.

She was a member of St. Mark's Lutheran Church, Hagerstown, for the past 50 years.

A funeral service will be held Thursday in St. Mark's Church.

MRS. FREY RITES

A solemn requiem mass will be celebrated today at 9 a. m., in SS. Peter and Paul Catholic Church for Mrs. Molly A. Frey, 72, 841 Camden Avenue, who died Saturday in Memorial Hospital. Interment will be in the church cemetery.

Pallbearers will be Lewis Kienhofer, Andrew Lear, James G. King, Bernard Gillum, Joseph Kienhofer and Robert Ruppert.

News Briefs

Lewyn C. Davis, principal of Central High School, Lonaconing, will be the guest speaker at the Optimist Club meeting tomorrow at 6:15 p. m. at Central YMCA. His subject will be "Music."

Dr. C. N. Foose, Jr., of LaVale, will speak to the Kiwanis Club at its meeting Thursday at 12:15 p. m. in Central YMCA on the subject "Veterinary Medicine".

But Why Not Wins Big Race

CHICAGO, July 21 (AP)—But Why Not, a 3-year-old filly carrying the chocolate brown colors of King Ranch, hauled down first prize of $24,250 in the $35,050 Arlington Matron Handicap before 17,500 today at Arlington Park.

Under the handling of Warren Mehrtens the favored stablemate of Assault finished one-half length in front of Mrs. Albert Sabbath's Say Blue, a 25-1 shot. In third position, just a neck behind, was Christiana Stable's Camargo, which was held at 30-1. Say Blue and Camargo also are 3-year-olds.

A lightweight wall for small homes has been developed, made with a panel of laminated aluminum on which a bakelite resin is used.

Hearing On Sewer To Be Held Aug. 8 By Mayor, Council

A public hearing will be held August 4 to discuss an ordinance calling for the sewering or otherwise improving of Eichner Avenue, according to an order of the Mayor and City Council yesterday. The meeting will be called at 10 a. m.

City Clerk S. E. Griminger was ordered to give 10-days' notice, by publication in local newspapers, of the hearing at which all persons affected by the proposed sewering and improvements of the street may be heard.

The sewering will be done from the intersection of Eichner Avenue with Bedford Street to the intersection with Frederick Street, "the same being a public street and not less than one block in length, and 10 years have elapsed since the completion of the sewering or otherwise improving of said street."

Another order authorized by the Mayor and City Council gave three members of the Board of Zoning Appeals a fee of $10 a month effective July 1, this year. Heretofore, the members have received no compensation for their services.

Appointment of six temporary playground leaders, whose service may be terminated at any time, was approved and their salary fixed at $21 per week. They are, Betty E. Kingston, Doris M. Harris, Alice S. Wiseman, Genevieve Murphy, Grace C. VanPelt and Wilma L. Steele.

City Engineer Ralph L. Rizer was authorized to prepare plans and specifications for the construction of a new bridge over the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal in the South End. Rizer said he had received an offer for the removal of the old structure which was accepted.

Other action taken at yesterday's meeting includes:

Refunding of $6.40 to Aaron Lazarus, Jr., 23 North Liberty Street for overpayment of water rent in the name of James Clark on property at 116 South Centre Street.

Refund of $45.63 to Charles Edward Jenkins, Route 4, for 1947 taxes on property at 206 Pennsylvania Avenue.

Refund of $9 to N. H. Berman, 314 McClatchey, Upper Darby, Pa., on water rent of Donna Tilgman, 301 Washington Street.

Kelly Local Awaits Wage Boost Instructions

An official of Local 26, United Rubber, Cork, Linoleum and Plastic Workers of America, CIO, said yesterday the local has received no official instructions in regards to the announcement that a wage increase is being sought from the "Big Four" rubber companies.

The URCLPWA yesterday cited rising living costs as the chief reason for the wage requests from Goodyear, Goodrich, U. S. Rubber and Firestone companies. A four-month reopening clause was incorporated in contracts signed March 22.

A. E. Johnson, Local 26 president, said the union here has a similar reopening clause dating from April 26—which means that wage talks could begin here August 26.

No specific estimate of the amount of increase to be asked of the Big Four companies has been announced, but it is taken for granted that any increases won would be placed into effect elsewhere since those companies traditionally set the pattern for the industry.

Two Motorists Convicted On Drunk Driving Counts

Two men arrested by Trooper G. M. Rotruck were found guilty of drunken driving charges yesterday before Magistrate James Kenney, Frostburg, one being committed to the County Jail in default of bond and the second being fined $110 and costs.

George W. Martin, Quantico, Va., was committed to jail for 41 days in default of $110 fine and Lawrence A. Minnick, Long Stretch, Garrett County, paid the fine, on a similar charge.

Mary E. Cooper, RFD 1, Frostburg, forfeited $11.45 on a charge of failing to notify the owner of a truck that was struck by her car. William O. Dolden, Frostburg, was fined $5 and costs on a reckless driving charge and Joseph C. Lancaster, Midland, forfeited bond of $11.45 when he failed to appear to answer to charges of exceeding 50 miles an hour in Frostburg.

State 4-H Leaders Study Conservation

Delegates from 4-H Clubs representing all Maryland counties are attending a conservation camp this week at Pleasant Valley Recreation Area, Bittinger, in Garrett County.

The program includes a study of problems in the field of forestry, wildlife and soil conservation, according to W. Sherwood Wilson, Maryland extension boys' club agent.

The course of study will include practical demonstrations, lectures and exhibits of pelts, and many types of game birds and animals found in Maryland.

John Cotton, extension conservationist of the University of Maryland, will have charge of the study of soil conservation. William Parr, district forester was assigned to give demonstrations of fighting forest fires and equipment used in battling blazes which threaten the woodlands. Parr was to include proper methods of establishing fire lines in his demonstration.

Divorce Actions

Two divorce decrees were signed yesterday by Chief Judge William A. Huster in Circuit Court.

Mrs. Nellie O. Crowe, Frostburg, was granted a divorce from Ellis E. Crowe, Cresaptown.

Mrs. Nina Lillian Thrasher was given divorce from Calvin C. Thrasher and the right to resume her maiden name, Nina Lillian Price.

A bill of complaint was filed by John C. Albright against Mary C. Albright.

License Transfer

An application was filed in the office of the clerk of court yesterday, for the transfer of the club license issued to John C. Fisher, to Harvey C. Landis, for the Regal Club, 162 Baltimore Street. The application will be referred to the Allegany Liquor Control Board.

Buzzard's Hearing Is Scheduled Today

Magistrate Oliver H. Bruce set trial for Charles Buzzard, North Mechanic Street, who is charged with maintaining a gaming device and operating a gambling establishment, for Police Court this morning. Buzzard is free on $25 bond.

William Getz, 1514 Bedford Street, Julia Getz, his estranged wife, and Robert Forebeck, her brother, appeared for a hearing in Police Court yesterday following an altercation on Bedford Street Saturday night. Forebeck was fined $10 and Getz $5.

Mack Oster, of 308 Virginia Avenue, received a fine of $25 for carrying concealed weapons. He was arrested Sunday morning by Lt. James Van for being drunk, and when searched at headquarters, was found in possession of steel knuckles.

Richard Statler, 522 City View Terrace, forfeited a $15 bond this morning on a drunk and disorderly charge, after being arrested Sunday afternoon for creating a disturbance at his home.

Arrested For Gambling

A man identified as Dominick Mundy, 130 Mechanic Street, was arrested last night at 10.05 o'clock on charges of maintaining a gaming device. He was released on $25 bond for a hearing this morning. Detective Thomas J. See and Officer Arthur Kendell made the arrest. Police said a "poker game" was in progress.

Will Collect Waste Paper

The monthly waste paper collection will be made in the Dingle and on West Side this morning beginning at 9 a. m. All paper, cardboard and magazines will be collected if it is tied in a bundle and placed on the curb in front of the home.

Four tons of paper were collected yesterday in the outlying districts of the city.

Governors On Right Track On The Subject Of Taxation

This nation cannot lay claim to having a tax system. There are plenty of taxes for Americans to pay—federal, state, county, municipal, and still others, including the very unpopular Maryland sales tax—but they are not systematized. What the country has is a taxation "patchwork," as Governor Thomas E. Dewey, of New York, observed the other day before the Governors' Conference.

The word fits. Taxes have been laid indiscriminately, by various governmental authorities, to suit their particular needs regardless of the consequences. Mr. Dewey said the object apparently was to impose the kind of levies by which the people could be "plucked most painlessly and their complaints least felt at the polls." That seems to be the case.

So the governors were attacking a real problem in discussing this subject. They made some progress, too, for they are in general agreement that some order must be injected into the picture by allocating certain sources of revenue to the federal government, others to the states, and others still to counties and cities. They were not in full accord, however, on just how to divide up the field.

This conflict of views is natural. It is the result of patchwork. No state can be expected to be anything but dubious about giving up a tested income-producer in exchange for something that may not work.

It is to be hoped that eventually thinking on this subject will go farther and deeper. The nation needs a taxation system that will do justice to all taxpayers and at the same time place the least possible burden on the economy. The governors are on the right track, at least.

Body Is Reconditioned By Sound Sleeping

"I didn't sleep a wink last night. . . ."

This is the sort of remark most people usually take with a grain of salt, suspecting that the speaker merely means that he had a hard time getting to sleep. But we should not be too scornful of these complaints. Some people do find it difficult to fall asleep and the victim of insomnia really suffers. A loss of sleep has a serious effect on a person's alertness, morale and strength.

Sometimes when people are overtired they are not able to get the sleep they need to restore and recondition. They go to bed desperately tense and lie awake for hours telling themselves, "I've simply got to get to sleep, I'll be exhausted tomorrow." Their very anxiety to go to sleep helps to keep them awake.

When the whole body becomes tired, it is natural for sleep to occur. During sleep the conscious activities stop and the unconscious activities slow down. That is, the muscles relax, the heart beat slows down and breathing becomes easier. Waste products are removed and the body is reconditioned.

When a person is "too tired to sleep" and this condition persists over a period of time, he should have a physical examination. This is true because one of the common early symptoms of many diseases is fatigue without any apparent cause, fatigue that does not disappear after normal rest. If a person has a thorough physical examination, including a chest X-ray, and the doctor finds nothing organically wrong, he may ask the patient to examine his day's schedule to seek out the causes for his wakefulness.

The insomniac may be the victim of nervous tension. If this is the case the doctor will try to help him get rid of the nervous tension that keeps him from relaxing at night. One way to do this is to get some outdoor exercise each day. The person who is "cooped up in an office" can form the habit of walking one way to work. He should stop at intervals during the day and make a conscious effort to relax for a few minutes. A regular bed-time helps in the campaign to woo sleep. He could take a warm tub bath before he goes to bed, taking his time and letting his body get really relaxed. A bed-time snack may help him sleep well—in any event he should not go to bed hungry.

If, despite these preliminaries, a person goes to bed and lies awake he should remember that rest in bed, while not a true substitute for sleep, can be made beneficial if he concentrates on pleasant thoughts instead of brooding on his inability to fall asleep. He can spend the first few minutes in bed consciously relaxing. He may even find that he cannot finish the task of relaxing each muscle, because he falls asleep in the process.

Negro Harvey Jones Gets His Cadillac Auto After All

It develops plenty of North Carolina white folks have different ideas of sportsmanship and fair play than some members of the Kiwanis Club in the town of Ahoskie.

The Ahoskie Kiwanians gave a festival, each ticket good for a chance to win a $3,200 Cadillac. One of the tickets was sold to Harvey Jones, a Negro war veteran, and it turned out to bear the lucky number. At 1:30 in the morning, Sheriff Charles Parker and two lawyers went to Harvey Jones' home, woke him up, gave him his dollar back and told him he couldn't have the car he had won. The Kiwanians, they said, hadn't intended tickets to be sold to Negroes.

To clear up the matter, a second drawing was held, and the prize was awarded to a retired doctor who already owned one Cadillac.

Efforts were made to keep the whole thing mum, but news of what had happened got into the papers—first, into The Independent at nearby Elizabeth City, where Editor G. W. Haskett called it a "rotten, ungentlemanly, unsportsmanlike transaction." And press services carried the story all over the country, creating a nation-wide wave of indignation.

Since the incident, the international president of the Kiwanis Clubs, Dr. Charles W. Armstrong, who lives in Salisbury, N. C., has ordered the Ahoskie Club to give Harvey Jones another $3,200 Cadillac. The Club has agreed. So that should clear the reputation of Kiwanis for living up to its stated aim, to promote "higher social, business and professional standards."

The Ahoskie Kiwanians, we hope, will have the grace to join the rest of the country in wishing Harvey Jones much pleasure from his delayed good fortune.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

A FUNGOUS DISEASE OF THE LUNGS

COCCIDIOIDOMYCOSIS is one of our newer diseases. It is acquired by inhaling dust or sand particles containing a fungus—Coccidioides immitis. These molds, confined originally to the San Joaquin valley of California, were later discovered in parts of Arizona and New Mexico. Because of their prevalence in dry areas, the condition is known also as "desert fever," "valley fever," and "desert rheumatism."

Many of the natives of arid regions have positive skin reactions to this ailment, denoting that they had been infected at one time or another. A large proportion do not recall having been ill and it is logical to assume that every one who breathes in the fungus does not exhibit symptoms. Mild attacks generally resemble a bad cold or influenza and it is possible that in many instances the real source of trouble has been missed.

On the other hand, some victims are not so fortunate and encounter a more severe form of the illness. Subsequent to exposure, they suffer headache associated with generalized aches and pains. The throat is sometimes sore and the eyes reddened. Tenderness of the joints or intestinal upsets may appear. This is followed by lung involvement which resembles bronchitis or pneumonia. Tightening of the chest is common as well as chills and pleurisy pains; the temperature often rises to 105 degrees F. A hacking cough ensues and occasionally the sputum is blood tinged.

The malady is usually more incapacitating than serious as the majority recover by remaining in bed. The abnormality can be noted on the X-ray and examination of the sputum will disclose the organisms. The skin and blood may give clews that are helpful in establishing the diagnosis. Since the lung findings in coccidioidomycosis and tuberculosis are somewhat the same, it is important that these laboratory procedures be carried out. Errors along this line have occurred and a few individuals have even reached tuberculosis institutions before the true nature of the disturbance was determined.

One of my Chicago friends was recuperating from tuberculosis of the right lung and decided to take a trip to Arizona. While there he was invited to visit a ranch 16 miles away, which necessitated driving over a dusty road. Soon thereafter he began to feel under par and tired easily. As each day passed he become worse. A sense of tightness in his chest developed, with pain resembling pleurisy. Fearing that tuberculosis had attacked his good lung he decided to return home immediately.

The first X-rays failed to disclose any new lesion and it was thought that he might have the flu because of chills, fever, cough, and muscular soreness. A second chest plate then revealed shadows over the left lung. Skin tests and blood studies were performed and it was found that coccidioidomycosis was responsible. He was relived to know that a new focus of tuberculosis had not set in. After several weeks, symptoms subsided and he is now feeling well.

POLIO IMMUNITY

H. R. C. writes: Does one attack of poliomyelitis provide immunity to the disease?

REPLY

Yes, in the great majority of cases. Furthermore, 90 per cent of adult inhabitants of cities are safe because of previous exposures to the organisms.

DRUG REACTION

H. T. writes: Can the sulfa drugs cause ringing of the ears like quinine?

REPLY

Yes, but much less frequently.

DEPRESSION

J. L. writes: Can a man suffer from involutional melancholia?

REPLY

Yes, men are not immune to depression and apathy.

It Says Here

By BOB HOPE

The Associated dancing teachers are now holding their 25th annual convention in Los Angeles. They picked a great spot for it. The girls of Hollywood Boulevard can show them some marvelous footwork.

The dance teachers are here in an effort to develop new and more exciting methods of tripping the light fantastic.

It seems the nation is getting waltz weary. They want a little more pep in their step and the fox-trot has now become the wolf-gallop.

Dancing . . . . that's the excuse for getting from the table to the terrace without a chaperone.

But I love to dance. As soon as I hear the rhythmic beat of those drums I always grab my partner and rush on to the dance floor. Of course, that's only when I see the waiter coming with the check!

It's a funny thing though. Whenever I do the waltz, people congratulate me on my fine rhumba. I can't help it if my hips go out that far naturally!

But the girls admire me because I'm such a gentleman on the dance floor. I always dance with them at arms' length. I have to. I just gotta get a tighter girdle!

So if you plan to attend a dancing school class in the near future don't be surprised at what you see. The old methods are out and things will be different. In fact, all the teachers are now wearing shin-guards.

THE HOUSE THAT WAS SUPPOSED TO BE HAUNTED

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Senator Bricker Is Spokesman For Real-Estate Lobby, Pearson Says; Senator Ball Sensitive About Nepotism In His Office; Committee Hears Lecture

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — One of the most unusual statements made on the Senate floor in several weeks came from Ohio's statuesque Senator Bricker after President Truman denounced the real-estate lobby. Waving his arms, he told Senate colleagues that Truman had indulged in the cheapest kind of demagoguery.

In contract, Bricker's colleague from Ohio, Bob Taft, who knows what the real-estate lobby did to the Taft-Ellender Housing Act, remarked that he wouldn't mind investigating the lobby himself. Furthermore, everyone who knows his way around any part of Washington realizes that the real-estate lobby is one of the most powerful operating in the Capital's cocktail lounges. But what a great many people do not realize is that Senator Bricker is hand-in-glove with the lobby—in fact, a part of it.

Bricker is a director of the Buckeye State Building and Loan Association of Columbus, affiliated with the powerful U. S. Savings and Loan League, which employs Morton Bodfish to carry on one of the most effective and astute real-estate and housing lobbies in Washington. It is estimated that this outfit spends around half a million dollars a year lobbying.

Furthermore, one of the recent confidential bulletins issued by the Morton Bodfish lobby gleefully boasted that Senator Bricker was one of their members and pointed to the fact that Bricker had obligingly introduced four bills to help out. This confidential bulletin, of course, was not supposed to fall into the hands of the press. But it makes highly interesting reading.

Equally interesting is another fact. Bricker was not elected a director of the Buckeye State Building and Loan Association until about the time he was elected a Senator. Furthermore, he was made a director through the instrumentality of his old friend and political angel, John Galbreath, who is also a director of Buckeye State Building and Loan.

John Galbreath is a familiar figure in Ohio's real-estate financing business. In fact, he is a power. And he is also a power behind the political destinies of John Bricker. Not only has Galbreath backed Bricker everytime he ran, but it is sometimes said in Ohio political circles that Bricker does not even shave in the morning without consulting John Galbreath.

All of which makes Bricker's speech denouncing Truman for criticizing the real-estate lobby doubly interesting.

Note—Also interesting is the fact that William L. Kaiser, the ex-Capitol policeman who fired two wild shots at Bricker in the Senate subway claimed he lost money in a building and loan association closed up by Bricker as attorney general of Ohio. That building and loan association was run by Bricker's old close friend, the same John Galbreath.

Ball's Administrative Assistant

When Congressmen's salaries were increased last year and they were also voted $10,000 to pay an experienced administrative assistant, it was expected that nepotism would taper off. However, it hasn't.

Minnesota's dour Joe Ball isn't the only Senator who bolsters the family income by keeping his wife on the Government payroll, but he seems to be one of the most sensitive about it.

When Elizabeth Ball was queried about her duties as administrative assistant in her husband's office, the Minnesota Republican grabbed the telephone away from her.

"What are you trying to do," he boomed, "smear me?"

"We were just a little curious how your wife happened to get the highest paying job in your office," was the reply.

"There's nothing wrong with that," snorted the Senator. "She's the best person I could get for the job. I'm not trying to take advantage of the Government. I could pay her $10,000 a year, you know. But I only give her $6,000."

"Is that all you consider she's worth, Senator?"

"I'll have you know my office is probably the most efficiently run office up here," Ball barked. "I don't pay her the full $10,000 in the interest of economy."

Senate Townsendite Converts

Believe it or not, but the austere and conservative Senate Finance Committee heard quite a lecture on the Townsend old-age pension plan at a closed-door meeting the other day.

Senator George of Georgia accidentally started the discussion when he opposed a bill to give a $90-a-month pension to Spanish War veterans over 65.

"If we keep this up," George exclaimed, "the next thing you know we'll end up by adopting the Townsend plan."

"Maybe that wouldn't be such a bad idea after all," snapped Senator Brewster of Maine, who has been strongly backed by Townsendites in past elections. For the next 15 minutes, Brewster gave a lecture on the virtues of providing oldsters pensions through a direct 3 per cent tax of individual gross incommes.

"Eighty to 90 per cent of our people over 65 are indigent or dependent," declared the Senator from Maine. "The social security system hasn't solved this problem, which is a disgrace in a great, progressive nation like this. Under the Townsend plan, administrative costs would be greatly reduced for there would be no investigative work to determine need. Everybody reaching 65 would automatically be entitled to a pension."

Despite smiles on the faces of Bob Taft of Ohio and Harry Byrd of Virginia, Brewster tartly reminded his colleagues that he was "dead serious" and had always "believed in the Townsend plan."

For a time, it appeared that the Maine Republican might win some converts, especially when Democrat Alben Barkley of Kentucky declared that he would be inclined to support Brewster's views "if war veterans wouldn't be discriminated against in what you propose."

At this point, however, the Senate buzzer calling the Senate into session, broke up the meeting and Brewster's lecture on old-age pensions.

Europe Aid Should Be In Forms To Speed Private Enterprise

By MARK SULLIVAN

A coincidence that took place last week throws light on the contending tides of our time. It was a case of a deep trend toward normal getting powerfully under way, but obscured by overhanging aftermath of the abnormal conditions created by the war.

Much that went on during the week in Washington and at Paris was concerned with restoring Europe economically, as called for by the Marshall plan and otherwise. This was a major concern of Congress. There were calculations of the cost to our Treasury, some estimates running as high as several billion dollars a year. There was grave questioning whether our taxpayers could or would or ought to pay so great an amount. Need for money for this purpose was one reason President Truman vetoed the tax reduction bill.

While all this disturbed Congress and composed much of the news coming out of Washington, something went on that was less generally noticed. Some hundreds of thousands of American citizens acting either directly or indirectly through banks, insurance companies and other institutions, put up a quarter billion dollars for reconstruction abroad. They did this, not as taxpayers but as private businessmen and investors engaged in private enterprise for profit. The transactions were in the form of secured loans to be repaid at 3 per cent interest.

Grant By Private Citizens

This quarter-billion-dollar grant by private American citizens for reconstruction aboard was made through the World Bank. This Bank was set up in 1944, as a non-profit public international institution for reconstruction abroad and for revival of international trade. At the invitation of the United States, 44 countries met at Bretton Woods, New Hampshire. Each undertook to contribute to the capital of the Bank in proportion to its size and wealth. The Bank is empowered to sell bonds to the public, out of the proceeds of which it makes loans to industries and institutions abroad carefully selected for their ability to repay, the funds to be used for productive purposes.

The sale of a quarter billion dollars of bonds last week was the first the World Bank has made. The bonds were eagerly bought by banks, insurance companies, and other institutions as well as individuals. There were sales in every state except New Mexico and Wyoming, where technicalities of state laws did not conform to this type of investment for savings institutions. When a question arose whether the laws of Mississippi permitted this type of investment, protest led the Attorney General of the state to wire the World Bank that purpose of the bonds would be legal for institutions in that state. Throughout the country, 1630 dealers in securities took part in the distribution of the bonds. It was estimated that three to four times the amount could have been sold on the same day.

This first sale of bonds by the World Bank supports several deductions having high public importance. The funds for reconstruction of Europe, through the Marshall plan and otherwise, need not all come out of the Treasury or out of the taxpayers' pockets. Estimates of the amount needed from that source are probably much too high. Much of the needed funds will come from further sale of bonds by the World Bank. Much will come from private bankers, this has already got under way. Much will comef rom industrial institutions extending credit to industries in Europe, this also is already under way.

Prodigious Amounts of Funds

It is evident that there is a prodigious amount of funds in the hands of private institutions and individuals which they are willing to loan abroad under conditions that assure repayment. These funds will go to the restoration of Europe willingly, not grudgingly, as in the case of funds that go from the United States Treasury. A citizen may be reluctant to part with money to the tax collector, which he will not see again, but very willing to part with it under conditions that assure repayment with interest.

There are many evidences that, through the aggregate of private individuals, businesses, corporations, and other institutions, some in America and some in Europe, entering into undertakings on the basis of ordinary trade, the reconstruction of Europe is getting under way. This is not to say that the aggregate of private enterprise will be enough; during the early stages of the process there will be need of funds from the American Treasury. As a rule, the most effective help toward reconstruction that government can contribute will be that which is in forms that encourage and facilitate private enterprise.

Mr. Truman Made Extraordinary Promise Or Someone Made A Slip

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, July 21.—Either somebody who prepares President Truman's messages made a slip or else Mr. Truman really has made an extraordinary promise in his veto message last week on the tax bill which contradicts everything else he said in the same message.

The President said:

"When the time comes to lessen this wartime tax burden, it is only fair that we should follow a pattern which is the reverse of that under which the burden was imposed. That is to say, this wartime tax burden should be reduced on a basis that is fair to the low income groups as well as to high income groups."

Actually if the "pattern" of the wartime tax rates is followed in "reverse," it would mean that higher incomes should have bigger cuts in taxes, because everybody knows that when the wartime schedules were imposed the middle and higher brackets received a much more drastic percentage boost in tax rates than did the lower incomes.

If Mr. Truman's words are to be taken on their face, it would mean that he favors bigger reductions for the higher incomes than were contained in the bill he vetoed. This seems to be at variance with his whole argument against signing the tax-reduction bills presented to him by an overwhelming majority of both Houses of Congress.

Comparison of Taxes

The President mentioned three illustrations—the taxes for the marired man in the $2,500, and the $100,000 and the $1,000,000 classes, respectively. Here is how the 1939 taxes were raised to their wartime peak in 1945 and then slightly reduced in 1946, and what they would have been under the 1947 tax-reduction bill that Mr. Truman has vetoed twice:

Net Income	1939 tax	1945 tax	1946 tax	new tax
$2,500	none	6.4 per cent	3.8 per cent	2.7 per cent
$100,000	32.0 per cent	68.6 per cent	62.3 per cent	49.9 per cent
$1,000,000	67.9 per cent	90.0 per cent	83.9 per cent	72.8 per cent

The foregoing is figured on the basis of a family of husband and wife and two children.

Obviously, the persons with the high incomes took the deepest cut. Hence, the proposed tax-reduction bill which was vetoed did not remove the high tax rates in the same way that they were imposed. For if that had been done, the taxes of the $100,000 man would have been reduced to what they were before the war, namely 32 per cent of net income.

Does Mr. Truman mean that he believes the $100,000 man should have had his taxes reduced downward in exactly the pattern of rates that sent them upward in wartime? His language can be so construed, for he speaks of "reversing" the patterns of rates as imposed in wartime.

But if that is the President's idea, what can he possibly mean by arguing that the Knutson-Millikin bill that he vetoed gave proportionately more reduction to middle and high incomes than to the lower incomes?

Actually the proposed tax law represented a reduction from a rate of 3.8 per cent to a rate 2.7 per cent on $2,500—from a tax of $95 to a tax of $67.50. This is a total reduction in taxes of about 29 per cent.

Now the $100,000 man would have had his taxes reduced from $62,300 to $49,900 or a saving of $12,400, which is a reduction in taxes of about 19 per cent.

His Argument Blasted

How can Mr. Truman say that the taxpayer in the lower brackets who got a 29 per cent tax reduction is being treated inequitably as against a $100,000 taxpayer who is getting a saving of only 19 per cent under the proposed bill?

Maybe Mr. Truman means that the Knutson bill that he vetoed didn't go far enough to help the wealthy taxpayers or else he made a mistake in his statement that he wanted to reduce wartime taxes so that the man who took the deepest cut in wartime would be given the biggest saving now.

There is no way short of confiscation by which the incomes of $100,000 and $2,500 can be equalized by legislation. If the Truman program is to equalize incomes by government order, then the end of the system of initiative and incentives is at hand and a communistic philosophy is to become the Democratic campaign doctrine in 1948.

THESE DAYS By George E. Sokolsky

The British Empire was the creation of the energy, daring, thrift and organizational capacity of Englishmen, Scotsmen, Irishmen and Welshmen and all their admixtures from the time of Elizabeth to the year 1914. It is probably the most stupendous achievement in history, bringing together in trade and development the greatest aggregation of productive human beings. In 1914, Sir Edward Gray, after a lonely night of decision, led his country to war over the sanctity of treaties. England kept her word and lost an Empire.

Since 1914, the British have consumed their vast accumulations that centuries had built. They have, in fact, fallen into debt and dependence. Their Empire has become a Commonwealth, its diadem, India, reaching independence. Precisely what that means only time will tell; the British are hopeful that India will ultimately become a loyal member of the Commonwealth as, for instance, the Union of South Africa has become. But no one can be certain what these vast changes portend.

Much depends upon British solvency and productivity. On July 15, Britain had to deal with a part of her external debt —$12,000,000,000 of it. This debt does not include her obligations to the United States, already settled or recently borrowed. These debts are to countries to which Great Britain owed sterling.

The British contend that these debts have already been paid because pounds sterling have been paid in to the accounts of these creditors against which they can draw at their discretion. The creditors want dollars which are not readily available. Up to July 15, these creditors could spend what is really their own money only within the sterling area, but according to the U. S.-British Loan Agreement they may spend that money in dollars or any other currency after July 15. They can now convert their pounds sterling into dollars or if they can get dollar credits with their pounds as collateral, they can spend their money in the United States. It may make a big difference.

One point in Britain's favor the British seem slow to recognize and that is that in the United States, in many items, particularly in heavy steel products, there is still scarcity and a huge backlog. The United States is not yet depending upon foreign trade for prosperity. The oft-pronounced recession has not occurred. In fact, many Americans feel that the competition of foreign consumers for American goods is forcing prices upward unwisely. The British could take advantage of that situation if British productivity were higher than it is. British socialism has failed thus far to produce goods in sufficient quantities to restore the British market.

At any rate, the British did not on July 15 find $12,000,000,000 in American dollars to convert these sterling credits into dollar purchasing power In fact, the British feel that some of these creditors, particularly India, Egypt, and Iraq are pretty tough on the old country. India, for instance, before the war, owed Great Britain about $3,500,000,000, but now the British owe India more than $5,000,000,000. India made a lot of money out of the war.

The question, of course, is as to who made the money in India. Was it made by British subjects doing business there or by natives? This is undoubtedly a mixed situation as everything about India is. Similarly, Egypt did quite well during the war. On the other hand, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, and South Africa, which made huge sacrifices during the war, are quite lenient and reasonable with the old lady. They are not pressing too hard. The Argentine, Brazil, Venezuela and other creditors seem to be more reasonable than India, Egypt and Iraq.

Great Britain is really caught in a dilemma. A breach of the U. S.-British Loan Agreement at this time when the Marshall Plan is on the table could be embarrassing, particularly as the British seek additional credits. On the other hand, dollars are not available to meet the terms of that agreement so far as Britain's creditors are converned. And besides, the British would like to hold markets for her products, because a favored market once gone may not easily be recaptured. It is a tough spot.

Today's Talk

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

The Observer

We learn far more from the observers than we do from the readers of books, or from those who merely listen to what other people give as information or opinion. The observer jots down the facts and discoveries right on the spot, as revealed.

Few of our great naturalists ever went through college, and those who did, never seem to have made a point of it, in their writings. The truth is that the most useful and lasting education is acquired by close observation, day by day. The power of example is tremendous. But to see the natural process at work is to feed the mind its most efficient food.

Most of our own faults can be greatly lessened by noting the good points enacted by others. Also when we see the same faults we own, enacted in others, we realize how important it is to get rid of them as soon as possible. The observer is usually the thinker as well.

I always improved my golf and tennis games after watching the champions play. The child learns most from observing its elders and then imitating them. The happiest traveller is the observer, for he never experiences an idle hour. He is constantly storing up information for later guidance and intellectual profit.

The one who has observed much, at every opportunity, may be at home anywhere, for he can easily adjust himself to the circumstance. With Ulysses he can say that he is a part of all that he has met. We can even recognize others in ourselves, and ourselves in others.

The silent man is usually the observer. He is busy at work making silent notes and observations that may later bear fruitage. The best reporters are those who are best at observing and in appraising human virtues and frailties. They walk right out on Life's platform and write their story down as seen.

Intelligence begets intelligence. The observer lifts those about him to his own level. Likewise those higher than he uplift him. Too many people walk around confining their observations to the shadows of their own noses!

Governors On Right Track On The Subject Of Taxation

This nation cannot lay claim to having a tax system. There are plenty of taxes for Americans to pay—federal, state, county, municipal, and still others, including the very unpopular Maryland sales tax—but they are not systematized. What the country has is a taxation "patchwork," as Governor Thomas E. Dewey, of New York, observed the other day before the Governors' Conference.

The word fits. Taxes have been laid indiscriminately, by various governmental authorities, to suit their particular needs regardless of the consequences. Mr. Dewey said the object apparently was to impose the kind of levies by which the people could be "plucked most painlessly and their complaints least felt at the polls." That seems to be the case.

So the governors were attacking a real problem in discussing this subject. They made some progress, too, for they are in general agreement that some order must be injected into the picture by allocating certain sources of revenue to the federal government, others to the states, and others still to counties and cities. They were not in full accord, however, on just how to divide up the field.

This conflict of views is natural. It is the result of patchwork. No state can be expected to be anything but dubious about giving up a tested income-producer in exchange for something that may not work.

It is to be hoped that eventually thinking on this subject will go farther and deeper. The nation needs a taxation system that will do justice to all taxpayers and at the same time place the least possible burden on the economy. The governors are on the right track, at least.

Body Is Reconditioned By Sound Sleeping

"I didn't sleep a wink last night. . . ."

This is the sort of remark most people usually take with a grain of salt, suspecting that the speaker merely means that he had a hard time getting to sleep. But we should not be too scornful of these complaints. Some people do find it difficult to fall asleep and the victim of insomnia really suffers. A loss of sleep has a serious effect on a person's alertness, morale and strength.

Sometimes when people are overtired they are not able to get the sleep they need to restore and recondition. They go to bed desperately tense and lie awake for hours telling themselves, "I've simply got to get to sleep, I'll be exhausted tomorrow." Their very anxiety to go to sleep helps to keep them awake.

When the whole body becomes tired, it is natural for sleep to occur. During sleep the conscious activities stop and the unconscious activities slow down. That is, the muscles relax, the heart beat slows down and breathing becomes easier. Waste products are removed and the body is reconditioned.

When a person is "too tired to sleep" and this condition persists over a period of time, he should have a physical examination. This is true because one of the common early symptoms of many diseases is fatigue without any apparent cause, fatigue that does not disappear after normal rest. If a person has a thorough physical examination, including a chest X-ray, and the doctor finds nothing organically wrong, he may ask the patient to examine his day's schedule to seek out the causes for his wakefulness.

The insomniac may be the victim of nervous tension. If this is the case the doctor will try to help him get rid of the nervous tension that keeps him from relaxing at night. One way to do this is to get some outdoor exercise each day. The person who is "cooped up in an office" can form the habit of walking one way to work. He should stop at intervals during the day and make a conscious effort to relax for a few minutes. A regular bed-time helps in the campaign to woo sleep. He could take a warm tub bath before he goes to bed, taking his time and letting his body get really relaxed. A bed-time snack may help him sleep well—in any event he should not go to bed hungry.

If, despite these preliminaries, a person goes to bed and lies awake he should remember that rest in bed, while not a true substitute for sleep, can be made beneficial if he concentrates on pleasant thoughts instead of brooding on his inability to fall asleep. He can spend the first few minutes in bed consciously relaxing. He may even find that he cannot finish the task of relaxing each muscle, because he falls asleep in the process.

Negro Harvey Jones Gets His Cadillac Auto After All

It develops plenty of North Carolina white folks have different ideas of sportsmanship and fair play than some members of the Kiwanis Club in the town of Ahoskie.

The Ahoskie Kiwanians gave a festival, each ticket good for a chance to win a $3,200 Cadillac. One of the tickets was sold to Harvey Jones, a Negro war veteran, and it turned out to bear the lucky number. At 1:30 in the morning, Sheriff Charles Parker and two lawyers went to Harvey Jones' home, woke him up, gave him his dollar back and told him he couldn't have the car he had won. The Kiwanians, they said, hadn't intended tickets to be sold to Negroes.

To clear up the matter, a second drawing was held, and the prize was awarded to a retired doctor who already owned one Cadillac.

Efforts were made to keep the whole thing mum, but news of what had happened got into the papers—first, into The Independent at nearby Elizabeth City, where Editor G. W. Haskett called it a "rotten, ungentlemanly, unsportsmanlike transaction." And press services carried the story all over the country, creating a nation-wide wave of indignation.

Since the incident, the international president of the Kiwanis Clubs, Dr. Charles W. Armstrong, who lives in Salisbury, N. C., has ordered the Ahoskie Club to give Harvey Jones another $3,200 Cadillac. The Club has agreed. So that should clear the reputation of Kiwanis for living up to its stated aim, to promote "higher social, business and professional standards."

The Ahoskie Kiwanians, we hope, will have the grace to join the rest of the country in wishing Harvey Jones much pleasure from his delayed good fortune.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

A FUNGOUS DISEASE OF THE LUNGS

COCCIDIOIDOMYCOSIS is one of our newer diseases. It is acquired by inhaling dust or sand particles containing a fungus—Coccidioides immitis. These molds, confined originally to the San Joaquin valley of California, were later discovered in parts of Arizona and New Mexico. Because of their prevalence in dry areas, the condition is known also as "desert fever," "valley fever," and "desert rheumatism."

Many of the natives of arid regions have positive skin reactions to this ailment, denoting that they had been infected at one time or another. A large proportion do not recall having been ill and it is logical to assume that every one who breathes in the fungus does not exhibit symptoms. Mild attacks generally resemble a bad cold or influenza and it is possible that in many instances the real source of trouble has been missed.

On the other hand, some victims are not so fortunate and encounter a more severe form of the illness. Subsequent to exposure, they suffer headache associated with generalized aches and pains. The throat is sometimes sore and the eyes reddened. Tenderness of the joints or intestinal upsets may appear. This is followed by lung involvement which resembles bronchitis or pneumonia. Tightening of the chest is common as well as chills and pleurisy pains; the temperature often rises to 105 degrees F. A hacking cough ensues and occasionally the sputum is blood tinged.

The malady is usually more incapacitating than serious as the majority recover by remaining in bed. The abnormality can be noted on the X-ray and examination of the sputum will disclose the organisms. The skin and blood may give clews that are helpful in establishing the diagnosis. Since the lung findings in coccidioidomycosis and tuberculosis are somewhat the same, it is important that these laboratory procedures be carried out. Errors along this line have occurred and a few individuals have even reached tuberculosis institutions before the true nature of the disturbance was determined.

One of my Chicago friends was recuperating from tuberculosis of the right lung and decided to take a trip to Arizona. While there he was invited to visit a ranch 16 miles away, which necessitated driving over a dusty road. Soon thereafter he began to feel under par and tired easily. As each day passed he become worse. A sense of tightness in his chest developed, with pain resembling pleurisy. Fearing that tuberculosis had attacked his good lung he decided to return home immediately.

The first X-rays failed to disclose any new lesion and it was thought that he might have the flu because of chills, fever, cough, and muscular soreness. A second chest plate then revealed shadows over the left lung. Skin tests and blood studies were performed and it was found that coccidioidomycosis was responsible. He was relived to know that a new focus of tuberculosis had not set in. After several weeks, symptoms subsided and he is now feeling well.

POLIO IMMUNITY

H. R. C. writes: Does one attack of poliomyelitis provide immunity to the disease?

REPLY

Yes, in the great majority of cases. Furthermore, 90 per cent of adult inhabitants of cities are safe because of previous exposures to the organisms.

DRUG REACTION

H. T. writes: Can the sulfa drugs cause ringing of the ears like quinine?

REPLY

Yes, but much less frequently.

DEPRESSION

It Says Here

By BOB HOPE

The Associated dancing teachers are now holding their 25th annual convention in Los Angeles. They picked a great spot for it. The girls of Hollywood Boulevard can show them some marvelous footwork.

The dance teachers are here in an effort to develop new and more exciting methods of tripping the light fantastic.

It seems the nation is getting waltz weary. They want a little more pep in their step and the fox-trot has now become the wolf-gallop.

Dancing . . . . that's the excuse for getting from the table to the terrace without a chaperone.

But I love to dance. As soon as I hear the rhythmic beat of those drums I always grab my partner and rush on to the dance floor. Of course, that's only when I see the waiter coming with the check!

It's a funny thing though. Whenever I do the waltz, people congratulate me on my fine rhumba. I can't help it if my hips go out that far naturally!

But the girls admire me because I'm such a gentleman on the dance floor. I always dance with them at arms' length. I have to. I just gotta get a tighter girdle!

So if you plan to attend a dancing school class in the near future don't be surprised at what you see. The old methods are out and things will be different. In fact, all the teachers are now wearing shinguards.

THE HOUSE THAT WAS SUPPOSED TO BE HAUNTED

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — One of the most unusual statements made on the Senate floor in several weeks came from Ohio's statuesque Senator Bricker after President Truman denounced the real-estate lobby. Waving his arms, he told Senate colleagues that Truman had indulged in the cheapest kind of demagoguery.

In contract, Bricker's colleague from Ohio, Bob Taft, who knows what the real-estate lobby did to the Taft-Ellender Housing Act, remarked that he wouldn't mind investigating the lobby himself. Furthermore, everyone who knows his way around any part of Washington realizes that the real-estate lobby is one of the most powerful operating in the Capital's cocktail lounges. But what a great many people do not realize is that Senator Bricker is hand-in-glove with the lobby—in fact, a part of it.

Bricker is a director of the Buckeye State Building and Loan Association of Columbus, affiliated with the powerful U. S. Savings and Loan League, which employs Morton Bodfish to carry on one of the most effective and astute real-estate and housing lobbies in Washington. It is estimated that this outfit spends around half a million dollars a year lobbying.

Furthermore, one of the recent confidential bulletins issued by the Morton Bodfish lobby gleefully boasted that Senator Bricker was one of their members and pointed to the fact that Bricker had obligingly introduced four bills to help out. This confidential bulletin, of course, was not supposed to fall into the hands of the press. But it makes highly interesting reading.

Equally interesting is another fact. Bricker was not elected a director of the Buckeye State Building and Loan Association until about the time he was elected a Senator. Furthermore, he was made a director through the instrumentality of his old friend and political angel, John Galbreath, who is also a director of Buckeye State Building and Loan.

John Galbreath is a familiar figure in Ohio's real-estate financing business. In fact, he is a power. And he is also a power behind the political destinies of John Bricker. Not only has Galbreath backed Bricker everytime he ran, but it is sometimes said in Ohio political circles that Bricker does not even shave in the morning without consulting John Galbreath.

All of which makes Bricker's speech denouncing Truman for criticizing the real-estate lobby doubly interesting.

Note—Also interesting is the fact that William L. Kaiser, the ex-Capitol policeman who fired two wild shots at Bricker in the Senate subway claimed he lost money in a building and loan association closed up by Bricker as attorney general of Ohio. That building and loan association was run by Bricker's old close friend, the same John Galbreath.

Ball's Administrative Assistant

When Congressmen's salaries were increased last year and they were also voted $10,000 to pay an experienced administrative assistant, it was expected that nepotism would taper off. However, it hasn't.

Minnesota's dour Joe Ball isn't the only Senator who bolsters the family income by keeping his wife on the Government payroll, but he seems to be one of the most sensitive about it.

When Elizabeth Ball was queried about her duties as administrative assistant in her husband's office, the Minnesota Republican grabbed the telephone away from her.

"What are you trying to do," he boomed, "smear me?"

"We were just a little curious how your wife happened to get the highest paying job in your office," was the reply.

"There's nothing wrong with that," snorted the Senator. "She's the best person I could get for the job. I'm not trying to take advantage of the Government. I could pay her $10,000 a year, you know. But I only give her $6,000."

"Is that all you consider she's worth, Senator?"

"I'll have you know my office is probably the most efficiently run office up here," Ball barked. "I don't pay her the full $10,000 in the interest of economy."

Senate Townsendite Converts

Believe it or not, but the austere and conservative Senate Finance Committee heard quite a lecture on the Townsend old-age pension plan at a closed-door meeting the other day.

Senator George of Georgia accidentally started the discussion when he opposed a bill to give a $90-a-month pension to Spanish War veterans over 65.

"If we keep this up," George exclaimed, "the next thing you know we'll end up by adopting the Townsend plan."

"Maybe that wouldn't be such a bad idea after all," snapped Senator Brewster of Maine, who has been strongly backed by Townsendites in past elections. For the next 15 minutes, Brewster gave a lecture on the virtues of providing oldsters pensions through a direct 3 per cent tax of individual gross incommes.

"Eighty to 90 per cent of our people over 65 are indigent or dependent," declared the Senator from Maine. "The social security system hasn't solved this problem, which is a disgrace in a great, progressive nation like this. Under the Townsend plan, administrative costs would be greatly reduced for there would be no investigative work to determine need. Everybody reaching 65 would automatically be entitled to a pension."

Despite smiles on the faces of Bob Taft of Ohio and Harry Byrd of Virginia, Brewster tartly reminded his colleagues that he was "dead serious" and had always "believed in the Townsend plan."

For a time, it appeared that the Maine Republican might win some converts, especially when Democrat Alben Barkley of Kentucky declared that he would be inclined to support Brewster's views "if war veterans wouldn't be discriminated against in what you propose."

At this point, however, the Senate buzzer calling the Senate into session, broke up the meeting and Brewster's lecture on old-age pensions.

Europe Aid Should Be In Forms To Speed Private Enterprise

By MARK SULLIVAN

A coincidence that took place last week throws light on the contending tides of our time. It was a case of a deep trend toward normal getting powerfully under way, but obscured by overhanging aftermath of the abnormal conditions created by the war.

Much that went on during the week in Washington and at Paris was concerned with restoring Europe economically, as called for by the Marshall plan and otherwise. This was a major concern of Congress. There were calculations of the cost to our Treasury, some estimates running as high as several billion dollars a year. There was grave questioning whether our taxpayers could or would or ought to pay so great an amount. Need for money for this purpose was one reason President Truman vetoed the tax reduction bill.

While all this disturbed Congress and composed much of the news coming out of Washington, something went on that was less generally noticed. Some hundreds of thousands of American citizens acting either directly or indirectly through banks, insurance companies and other institutions, put up a quarter billion dollars for reconstruction abroad. They did this, not as taxpayers but as private businessmen and investors engaged in private enterprise for profit. The transactions were in the form of secured loans to be repaid at 3 per cent interest.

Grant By Private Citizens

This quarter-billion-dollar grant by private American citizens for reconstruction aboard was made through the World Bank. This Bank was set up in 1944, as a non-profit public international institution for reconstruction abroad and for revival of international trade. At the invitation of the United States, 44 countries met at Bretton Woods, New Hampshire. Each undertook to contribute to the capital of the Bank in proportion to its size and wealth. The bonds were eagerly bought by banks, insurance companies, and other institutions as well as individuals. There were sales in every state except New Mexico and Wyoming, where technicalities of state laws did not conform to this type of investment for savings institutions. When a question arose whether the laws of Mississippi permitted this type of investment, protest led the Attorney General of the state to wire the World Bank that purpose of the bonds would be legal for institutions in that state. Throughout the country, 1630 dealers in securities took part in the distribution of the bonds. It was estimated that three to four times the amount could have been sold on the same day.

This first sale of bonds by the World Bank supports several deductions having high public importance. The funds for reconstruction of Europe, through the Marshall plan and otherwise, need not all come out of the Treasury or out of the taxpayers' pockets. Estimates of the amount needed from that source are probably much too high. Much of the needed funds will come from further sale of bonds by the World Bank. Much will come from private bankers, this has already got under way. Much will comef rom industrial institutions extending credit to industries in Europe, this also is already under way.

Prodigious Amounts of Funds

It is evident that there is a prodigious amount of funds in the hands of private institutions and individuals which they are willing to loan abroad under conditions that assure repayment. These funds will go to the restoration of Europe willingly, not grudgingly, as in the case of funds that go from the United States Treasury. A citizen may be reluctant to part with money to the tax collector, which he will not see again, but very willing to part with it under conditions that assure repayment with interest.

There are many evidences that, through the aggregate of private individuals, businesses, corporations, and other institutions, some in America and some in Europe, entering into undertakings on the basis of ordinary trade, the reconstruction of Europe is getting under way. This is not to say that the aggregate of private enterprise will be enough; during the early stages of the process there will be need of funds from the American Treasury. As a rule, the most effective help toward reconstruction that government can contribute will be that which is in forms that encourage and facilitate private enterprise.

Mr. Truman Made Extraordinary Promise Or Someone Made A Slip

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, July 21.—Either somebody who prepares President Truman's messages made a slip or else Mr. Truman really has made an extraordinary promise in his veto message last week on the tax bill which contradicts everything else he said in the same message.

The President said:

"When the time comes to lessen this wartime tax burden, it is only fair that we should follow a pattern which is the reverse of that under which the burden was imposed. That is to say, this wartime tax burden should be reduced on a basis that is fair to the low income groups as well as to high income groups."

Actually if the "pattern" of the wartime tax rates is followed in "reverse," it would mean that higher incomes should have bigger cuts in taxes, because everybody knows that when the wartime schedules were imposed the middle and higher brackets received a much more drastic percentage boost in tax rates than did the lower incomes.

If Mr. Truman's words are to be taken on their face, it would mean that he favors bigger reductions for the higher incomes than were contained in the bill he vetoed. This seems to be at variance with his whole argument against signing the tax-reduction bills presented to him by an overwhelming majority of both Houses of Congress.

Comparison of Taxes

The President mentioned three illustrations—the taxes for the married man in the $2,500, and the $100,000 and the $1,000,000 classes, respectively. Here is how the 1939 taxes were raised to their wartime peak in 1945 and then slightly reduced in 1946, and what they would have been under the 1947 tax-reduction bill that Mr. Truman has vetoed twice:

Net Income	1939 tax	1945 tax	1946 tax	new tax
$2,500	none	6.4 per cent	3.8 per cent	2.7 per cent
$100,000	32.0 per cent	68.6 per cent	62.3 per cent	49.9 per cent
$1,000,000	67.9 per cent	90.0 per cent	83.9 per cent	72.8 per cent

The foregoing is figured on the basis of a family of husband and wife and two children.

Obviously, the persons with the high incomes took the deepest cut. Hence, the proposed tax-reduction bill which was vetoed did not remove the high tax rates in the same way that they were imposed. For if that had been done, the taxes of the $100,000 man would have been reduced to what they were before the war, namely 32 per cent of net income.

Does Mr. Truman mean that he believes the $100,000 man should have had his taxes reduced downward in exactly the pattern of rates that sent them upward in wartime? His language can be so construed, for he speaks of "reversing" the patterns of rates as imposed in wartime.

But if that is the President's idea, what can he possibly mean by arguing that the Knutson-Millikin bill that he vetoed gave proportionately more reduction to middle and high incomes than to the lower incomes?

Actually the proposed tax law represented a reduction from a rate of 3.8 per cent to a rate 2.7 per cent on $2,500—from a tax of $95 to a tax of $67.50. This is a total reduction in taxes of about 29 per cent.

Now the $100,000 man would have had his taxes reduced from $62,300 to $49,900 or a saving of $12,400, which is a reduction in taxes of about 19 per cent.

His Argument Blasted

How can Mr. Truman say that the taxpayer in the lower brackets who got a 29 per cent tax reduction is being treated inequitably as against a $100,000 taxpayer who is getting a saving of only 19 per cent under the proposed bill?

Maybe Mr. Truman means that the Knutson bill that he vetoed didn't go far enough to help the wealthy taxpayers or else he made a mistake in his statement that he wanted to reduce wartime taxes so that the man who took the deepest cut in wartime would be given the biggest saving now.

There is no way short of confiscation by which the incomes of $100,000 and $2,500 can be equalized by legislation. If the Truman program is to equalize incomes by government order, then the end of the system of initiative and incentives is at hand and a communistic philosophy is to become the Democratic campaign doctrine in 1948.

THESE DAYS By George E. Sokolsky

The British Empire was the creation of the energy, daring, thrift and organizational capacity of Englishmen, Scotsmen, Irishmen and Welshmen and all their admixtures from the time of Elizabeth to the year 1914. It is probably the most stupendous achievement in history, bringing together in trade and development the greatest aggregation of productive human beings. In 1914, Sir Edward Gray, after a lonely night of decision, led his country to war over the sanctity of treaties. England kept her word and lost an Empire.

Since 1914, the British have consumed their vast accumulations that centuries had built. They have, in fact, fallen into debt and dependence. Their Empire has become a Commonwealth, its diadem, India, reaching independence. Precisely what that means only time will tell; the British are hopeful that India will ultimately become a loyal member of the Commonwealth as, for instance, the Union of South Africa has become. But no one can be certain what these vast changes portend.

Much depends upon British solvency and productivity. On July 15, Britain had to deal with a part of her external debt —$12,000,000,000 of it. This debt does not include her obligations to the United States, already settled or recently borrowed. These debts are to countries to which Great Britain owed sterling.

The British contend that these debts have already been paid because pounds sterling have been paid in to the accounts of these creditors against which they can draw at their discretion. The creditors want dollars which are not readily available. Up to July 15, these creditors could spend what is really their own money only within the sterling area, but according to the U. S.-British Loan Agreement they may spend that money in dollars or any other currency after July 15. They can now convert their pounds sterling into dollars or if they can get dollar credits with their pounds as collateral, they can spend their money in the United States. It may make a big difference.

One point in Britain's favor the British seem slow to recognize and that is that in the United States, in many items, particularly in heavy steel products, there is still scarcity and a huge backlog. The United States is not yet depending upon foreign trade for prosperity. The oft-pronounced recession has not occurred. In fact, many Americans feel that the competition of foreign consumers for American goods is forcing prices upward unwisely. The British could take advantage of that situation if British productivity were higher than it is. British socialism has failed thus far to produce goods in sufficient quantities to restore the British market.

At any rate, the British did not on July 15 find $12,000,000,000 in American dollars to convert these sterling credits into dollar purchasing power. In fact, the British feel that some of these creditors, particularly India, Egypt, and Iraq are pretty tough on the old country. India, for instance, before the war, owed Great Britain about $3,500,000,000, but now the British owe India more than $5,000,000,000. India made a lot of money out of the war.

The question, of course, is as to who made the money in India. Was it made by British subjects doing business there or by natives? This is undoubtedly a mixed situation as everything about India is. Similarly, Egypt did quite well during the war. On the other hand, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, and South Africa, which made huge sacrifices during the war, are quite lenient and reasonable with the old lady. They are not pressing too hard. The Argentine, Brazil, Venezuela and other creditors seem to be more reasonable than India, Egypt and Iraq.

Great Britain is really caught in a dilemma. A breach of the U. S.-British Loan Agreement at this time when the Marshall Plan is on the table could be embarrassing, particularly as the British seek additional credits. On the other hand, dollars are not available to meet the terms of that agreement so far as Britain's creditors are converned. And besides, the British would like to hold markets for her products, because a favored market once gone may not easily be recaptured. It is a tough spot.

Today's Talk

The Observer

We learn far more from the observers than we do from the readers of books, or from those who merely listen to what other people give as information or opinion. The observer jots down the facts and discoveries right on the spot, as revealed.

Few of our great naturalists ever went through college, and those who did, never seem to have made a point of it, in their writings. The truth is that the most useful and lasting education is acquired by close observation, day by day. The power of example is tremendous. But to see the natural process at work is to feed the mind its most efficient food.

Most of our own faults can be greatly lessened by noting the good points enacted by others. Also when we see the same faults we own, enacted in others, we realize how important it is to get rid of them as soon as possible. The observer is usually the thinker as well.

I always improved my golf and tennis games after watching the champions play. The child learns most from observing its elders and then imitating them. The happiest traveller is the observer, for he never experiences an idle hour. He is constantly storing up information for later guidance and intellectual profit.

The one who has observed much, at every opportunity, may be at home anywhere, for he can easily adjust himself to the circumstance. With Ulysses he can say that he is a part of all that he has met. We can even recognize others in ourselves, and ourselves in others.

The silent man is usually the observer. He is busy at work making silent notes and observations that may later bear fruitage. The best reporters are those who are best at observing and in appraising human virtues and frailties. They walk right out on Life's platform and write their story down as seen.

Intelligence begets intelligence. The observer lifts those about him to his own level. Likewise those higher than he uplift him. Too many people walk around confining their observations to the shadows of their own noses!

PITCHING HORSESHOES by Billy Rose

"Your story has a hollow ring," I said to Major Timothy Morgan.

"It's because I'm telling it on an empty stomach," cracked my favorite confidence man, mopping his neck with the world's largest bandana. "Seeing as how you're not interested in my project to market disappearing ink for non-incriminating love letters, could I persuade you to let me have a few dollars for a steak?"

Billy Rose

"Maybe," I grinned. "Let's see the steak."

"Very funny," said Timothy coldly. "I come here for sympathy—I get old routines from the Happiness Boys program."

"If you went to work," I said, "you wouldn't be looking for sympathy. Hasn't anyone ever offered you a job?"

The old mountebank shuddered delicately. "Once," he said. "Aside from that, I've met with nothing but kindness. My career in the marts of trade is quickly told. At 20, I resolved to work hard and make something of myself. At 21, I decided it was easier to change my mind."

"Interesting and informative," I said, opening the door and bowing to the self-commissioned Major. Timothy stood his ground.

"How come you're always broke?" I asked him.

He took a deck of greasy cards out of his pocket.

"You're looking a bit peaked, my friend," he said. "Why don't you shut off the telephone and relax? A friendly game of gin rummy will stop those bells from ringing in your head."

"Not with you, Cardini," I snapped. "And not with those gravy-stained pasteboards. You know the backs of them better than you know your father's face."

"Well, with your own cards, then," purred the Major. "Send the boy down to the drugstore for a couple of new decks."

I saw a chance to give the Major his come-uppance. Like everybody else, I fancy myself quite a gin player. Besides, I know that in a square game—if it doesn't last too long—a beginner who gets good cards can beat the world's gin rummy champ.

When the decks came up, I broke them open myself. I insisted that Timothy roll up his sleeves and take the rings off his fingers.

"A penny a point," I said. "And warn you. I have a permit to carry a gun."

We cleared off my desk and began to play. The mahatma of the midways played quickly, almost carelessly. I gave it the grand stratamagee and concentrated on remembering cards and suits.

The Major won the first game, 100 to 14. The second game, I didn't get a point.

I remembered reading somewhere about a new gimmick—infrared contact lenses which fit over a player's eyes and enable him to read markings on the backs of cards. I rose. "Pardon me," I said, and stuck my forefinger gently in the Major's eye.

"Suspicious fellow, aren't you?" said Morgan. "Even with your own cards. I knock with two."

Timothy handed me the deck. "You do all the dealing from here in," he said. The next six games the Major didn't throw a single card I could use. When we totted up, I owed him fifty bucks. Little wisps of steam were shooting up out of my collar as I reached for my wallet.

"Put your poke away," said the Major. "I cheated you."

"I don't believe it," I said. "You just happened to get lucky. They're my cards and I dealt. Here's your dough."

Morgan extracted a twenty from the bills and stuffed it into his vest pocket. "The twenty tiny men are for the lesson," he said. "Never play cards with strangers, and only occasionally with friends."

"Wait a second," I yelped. "I paid my tuition. What's the lesson?"

"Think, my boy, think," said Morgan, winked and was gone.

I went back to my desk, sat and brooded, "How did Morgan beat me that badly with my own cards?"

Finally I gave up and went down to the drugstore for some coffee.

"Get the cards all right?" asked the druggist.

"I got 'em all right, all right," I growled. "What do I owe you for the two packs?"

"Sixty cents," said the druggist.

"You're cheating yourself," I told him. "Two packs of cards are more than sixty cents."

"I'm running a special on them today," said the druggist. "A fellow sold me some yesterday at a fifty percent discount. Friend of yours, I think. Know who I mean?"

"Yeah," I smiled, getting it. "I know who you mean."

"He's not going to make much money selling cards at that price," said the druggist.

"I wouldn't worry about him," I said. "He'll make out."

Dawson Methodist Church Opens Vacation School

To Conclude Friday With Lawn Picnic

The Daily Vacation Bible School of the Dawson Methodist Church opened yesterday morning and will continue through Friday, July 25, according to Rev. Louis Chastain, pastor of the church, who is serving as dean of the vacation school.

The beginner's department, comprised of children of pre-school age, is under the direction of Mrs. L. E. Kesner, assisted by Mrs. Mary Van Pelt. This group is studying the book, "Our Happy World."

Mrs. Minnie Walker is directing the primary department which includes children between the ages of 6 and 8. She is being assisted by Mrs. R. H. Simpson and Mrs. Warren Wagoner. The topic of study for this class is "Bible Homes and Homes of Today."

The junior department, comprised of children between the ages of 9 and 11, is under the direction of Mrs. Hazel Van Pelt, assisted by Mrs. Rita Gimble. "Neighbors at Peace" is the study selected for this group.

The intermediate group, which includes children from 12 through the teen ages, is directed by Mrs. Louis Chastain and has as its theme, "Exploring the Bible."

Mrs. Ruth Bodkin is musician for the school and Mrs. Rita Gimble is secretary and treasurer. The school will be concluded Friday afternoon with a picnic on the church lawn.

Clyde Sindy Will Attend Sunday School Meeting

The International Sunday School Convention, for Sunday School officials and workers in Christian education of all denominations, will open in Des Moines, Iowa, tomorrow evening.

Harold Stassen, former governor of Minnesota, will give a brief opening talk at the convention and Dr. Roy L. Smith, editor of the Christian Advocate, will give the main address at the initial session.

The convention will continue until Sunday, July 27, with a program of meetings and services each day. Clyde Sindy, representing the Cresaptown, Rawlings and Dawson Methodist churches, will leave today to attend the convention.

Events In Brief

The Women's Society of Christian Service of Central Methodist Church, George Street, will meet this evening at 8 o'clock at the church.

The official board of the Cresaptown Methodist Church will meet this evening at 8 o'clock.

The Ladies Chorus of St. Luke's Lutheran Church will hold a rummage sale tomorrow morning in the building at the corner of Bedford and Center Streets. Following the rummage sale, a bake sale will be held at 11:30 o'clock.

The Child Guidance Club will hold a hay ride Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock from Nave's Crossroads to Adams' farm.

A social will be held by mothers of the North End Playground children, Wednesday and Thursday evenings at 7 o'clock on the playground.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

Madeline R. Blank vs. Samuel T. Blank. No. 20141 Equity in the Circuit Court for Allegany County.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree divorcing the plaintiff from the defendant A VINCULO MATRIMONII.

The Bill states that the parties were married on October 11, 1929; the Bill further alleges that the defendant abandoned and deserted the plaintiff on December 1, 1945 and that said abandonment has continued uninterruptedly from that time down to the present time and is for more than eighteen months and is deliberate and final and the separation of the parties beyond any reasonable hope of reconciliation; that no children were born of said marriage; that the plaintiff is a resident of the State of Maryland and has been so all of her life and that the defendant is a resident of the City of Detroit, Michigan and a non resident of the State of Maryland.

It is thereupon this 3rd day of July, 1947 ordered by the Circuit Court for Allegany County that the plaintiff by causing this Order to be inserted in some newspaper published in Allegany County once a week for four successive weeks before the 8th day of August, 1947 giving notice to the said absent defendant of the object and substance of this Bill and warning him to be and appear in this Court in person or by Solicitor on or before the 25th day of August, 1947 to show cause if any he have why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

P-E Will Install Street Steamline

An application to replace an eight-inch steamline for the Potomac Edison Company along Baltimore Street was approved by the Mayor and City Council yesterday.

The municipal government stipulated, however, that since the work will interrupt traffic the contractor must work double shifts from 7 a. m. to 11 p. m. and have the job completed by August 9.

The new line will run 10 feet south of the north curb line for a distance of 150 feet, beginning approximately 60 fet west of the center line intersection of Liberty Street with Baltimore Street. Paving will be replaced by city employes at the expense of the contractor.

The Police Department received a new probationary officer in the person of Harold E. Crawford by order of the Council. The Council also authorized Commissioner Myers G. Light to advertise for a new motor sweeper for the Street Cleaning Department.

Man Pays Fine For Reckless Driving

One man was found guilty on a reckless driving charge and eight motorists forfeited bonds on traffic violations in Trial Magistrates' Court yesterday.

Roy A. Lewis, 209 Thomas Street, this city, was found guilty of reckless driving on North Mechanic Mechanic Street, Sunday and was fined $6.45 by Magistrate Frank A. Perdew. He was arrested by City Police Lt. James E. Van after his car struck a telephone pole on Mechanic Street.

The forfeitures included: Elmer Martin, Oldtown Road, $3.45 for passing on a curve on Route 220 near Fairgo on June 18; Williard Bartlett, Route 2, Keyser, $6.45 for operating an automobile without a driver's license Sunday on Route 220 near Frantztown; the owner of the car, James A. Bartlett, Keyser, forfeited $6.45 for permitting an unlicensed operator to drive his car. Martin was arrested by State Trooper W. L. Wilt and the latter pair were apprehended by Trooper Robert Henline.

Others were: Albert D. Johnson, Detroit, $6.45 for exceeding 30 miles per hour on Route 40 east of Cumberland, Sunday; Leon Long, Wellersburg, $6.45 for traveling at a speed greater than proper on Route 220, July 15; Willard T. Shealey, Bainbridge, $6.45 for exceeding 30 miles per hour on Route 40 in LaVale on July 13; Trooper Henline apprehended Johnson and Trooper G. E. Coddington arrested the latter two.

A. Floyd Imes, Route 1, Flintstone, forfeited $16.45 for exceeding 50 miles per hour on Route 220 at Cresaptown Sunday and John H. Hallet, Kingston, Pa., forfeited $11.45 for reckless driving on Route 220 at Bowling Green Saturday. Trooper G. M. Rotruck preferred both charges.

Salvador is the smallest of Central American republics, and the only one without an Atlantic seacoast.

P-E Will Install Street Steamline

An application to replace an eight-inch steamline for the Potomac Edison Company along Baltimore Street was approved by the Mayor and City Council yesterday.

The municipal government stipulated, however, that since the work will interrupt traffic the contractor must work double shifts from 7 a. m. to 11 p. m. and have the job completed by August 9.

The new line will run 10 feet south of the north curb line for a distance of 150 feet, beginning approximately 60 fet west of the center line intersection of Liberty Street with Baltimore Street. Paving will be replaced by city employes at the expense of the contractor.

The Police Department received a new probationary officer in the person of Harold E. Crawford by order of the Council. The Council also authorized Commissioner Myers G. Light to advertise for a new motor sweeper for the Street Cleaning Department.

15 New Plaques Are Unveiled In Hall Of Fame

12,000 See Braves Turn Back Yankees

By JACK HAND

COOPERSTOWN, N. Y., July 21 (AP) — Abner Doubleday's old home town of his school boy days honored baseball's greats of yesteryear by unveiling 15 new plaques in the hall of fame today and then turned out some 12,000 strong to watch the hot shots of 1947, the New York Yankees, drop a 4-3 decision to the Boston Braves in a 10-inning exhibition game.

Rain, the enemy of most of the six previous major league exhibitions played in the cozy little stadium just off Cooperstown's main street, held off all afternoon only to pour down on the fans just as Larry Berra forced Johnny Lindell for the final out in the tenth. It was too late to save the Yanks, homeward bound after a sizzling road trip that included a 19-game win streak.

Chandler Is Missing

Commissioner A. B. Chandler was among the missing but the National game was represented by President Ford Frick of the National League who dedicated the plaques in the pre-game ceremonies held on the doorstep of the baseball museum.

Pausing in his recital of the deeds of the mighty men of yore long enough to sink out baseball as a "symbol of the American people—just as much a part of the United States as the 48 states, as democratic as town meeting and as American as wheat and corn," Frick introduced visiting baseball celebrities.

The most important of the visitors was "Big Ed" Walsh, the only new hall of fame member who was able to be present at the impressive ceremonies. Walsh, a great pitcher with the Chicago American League Club of the 1904-1916 era and a 40-game winner in 1908 delivered an inspiring poem, dedicated to the former stars who are dead.

Other immortals honored by Frick were Carl Hubbell, Lefty Grove, Mickey Cochrane and Frank Frisch of the comparatively recent era.

The 11 older stars, chosen by a special Hall of Fame Committee, were Rube Waddell, the famous pitcher of the Philadelphia A's, Shortstop Joe Tinker, Second Baseman Johnny Evers and First Baseman Manager Frank Chance of Tinker-to-Evers-to-Chance double-play fame with the Chicago Cubs of 1906, 07, 08, 10.

Plank's Widow Present

There was Eddie Plank, who was represented by his widow and two brothers as head of a delegation from Gettysburg, Pa., one of the greatest lefthanded pitchers; Tom McCarthy, who stole 109 bases in 1888 and knew fame as one of Boston's "Heavenly Twins" under Manager Frank Selee; Jesse Burkett, one of three men to hit .400 in three different seasons; Jack Cresbro, whose 41 wins in 1904 still stands as tops in modern day major league plays; Joe (Iron Man) McGinnity, who won two games in the same day five different times and Clark Griffith, known both as baseball executive at Washington and an excellent pitcher.

In the game of the day, the Braves — a possible World Series foe of the Yanks—got away to a two-run lead off Rookie Don Johnson in the second inning.

Ernie White, Boston sore-armed pitcher who is being nursed back to active duty as a member of Billy Southworth's coaching staff, held the Yanks to four hits in his five-inning stint.

Brining Is One Of Best Known Horsemen In Western Maryland

EVERETT F. BRINING

Hagerstown Is Home; Copped Fairgo Award

Everett started training thoroughbreds in 1930 and he achieved his first fame in December, 1933 when he tied Preston M. Burch of Washington, D. C., for the leading winning trainer's title during the initial meeting at the Charles Town, W. Va., track.

Brining has been a regular visitor to Fairgo since the early 1930's and he won the award for the leading winning trainer at Fairgo in the days when he battled J. Bowes Bond and the Feltners of Virginia for the honors.

The first winner Everett saddled was Curator. He rates Joe Baker's Hagerstown the best horse he ever saddled. He says Assault is the best race horse he ever saw in action.

When Everett started out he trained hunters and has made rapid strides since turning to training runners.

He will bring a string of horses here for the 10-day meeting of the Cumberland Fair Association which opens just four weeks from today.

Upset Features City Tennis Tournament

The women took the lead in the City tennis tournament matches yesterday, playing on the Dingle and Country Club courts, with one upset, Margaret Ann Ruppenthal, one of the younger players defeating a more experienced player, Louis Wilson, 6-0, 7-5.

Miss Ruppenthal now plays Mrs. Gorden Bowie in the semi-finals of the upper division, the winner playing Mrs. Ralph Higgins in the finals.

Mrs. Higgins advanced to the finals yesterday at the Dingle after winning a hard match from Joan Rilling, 6-2, 7-5.

Mrs. Bowie advaced to the semi-finals yesterday at the Country Club by defeating Mary Louise Buzzell, 6-3, 6-2.

In the mixed doubles Dorothy Marie Willison and Jack Evans advanced to the semi-finals by eliminating Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Bernstein, 6-3, 6-0.

Jack Evans also won a single match yesterday evening at the Dingle from John Mattingly, 6-2, 6-0.

This evening at 6 o'clock Ralph Higgins and Ned Finan will play Marvin Kaplon and Harold Marx on the Dingle courts. Other matches will be played during the day and in the evening.

Colts Sign Players

BALTIMORE, July 21—(AP)—The Baltimore Colts today signed up two more centers, bringing the number of candidates who will try out for the All-America Professional Football Conference eleven to 63.

The newcomers are Pat Martinelli of the University of Scranton and Basil Petry from Purdue University. The Colts now have seven centers.

The squad will report Friday to Coach Cecil Isbell at Hershey, Pa.

CLUB IS EXCLUSIVE—When Buck Newsom, the much-traveled pitcher now hurling for the Yankees, registered his 200th major league win in Cleveland another 200-win veteran, Mel Harder, of the Tribe, was on hand to offer congratulations. Harder, Newsom and Red Ruffing of the White Sox are the only active players in the select circle.

GAME TODAY

North End at Amvets, (Community)

The league leading Amvets continued their win streak in City Softball loop competition by downing Reed's in a one sided contest yesterday. Lacy's loss to V.F.W. dropped the Delicatets to third place while a three way tie between North End, Concord and Astor Cab resulted after they had downed Maccabees, Virginia Avenue and American Legion respectively.

Paced by homers by Lou Bell and Tommy Geatz, the Amvets walloped Reed's Electricians 17 to 4 at the East Side Field. Doyle George had a perfect day at the plate with four for four and Geatz's long run from left field to catch a foul fly, was the fielding gem of the day. Pete Elliot homered for the losers.

In a free hitting contest, Concord Clothiers stopped the Virginia Avenue Merchants 13 to 10 at the Rolling Mill field. Cleggett hit two circuit blows for the Clothiers, both with the bases empty Tommy Smith, Russ Davis and Homer Hull each hit safely three times out of four times at the plate. Lease and Athey with two hits in four chances led the losers at the batter's box.

Jim Gaffney started the Astors Cab 10 off to a good beginning against the American Legion when he walloped a home run in the first, scoring the first three men at bat in the game who had reached the bases by walks. Harry Minnicks had a circuit blow in the third and Lou Baker slammed a four bagger in the fifth. The Astors outfit won 16 to 5.

Lacy's dropped into third place with a 10-9 loss to V.F.W. Gene Scaletta, who pitched five hit ball, contributed to the loss by issuing 12 free passes. Rowan had two of the winners' five hits with a single and a double. Penner led the Delicatets with three safeties and Durbin, Hawse and Scaletta each had two.

North End came from behind in the last of the seventh inning when they scored a five run rally to edge Maccabees 8 to 7. George Rice was the man of the hour in the deciding frame when he homered with the bases loaded.

Reiser Is Hurt

BROOKLYN, July 21 (AP)—Pete Reiser will be out of the Brooklyn Dodgers' line-up for two or three days as a result of his latest misfortune, according to Dr. Harold Wendler, team trainer.

Reiser, who goes out of his way to crack up bodily, snapped his left shoulder out of place attempting a shoestring catch of Babe Young's line drive homer inside the park today, and then snapped it back in place.

Game Postponed

The game scheduled tonight at 5:30 o'clock between Hyndman and Midland at Hyndman in the Bi-State Baseball League has been postponed.

Aristocrats And Chubby's Score In Frostburg

Chubby's downed the Eagles ten and the Aristocrats defeated Stoops in Frostburg City Softball League competition yesterday.

Render and Davis, the batteries for Chubby's, led their team to an 11 to 8 victory over the Eagles at the Y. M. I. ball park. Blank with a triple and Griffith with a double were top men at the plate for the losers.

R. Harper hit a single and a home run for the Aristocrats as his outfit downed Stoops 8 to 4 at the college field. Waites had two hits for the winners and Biggs and C. Taylor slammed doubles for the winners. Dick Blank had the only extra base clout for the losers with a two bagger.

Due to a hole in the Y. M. I. field, Bob Britt one of the players in the Chubby-Eagles contest, suffered a badly injured arm as he fell while rounding third base during yesterday's contest. He was treated at Miners Hospital last night for a fractured left arm.

Servo Kayoes Singleton In Opening Comeback

ALBANY, N. Y., July 21 (AP) — Marty Servo, 145, former welterweight champion opening a comeback campaign, knocked out Benny Singleton, 150½, Waterbury, Conn., tonight, in 45 seconds of the second round of a scheduled 10-round bout.

Punching fast and sharp despite a year's lay-off because of a nose injury, Servo dropped Singleton for a count of eight midway in the first round and finished him with a left to the body and right to the jaw in the second.

The first round was slow for the first minute, but in the waning moments, Servo decided to let go and connected with the smashing left that dropped Singleton.

Mullan Suspended Until August 4

Maurice Mullan, second baseman for the Virginia Avenue Merchants softball team, was suspended for two weeks, by officials of the City Softball League, at the American Legion Home last night. Mullan was charged with interfering with an umpire during the game between the Merchants and Reed's Electricians last Friday.

Mullan had been suspended after the incident, according to John R. Kelly, Jr., and failed to appear for his hearing last night. League officials said he can be reinstated anytime within the two weeks period, by the payment of a $5 fine.

The suspension makes Mullan ineligible as a player, coach or manager until August 4, Kelly said.

Robinson Postpones Benefit Fight For Doyle's Family

NEW YORK, July 21—(AP)—Welterweight Champion Ray Robinson's proposed benefit appearance for the family of Jimmy Doyle, who died after Ray knocked him out in Cleveland on June 24, was called off today when Robinson's manager notified Los Angeles promoter Babe McCoy he would not go through with the bout before next year.

"The reasons Ray gave me don't make sense," asserted McCoy, who came across the country to iron out details for the fight. "It looks to me like he's definitely running out of the bout."

While still in Cleveland, Robinson announced his intention of fighting a benefit for Doyle's family. It was learned the idea was suggested to him by Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis.

McCoy scheduled a bout between Robinson and California Jackie Wilson for September 23 in the Los Angeles Olympic Club, and agreed to set it back a month when Robinson asked for a postponement. The promoter said it would have drawn a gate of $55,000 or $60,000, and that Robinson had agreed to take 35 per cent of the net proceeds, keep 20 and turn 15 over to the family of Doyle, who suffered a head injury in the Cleveland bout and never recovered consciousness.

McCoy had two appointments with Robinson last week in Chicago to sign contracts for the bout, but said Robinson failed to keep either of them. "One was for 12 o'clock the day after the Zale-Graziano fight," he explained. "We checked at his hotel and found out he'd checked out at 7 a. m. that day."

In addition to the benefit for the Doyle family, McCoy said, it had been planned to turn some of the proceeds over also to the crippled children's and Damon Runyon cancer funds.

DIXIE WALKER SETS FAST HITTING PACE

NEW YORK, July 21 (AP)—Harry (Little Dixie) Walker of the Philadelphia Phillies continued to set a fast pace in his quest for his initial National League individual batting title.

The fleet ballhawk boosted his average from .341 to .346 by banging out nine hits in 22 trips to the plate during the span which includes Sunday's games. The nine safeties brought his total for the season to 104, two less than Cincinnati's Frank Baumholtz and Pittsburgh's Frank Gustine have collected.

Gustine climbed from seventh to the runner-up slot, jumping his average from .309 to .320 by smashing out 14 hits in 33 tries during the week.

Eight Teams Will Play In Pro Loop

The All American Professional Basketball League will operate with eight clubs next season, William De Muth, president, announced following a meeting of clubowners at Zanesville, Ohio, over the weekend.

Three new teams were admitted to the league after the Pittsburgh Pirates and Dayton, Ohio, resigned franchises. The new teams are Coshocton, Newark and Youngstown, all in Ohio. Other league members are Columbus and Zanesville, Ohio; Wheeling, W. Va., Pittsburgh, Pa., and Cumberland, Md.

Bob Whip, business manager of the Cumberland Dukes, was unable to attend the meeting but voted for the new entries by proxy.

Whip announced yesterday that the Dukes will open their season at the State Armory on Nov. 16, meeting the Kansas City Stars, with the Harlem Globetrotters to be met the next week. Both are negro teams.

Redskins Sign Nobile

WASHINGTON, July 21 — (AP) — The Washington Redskins disclosed today that they have signed Leo Nobile, a 210-pound guard at Penn State.

John Koniszewski, a 249-pound tackle, has been put on the reserve list. He has taken a coaching job in Scranton, Pa.

Billy Gibson, Who Managed Both Leonard And Tunney, Succumbs

Admitted He Knew Nothing About Game

By SID FEDER

NEW YORK, July 21. (AP)—They found old Billy Gibson, a fast man with a buck, dead in his hotel room today. He just fell asleep and never woke up.

Old Billy, you remember, managed Benny Leonard and Gene Tunney when he was flying high around here in a camel hair coat, in the twenties, always tossing money around, always smiling. Probably no other fight manager ever had a record like that—two world champions who retired undefeated. Yet, old Billy was the first to admit he didn't know a thing about fighting—was far more interested in his first love, horses.

"If you want the breeding of anything in the fifth at Jamaica," he'd tell sports writers, "I'll give it to you—like that. But fighters—I just manage them. They think and fight for themselves.

Yet, he made a million dollars with Leonard and he made another bankroll with Tunney. And he was a high-roller—a big action man—in his race-track bookmaking days before he managed fighters. He'd take any size bet.

Quick With Dollar

But he was so quick with a dollar that he gave away all of it that was loose. Some friends made him buy some annuities to carry him these last few years, until he died today at 71. He was the easiest kind of a mark for a touch, the bash boulevardiers recall. He'd bankroll financially ailing bookies and he'd contribute to any charity.

"If Billy had $100,000,000, he'd have died broke," Dumb Dan Morgan, one of his fight-managing contemporaries, remarked.

Oddly enough, Leonard was his first fighter—and Benny, himself, died only three months ago. They were like father and son—that close.

They used to tell the story that Billy discovered Leonard one night when Benny, as a kid, was sneaking a look at the fights through the skylight of the Fairmount and the skylight gave way and dumped him plop in the middle of the ring. All hands denied it, though.

Son Of Bronx Butcher

Billy got to manage Tunney shortly after Gene's return from the armed forces about 1920. Frank Bagley was Gene's manager then, but he and Gene weren't getting along too well, so Billy took over the contract and Bagley was paid off.

The son of a Bronx butcher, Billy was known all over New York. He ran the Criterion Cafe, a famous eating and drinking and gathering place in the Bronx and judges, and lawyers and politicians and fighters and newspapermen and showpeople were steady visitors. Billy made book there, too.

One day, his pal, Chief Police Surgeon Edward T. Higgins came in and gave him a heavyweight. It turned out to be Jim Coffey, the famous Dublin giant. They still sit far into the night to tell tall tales about Jim.

They'll be burying old Billy Wednesday after funeral services at Kinsley and Hunter's Parlor in the Bronx and a mass at St. Jerome's Church. He hadn't been around much these last 15 years. He'd begun to run down after the death of his wife in 1926, and in 1928 the New York Supreme Court ruled that this loss had affected his mind. At that time, the record said that virtually all of his holdings had disappeared. That, mind you, was only a year after he'd received the usual 33 per cent of Tunney's end of the second Dempsey fight—some $300,000. He was that fast with a buck.

Caseys Battle Moose For Runner-Up Spot

A battle for second place in the Rocking Chair Softball League will be staged today when the Knights of Columbous play hosts to the Loyal Order of Moose at Fort Hill field.

At the present time the Caseys hold the runner-up position just a half game in the fore of the Moose aggregation. A victory for the latter today would result in the teams changing places in the league standings.

Manager Fritz Palmer's American Legion tossers will be shooting for their 11th straight triumph when they face Potomac Edison today at Campobello. The Legion leads the league by 1½ games.

The B.P.O. Elks oppose the Outdoor Club on the Rolling Mill field and the Jaycees battle Texcel at East Side in other games on tap for today.

Public Links Golf Tournament Opens

MINNEAPOLIS, July 21 (AP)—The narrow fairways and tricky greens of the Meadowbrook Course kept all but five players at par figures or above today as 179 players toured the first 18 qualifying holes in the National Public Links Golf Tournament.

Holding low scores of 70—two under par—were Avery Beck, 33, Raleigh, N. C., loan firm operator, and Donald J. Dostert, 23-year-old St. Paul bookbinder, who shot each of the nines in 35s. Wilfred Crossley of Atlanta, Ga., 34, New England champion in 1938 and former Private Club player, matched par of 36 on the out nine and whittled off two strokes on the back nine for a 34.

Only three others, Thomas Marlowe, Portland, Ore., Andrew J. Oliveri of Washington, D. C., and Patrick J. Boyle of Eveleth, Minn., were able to break par. They had 71s.

Packers Sign Piotrowski

A Star Behind A Plow

Having confessed to the part we played in the arrival of Bugs Raymond, a great pitcher with an even greater thirst, and his bet that he could eat a whole turkey, drink two bottles of scotch and win a doubleheader on the same day—which he did—we have another story to tell about an even greater pitcher.

The time and place was Atlanta in 1903. Playing with the Atlanta Athletic Club against a country team from Marietta, Ga., we were shut out in a game in which your correspondent struck out four times.

The Marietta pitcher was a stock left-hander with a curve ball that started neck high, and wound up just above the dirt. After the game, we looked up the winning pitcher and found that his name was Rucker.

"I didn't have much today," he said. "This is the fourth straight game I've pitched this week, and my arm is pretty sore."

After the game, we recommended young Mr. Rucker, whom we christened Napoleon Rucker in a story the next day, later to be known as Nap, to Abner Powell, Atlanta's shrewd old manager.

"I'm bringing in this young fellow Rucker," Powell said a day or two later. "I found him back of a plow. He didn't seem to be much interested. He didn't want to leave home. But, he finally agreed to come on for a trial. He's the greenest-looking kid I ever saw. I don't think he'll last long."

Rucker was even greener than that. In his first game, Nap struck out seven or eight batters, but one of his own mates had told him the way to throw a "waist ball," when called for, was to bounce the ball over the plate. This system only cost three or four runs.

"I'm trying to win a pennant," Powell said. "He's too green for me. I'm sending him to Augusta tomorrow."

Sensing the newsvalue in Rucker, we suggested he might be another Rube Waddell.

"He can be two Waddell's," Powell said. "But Rucker is going to Augusta. I've got enough headaches already."

So, Nap Rucker went to Augusta, and a week later pitched a no-hit game. A year or so later, he began a career with Brooklyn that lifted him along the skyline as one of the smartest and best left-handers the game has known.

A Remarkable Team

It so happened that when Nap Tucker was sent to Augusta, he joined one of the most amazing minor league teams of all time. In addition to Rucker, the Augusta team had a kid outfield known as Ty Cobb. It had another star pitcher by the name of Eddie Cicotte. It had another outfielder—Ducky Holmes. There were others who came to fame later on.

Cobb was sold to Detroit—Rucker to Brooklyn—Cicotte to the White Sox—and Holmes to another big league outfit. The individual purchase price of these four stars ranged from $500 to $750. Cobb and Rucker went for $500, as I recall the figures. The four men brought in something like $2,500—Cobb, Rucker, Cicotte and Holmes.

Today, the four, with what they had shown in Augusta, would have been cheap at $250,000. I believe Ducky Holmes brought the highest price of $750.

On his way from Macon to Augusta, Cobb found his train companion was a fat Georgian by the name of Babe Hardy, of Laurel and Hardy fame, Hardy, then, was a traveling salesman. He only weighed 250.

"When this kid told me he was playing with Augusta," Babe told me, "I thought he was the bat boy. He didn't look to be 15. He was insulted when I asked if he was the bat boy."

"'I'll tell you what kind of a bat boy I am,' Cobb replied. 'Here's a pass to the game. I'll be the star and I'll break up the game.'"

"I still thought he was kidding me," Babe said. "But I saw the game, and there was Cobb playing. He got four hits and he stole two bases. He scored three runs. He also beat out a bunt by so far he might have gone on to second base. And every time Ty got a hit, he waved at me. He was still sore.

"I thought at the time," Hardy said, "that if this young kid could be that good maybe I could be a comedian. So I gave it a try."

Since that Georgia train ride in 1903, with the car full of cinders, and neither making $40 a week, Cobb and Hardy together have only picked up four or five million dollars, one way and another. Cobb went on to lead the American League, in batting, 12 out of 13 years, set up over 40 records. And the fat Babe has given the world more than a million laughs.

The odd part about Babe Hardy is that he happens to be one of the most serious men I've ever known. There was certainly never a more serious competitor than Tyrus Raymond Cobb. Maybe it pays to be serious—and on top of the job. But so few are.

Ridgeley-Barrelville Tilt Scheduled Tonight

Ray Lippold, secretary of the Interstate League announced last night that Ridgeley Legion and Barrelsville will attempt for the third time to play off a game postponed from earlier in the season tonight at 6 o'clock on the Barrelsville diamond.

He also stated that Ridgeley had signed three men who will be eligible for tonight's game. Players signed by the Legion include Kenneth E. Carder, Ray Comer and Clyde Wilson. The club released Gene Scaletta, Claude Comer and Robert Pain.

Brooklyn Dodgers Take Two Games From Cincinnati

Increase Lead To Four Games

BROOKLYN, July 21 (AP)—Coming from behind in each game, the Brooklyn Dodgers won both ends of a double header from the Cincinnati Reds today 7-4 and 4-3 to increase their National League lead over the runner-up New York Giants to four full games.

The season's largest crowd, 35,092, saw the Reds get off to an early 4-2 lead in the the third inning of the first game, getting their last two runs on Babe Young's inside-the-park home run with Benny Zientara on base. Pete Reiser jarred his left shoulder trying for Young's deep smash to right center field, and is expected to be out for three days. He suffered no dislocation as at first feared.

The Dodgers knocked out Bucky Walters, Red starting pitcher in the sixth with a two-run spurt which tied the score and continued the assault against Harry Gumbert in the seventh, scoring three more times for the winning margin.

15 New Plaques Are Unveiled In Hall Of Fame

By JACK HAND

COOPERSTOWN, N. Y., July 21 (AP) — Abner Doubleday's old home town of his school boy days honored baseball's greats of yesteryear by unveiling 15 new plaques in the hall of fame today and then turned out some 12,000 strong to watch the hot shots of 1947, the New York Yankees, drop a 4-3 decision to the Boston Braves in a 10-inning exhibition game.

Rain, the enemy of most of the six previous major league exhibitions played in the cozy little stadium just off Cooperstown's main street, held off all afternoon only to pour down on the fans just as Larry Berra forced Johnny Lindell for the final out in the tenth. It was too late to save the Yanks, homeward bound after a sizzling road trip that included a 19-game win streak.

Chandler Is Missing

Commissioner A. B. Chandler was among the missing but the National game was represented by President Ford Frick of the National League who dedicated the plaques in the pre-game ceremonies held on the doorstep of the baseball museum.

Pausing in his recital of the deeds of the mighty men of yore long enough to sinle out baseball as a "symbol of the American people—just as much a part of the United States as the 48 states, as democratic as town meeting and as American as wheat and corn," Frick introduced visiting baseball celebrities.

The most important of the visitors was "Big Ed" Walsh, the only new hall of fame member who was able to be present at the impressive ceremonies. Walsh, a great pitcher with the Chicago American League Club of the 1904-1916 era and a 40-game winner in 1908 delivered an inspiring poem, dedicated to the former stars who are dead.

Other immortals honored by Frick were Carl Hubbell, Lefty Grove, Mickey Cochrane and Frank Frisch of the comparatively recent era.

The 11 older stars, chosen by a special Hall of Fame Committee, were Rube Waddell, the famous pitcher of the Philadelphia A's, Shortstop Joe Tinker, Second Baseman Johnny Evers and First Baseman Manager Frank Chance of Tinker-to-Evers-to-Chance double-play fame with the Chicago Cubs of 1906, 07, 08, 10.

Plank's Widow Present

There was Eddie Plank, who was represented by his widow and two brothers as head of a delegation from Gettysburg, Pa., one of the greatest lefthanded pitchers; Tom McCarthy, who stole 109 bases in 1888 and knew fame as one of Boston's "Heavenly Twins" under Manager Frank Selee; Jesse Burkett, one of three men to hit .400 in three different seasons; Jack Cresbro, whose 41 wins in 1904 still stands as tops in modern day major league plays; Joe (Iron Man) McGinnity, who won two games in the same day five different times and Clark Griffith, known both as baseball executive at Washington and an excellent pitcher.

In the game of the day, the Braves — a possible World Series foe of the Yanks—got away to a two-run lead off Rookie Don Johnson in the second inning.

Ernie White, Boston sore-armed pitcher who is being nursed back to active duty as a member of Billy Southworth's coaching staff, held the Yanks to four hits in his five-inning stint.

Brining Is One Of Best Known Horsemen In Western Maryland

EVERETT F. BRINING

Hagerstown Is Home; Copped Fairgo Award

Everett started training thoroughbreds in 1930 and he achieved his first fame in December, 1933 when he tied Preston M. Burch of Washington, D. C., for the leading winning trainer's title during the initial meeting at the Charles Town, W. Va., track.

Brining has been a regular visitor to Fairgo since the early 1930's and he won the award for the leading winning trainer at Fairgo in the days when he battled J. Bowes Bond and the Feltners of Virginia for the honors.

The first winner Everett saddled was Curator. He rates Joe Baker's Hagerstown the best horse he ever saddled. He says Assault is the best race horse he ever saw in action.

When Everett started out he trained hunters and has made rapid strides since turning to training runners.

He will bring a string of horses here for the 10-day meeting of the Cumberland Fair Association which opens just four weeks from today.

Upset Features City Tennis Tournament

The women took the lead in the City tennis tournament matches yesterday, playing on the Dingle and Country Club courts, with one upset, Margaret Ann Ruppenthal, one of the younger players defeating a more experienced player, Louis Wilson, 6-0, 7-5.

Miss Ruppenthal now plays Mrs. Gorden Bowie in the semi-finals of the upper division, the winner playing Mrs. Ralph Higgins in the finals.

Mrs. Higgins advanced to the finals yesterday at the Dingle after winning a hard match from Joan Rilling, 6-2, 7-5.

Mrs. Bowie advaced to the semi-finals yesterday at the Country Club by defeating Mary Louise Buzzell, 6-3, 6-2.

In the mixed doubles Dorothy Marie Willison and Jack Evans advanced to the semi-finals by eliminating Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Bernstein, 6-3, 6-0.

Jack Evans also won a single match yesterday evening at the Dingle from John Mattingly, 6-2, 6-0.

This evening at 6 o'clock Ralph Higgins and Ned Finan will play Marvin Kaplon and Harold Marx on the Dingle courts. Other matches will be played during the day and in the evening.

Colts Sign Players

BALTIMORE, July 21—(AP)—The Baltimore Colts today signed up two more centers, bringing the number of candidates who will try out for the All-America Professional Football Conference eleven to 63.

The newcomers are Pat Martinelli of the University of Scranton and Basil Petry from Purdue University. The Colts now have seven centers.

The squad will report Friday to Coach Cecil Isbell at Hershey, Pa.

GAME TODAY
North End at Amvets, (Community)

The league leading Amvets continued their win streak in City Softball loop competition by downing Reed's in a one sided contest yesterday. Lacy's loss to V.F.W. dropped the Delicatets to third place while a three way tie between North End, Concord and Astor Cab resulted after they had downed Maccabees, Virginia Avenue and American Legion respectively.

Paced by homers by Lou Bell and Tommy Geatz, the Amvets walloped Reed's Electricians 17 to 4 at the East Side Field. Doyle George had a perfect day at the plate with four for four and Geatz's long run from left field to catch a foul fly, was the fielding gem of the day. Pete Elliot homered for the losers.

In a free hitting contest, Concord Clothiers stopped the Virginia Avenue Merchants 13 to 10 at the Rolling Mill field. Cleggett hit two circuit blows for the Clothiers, both with the bases empty Tommy Smith, Russ Davis and Homer Hull each hit safely three times out of four times at the plate. Lease and Athey with two hits in four chances led the losers at the batter's box.

Jim Gaffney started the Astors Cab 10 off to a good beginning against the American Legion when he walloped a home run in the first, scoring the first three men at bat in the game who had reached the bases by walks. Harry Minnicks had a circuit blow in the third and Lou Baker slammed a four bagger in the fifth. The Astors outfit won 16 to 5.

Lacy's dropped into third place with a 10-9 loss to V.F.W. Gene Scaletta, who pitched five hit ball, contributed to the loss by issuing 12 free passes. Rowan had two of the winners' five hits with a single and a double. Penner led the Delicatets with three safeties and Durbin, Hawse and Scaletta each had two.

North End came from behind in the last of the seventh inning when they scored a five run rally to edge Maccabees 8 to 7. George Rice was the man of the hour in the deciding frame when he homered with the bases loaded.

Reiser Is Hurt

BROOKLYN, July 21 (AP)—Pete Reiser will be out of the Brooklyn Dodgers' line-up for two or three days as a result of his latest misfortune, according to Dr. Harold Wendler, team trainer.

Reiser, who goes out of his way to crack up bodily, snapped his left shoulder out of place attempting a shoestring catch of Babe Young's line drive homer inside the park today, and then snapped it back in place.

Game Postponed

The game scheduled tonight at 5:30 o'clock between Hyndman and Midland at Hyndman in the Bi-State Baseball League has been postponed.

CLUB IS EXCLUSIVE—When Buck Newsom, the much-traveled pitcher now hurling for the Yankees, registered his 200th major league win in Cleveland another 200-win veteran, Mel Harder, of the Tribe, was on hand to offer congratulations. Harder, Newsom and Red Ruffing of the White Sox are the only active players in the select circle.

Aristocrats And Chubby's Score In Frostburg

Chubby's downed the Eagles ten and the Aristocrats defeated Stoops in Frostburg City Softball League competition yesterday.

Render and Davis, the batteries for Chubby's, led their team to an 11 to 8 victory over the Eagles at the Y. M. I. ball park. Blank with a triple and Griffith with a double were top men at the plate for the losers.

R. Harper hit a single and a home run for the Aristocrats as his outfit downed Stoops 8 to 4 at the college field. Waites had two hits for the winners and Biggs and C. Taylor slammed doubles for the winners. Dick Blank had the only extra base clout for the losers with a two bagger.

Due to a hole in the Y. M. I. field, Bob Britt one of the players in the Chubby-Eagles contest, suffered a badly injured arm as he fell while rounding third base during yesterday's contest. He was treated at Miners Hospital last night for a fractured left arm.

Servo Kayoes Singleton In Opening Comeback

ALBANY, N. Y., July 21 (AP) — Marty Servo, 145, former welterweight champion opening a comeback campaign, knocked out Benny Singleton, 150½, Waterbury, Conn., tonight, in 45 seconds of the second round of a scheduled 10-round bout.

Punching fast and sharp despite a year's lay-off because of a nose injury, Servo dropped Singleton for a count of eight midway in the first round and finished him with a left to the body and right to the jaw in the second.

Mullan Suspended Until August 4

Maurice Mullan, second baseman for the Virginia Avenue Merchants softball team, was suspended for two weeks, by officials of the City Softball League, at the American Legion Home last night. Mullan was charged with interfering with an umpire during the game between the Merchants and Reed's Electricians last Friday.

Mullan had been suspended after the incident, according to John R. Kelly, Jr., and failed to appear for his hearing last night. League officials said he can be reinstated anytime within the two weeks period, by the payment of a $5 fine.

The suspension makes Mullan ineligible as a player, coach or manager until August 4, Kelly said.

Robinson Postpones Benefit Fight For Doyle's Family

NEW YORK, July 21—(AP)—Welterweight Champion Ray Robinson's proposed benefit appearance for the family of Jimmy Doyle, who died after Ray knocked him out in Cleveland on June 24, was called off today when Robinson's manager notified Los Angeles promoter Babe McCoy he would not go through with the bout before next year.

"The reasons Ray gave me don't make sense," asserted McCoy, who came across the country to iron out details for the fight. "It looks to me like he's definitely running out of the bout."

While still in Cleveland, Robinson announced his intention of fighting a benefit for Doyle's family. It was learned the idea was suggested to him by Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis.

McCoy scheduled a bout between Robinson and California Jackie Wilson for September 23 in the Los Angeles Olympic Club, and agreed to set it back a month when Robinson asked for a postponement. The promoter said it would have drawn a gate of $55,000 or $60,000, and that Robinson had agreed to take 35 per cent of the net proceeds, keep 20 and turn 15 over to the family of Doyle, who suffered a head injury in the Cleveland bout and never recovered consciousness.

McCoy had two appointments with Robinson last week in Chicago to sign contracts for the bout, but said Robinson failed to keep either of them. "One was for 12 o'clock the day after the Zale-Graziano fight," he explained. "We checked at his hotel and found out he'd checked out at 7 a. m. that day."

In addition to the benefit for the Doyle family, McCoy said, it had been planned to turn some of the proceeds over also to the crippled children's and Damon Runyon cancer funds.

DIXIE WALKER SETS FAST HITTING PACE

NEW YORK, July 21 (AP)—Harry (Little Dixie) Walker of the Philadelphia Phillies continued to set a fast pace in his quest for his initial National League individual batting title.

The fleet ballhawk boosted his average from .341 to .346 by banging out nine hits in 22 trips to the plate during the span which includes Sunday's games. The nine safeties brought his total for the season to 104, two less than Cincinnati's Frank Baumholtz and Pittsburgh's Frank Gustine have collected.

Gustine climbed from seventh to the runner-up slot, jumping his average from .309 to .320 by smashing out 14 hits in 33 tries during the week.

Eight Teams Will Play In Pro Loop

The All American Professional Basketball League will operate with eight clubs next season, William De Muth, president, announced following a meeting of clubowners at Zanesville, Ohio, over the weekend.

Three new teams were admitted to the league after the Pittsburgh Pirates and Dayton, Ohio, resigned franchises. The new teams are Coshocton, Newark and Youngstown, all in Ohio. Other league members are Columbus and Zanesville, Ohio; Wheeling, W. Va., Pittsburgh, Pa., and Cumberland, Md.

Bob Whip, business manager of the Cumberland Dukes, was unable to attend the meeting but voted for the new entries by proxy.

Whip announced yesterday that the Dukes will open their season at the State Armory on Nov. 16, meeting the Kansas City Stars, with the Harlem Globetrotters to be met the next week. Both are negro teams.

Redskins Sign Nobile

WASHINGTON, July 21 — (AP) — The Washington Redskins disclosed today that they have signed Leo Nobile, a 210-pound guard at Penn State.

John Koniszewski, a 249-pound tackle, has been put on the reserve list. He has taken a coaching job in Scranton, Pa.

Billy Gibson, Who Managed Both Leonard And Tunney, Succumbs

Admitted He Knew Nothing About Game

By SID FEDER

NEW YORK, July 21. (AP)—They found old Billy Gibson, a fast man with a buck, dead in his hotel room today. He just fell asleep and never woke up.

Old Billy, you remember, managed Benny Leonard and Gene Tunney when he was flying high around here in a camel hair coat, in the twenties, always tossing money around, always smiling. Probably no other fight manager ever had a record like that—two world champions who retired undefeated. Yet, old Billy was the first to admit he didn't know a thing about fighting—was far more interested in his first love, horses.

"If you want the breeding of anything in the fifth at Jamaica," he'd tell sports writers, "I'll give it to you—like that. But fighters—I just manage them. They think and fight for themselves.

Yet, he made a million dollars with Leonard and he made another bankroll with Tunney. And he was a high-roller—a big action man—in his race-track bookmaking days before he managed fighters. He'd take any size bet.

Quick With Dollar

But he was so quick with a dollar that he gave away all of it that was loose. Some friends made him buy some annuities to carry him these last few years, until he died today at 71. He was the easiest kind of a mark for a touch, the bash boulevardiers recall. He'd bankroll financially ailing bookies and he'd contribute to any charity.

"If Billy had $100,000,000, he'd have died broke," Dumb Dan Morgan, one of his fight-managing contemporaries, remarked.

Oddly enough, Leonard was his first fighter—and Benny, himself, died only three months ago. They were like father and son—that close.

They used to tell the story that Billy discovered Leonard one night when Benny, as a kid, was sneaking a look at the fights through the skylight of the Fairmount and the skylight gave way and dumped him plop in the middle of the ring. All hands denied it, though.

Son Of Bronx Butcher

Billy got to manage Tunney shortly after Gene's return from the armed forces about 1920. Frank Bagley was Gene's manager then, but he and Gene weren't getting along too well, so Billy took over the contract and Bagley was paid off.

The son of a Bronx butcher, Billy was known all over New York. He ran the Criterion Cafe, a famous eating and drinking and gathering place in the Bronx and judges, and lawyers and politicians and fighters and newspapermen and showpeople were steady visitors. Billy made book there, too.

One day, his pal, Chief Police Surgeon Edward T. Higgins came in and gave him a heavyweight. It turned out to be Jim Coffey, the famous Dublin giant. They still sit far into the night to tell tall tales about Jim.

They'll be burying old Billy Wednesday after funeral services at Kinsley and Hunter's Parlor in the Bronx and a mass at St. Jerome's Church. He hadn't been around much these last 15 years. He'd begun to run down after the death of his wife in 1926, and in 1928 the New York Supreme Court ruled that this loss had affected his mind. At that time, the record said that virtually all of his holdings had disappeared. That, mind you, was only a year after he'd received the usual 33 per cent of Tunney's end of the second Dempsey fight—some $300,000. He was that fast with a buck.

Caseys Battle Moose For Runner-Up Spot

A battle for second place in the Rocking Chair Softball League will be staged today when the Knights of Columbous play hosts to the Loyal Order of Moose at Fort Hill field.

At the present time the Caseys hold the runner-up position just a half game in the fore of the Moose aggregation. A victory for the latter today would result in the teams changing places in the league standings.

Manager Fritz Palmer's American Legion tossers will be shooting for their 11th straight triumph when they face Potomac Edison today at Campobello. The Legion leads the league by 1½ games.

The B.P.O. Elks oppose the Outdoor Club on the Rolling Mill field and the Jaycees battle Texcel at East Side in other games on tap for today.

Public Links Golf Tournament Opens

MINNEAPOLIS, July 21 (AP)—The narrow fairways and tricky greens of the Meadowbrook Course kept all but five players at par figures or above today as 179 players toured the first 18 qualifying holes in the National Public Links Golf Tournament.

Holding low scores of 70—two under par—were Avery Beck, 33, Raleigh, N. C., loan firm operator, and Donald J. Dostert, 23-year-old St. Paul bookbinder, who shot each of the nines in 35s. Wilfred Crossley of Atlanta, Ga., 34, New England champion in 1938 and former Private Club player, matched par of 36 on the out nine and whittled off two strokes on the back nine for a 34.

Only three others, Thomas Marlowe, Portland, Ore., Andrew J. Oliveri of Washington, D. C., and Patrick J. Boyle of Eveleth, Minn., were able to break par. They had 71s.

Packers Sign Piotrowski

A Star Behind A Plow

Having confessed to the part we played in the arrival of Bugs Raymond, a great pitcher with an even greater thirst, and his bet that he could eat a whole turkey, drink two bottles of scotch and win a doubleheader on the same day—which he did—we have another story to tell about an even greater pitcher.

The time and place was Atlanta in 1903. Playing with the Atlanta Athletic Club against a country team from Marietta, Ga., we were shut out in a game in which your correspondent struck out four times.

The Marietta pitcher was a stock left-hander with a curve ball that started neck high, and wound up just above the dirt. After the game, we looked up the winning pitcher and found that his name was Rucker.

"I didn't have much today," he said. "This is the fourth straight game I've pitched this week, and my arm is pretty sore."

After the game, we recommended young Mr. Rucker, whom we christened Napoleon Rucker in a story the next day, later to be known as Nap, to Abner Powell, Atlanta's shrewd old manager.

"I'm bringing in this young fellow Rucker," Powell said a day or two later. "I found him back of a plow. He didn't seem to be much interested. He didn't want to leave home. But, he finally agreed to come on for a trial. He's the greenest-looking kid I ever saw. I don't think he'll last long."

Rucker was even greener than that. In his first game, Nap struck out seven or eight batters, but one of his own mates had told him the way to throw a "waist ball," when called for, was to bounce the ball over the plate. This system only cost three or four runs.

"I'm trying to win a pennant," Powell said. "He's too green for me. I'm sending him to Augusta tomorrow."

Sensing the newsvalue in Rucker, we suggested he might be another Rube Waddell.

"He can be two Waddell's," Powell said. "But Rucker is going to Augusta. I've got enough headaches already."

So, Nap Rucker went to Augusta, and a week later pitched a no-hit game. A year or so later, he began a career with Brooklyn that lifted him along the skyline as one of the smartest and best left-handers the game has known.

A Remarkable Team

It so happened that when Nap Tucker was sent to Augusta, he joined one of the most amazing minor league teams of all time. In addition to Rucker, the Augusta team had a kid outfield known as Ty Cobb. It had another star pitcher by the name of Eddie Cicotte. It had another outfielder—Ducky Holmes. There were others who came to fame later on.

Cobb was sold to Detroit—Rucker to Brooklyn—Cicotte to the White Sox—and Holmes to another big league outfit. The individual purchase price of these four stars ranged from $500 to $750. Cobb and Rucker went for $500, as I recall the figures. The four men brought in something like $2,500—Cobb, Rucker, Cicotte and Holmes.

Today, the four, with what they had shown in Augusta, would have been cheap at $250,000. I believe Ducky Holmes brought the highest price of $750.

On his way from Macon to Augusta, Cobb found his train companion was a fat Georgian by the name of Babe Hardy, of Laurel and Hardy fame, Hardy, then, was a traveling salesman. He only weighed 250.

"When this kid told me he was playing with Augusta," Babe told me, "I thought he was the bat boy. He didn't look to be 15. He was insulted when I asked if he was the bat boy."

"'I'll tell you what kind of a bat boy I am,' Cobb replied. 'Here's a pass to the game. I'll be the star and I'll break up the game.'"

"I still thought he was kidding me," Babe said. "But I saw the game, and there was Cobb playing. He got four hits and he stole two bases. He scored three runs. He also beat out a bunt by so far he might have gone on to second base. And every time Ty got a hit, he waved at me. He was still sore.

"I thought at the time," Hardy said, "that if this young kid could be that good maybe I could be a comedian. So I gave it a try."

Since that Georgia train ride in 1903, with the car full of cinders, and neither making $40 a week, Cobb and Hardy together have only picked up four or five million dollars, one way and another. Cobb went on to lead the American League, in batting, 12 out of 13 years, set up over 40 records. And the fat Babe has given the world more than a million laughs.

The odd part about Babe Hardy is that he happens to be one of the most serious men I've ever known. There was certainly never a more serious competitor than Tyrus Raymond Cobb. Maybe it pays to be serious—and on top of the job. But so few are.

Ridgeley-Barrelville Tilt Scheduled Tonight

Ray Lippold, secretary of the Interstate League announced last night that Ridgeley Legion and Barrelsville will attempt for the third time to play off a game postponed from earlier in the season tonight at 6 o'clock on the Barrelsville diamond.

He also stated that Ridgeley had signed three men who will be eligible for tonight's game. Players signed by the Legion include Kenneth E. Carder, Ray Comer and Clyde Wilson. The club released Gene Scaletta, Claude Comer and Robert Pain.

Brooklyn Dodgers Take Two Games From Cincinnati

Increase Lead To Four Games

BROOKLYN, July 21 (AP)—Coming from behind in each game, the Brooklyn Dodgers won both ends of a double header from the Cincinnati Reds today 7-4 and 4-3 to increase their National League lead over the runner-up New York Giants to four full games.

The season's largest crowd, 35,092, saw the Reds get off to an early 4-2 lead in the the third inning of the first game, getting their last two runs on Babe Young's inside-the-park home run with Benny Zientara on base. Pete Reiser jarred his left shoulder trying for Young's deep smash to right center field, and is expected to be out for three days. He suffered no dislocation as at first feared.

The Dodgers knocked out Bucky Walters, Red starting pitcher in the sixth with a two-run spurt which tied the score and continued the assault against Harry Gumbert in the seventh, scoring three more times for the winning margin.

Small Town Girl Advised To Start "Canteen" in Community

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am of high school age and live in a small town, and if you don't do and talk like the other girls, you're just a snob, or stuck up, and I'm sick of it. Many of the girls in this town think it's big to swear, drink and smoke and stay out late, and they brag about it. And if a boy keeps his hair combed and wears a suit, he's just a sissy, and if you go with him it's because you can't get anyone else. That's what the girls think.

So when the girls won't have anything to do with them if they're clean and not drinking, the boys start to dress sloppy and drink, and talk about the different affairs they've had with girls—which they didn't have at all—the way the girls like them to do.

So I'm not going with anyone now. If I can't find a boy who's nice and has respect for me, I don't want any at all.

KEITH.

Dear Keith:

If things are as bad as you say they are in your town, then I think you're doing just right to refuse to have anything to do with so foolish and vulgar a crowd of boys and girls.

But somehow it's hard for me to believe that there wouldn't be some other young people in your community, even if only a few, who have the same sort of standards that you have. Don't you think you could find some if you really made a point of looking around for them?

I think you'd be a very smart girl if you, and one or two others who feel as you do, would go and talk this problem over with some older person in your town—one of your high school teachers that you all like, the woman in charge of your local YWCA, or some other adult that you trust. You might be able, with the help and advice of such a person, to develop something brand-new in your community in the way of a young peoples' "canteen" or other club that would give the town's boys and girls a whole new set of ideas and interests. Why not try it?

Teamsters May Reject Arbitration Offer

Union leaders yesterday were reported as unofficially opposing the use of arbitration in the settlemet of a Pittsburgh teamsters strike which is idling Pittsburgh routes of Cumberland area trucking firms.

One teamster official said the offer to arbitrate the five cent wage issue between the union and the Western Pennsylvania Motor Carriers Association "is out the window."

Army Recruiters Enlist 18 Men

Captain Laurence M. Bairstowe, commander of the local Army Recruiting force, stated yesterday that 18 area men had enlisted in the Regular Army yesterday.

Two Cumberland men, Cambridge Graham Statler, 522 City View Terrace, and William Kenneth True, signed as a corporal at the New Cumberland, Pa., Disciplinary Barracks, and as a private in the engineers respectively. Both enlistments were for three years.

Threey ear Air Force enlistments included Percy Edward Edmondson, Keyser, Alvin Robert Miller, John Patrick Lynch, William Burns Hanson, and Charles Leatherman, all of Vesternport, and George Edward Winkler, Barton. All of the recruits with the exception of Winkler were 1947 high school graduates.

A veteran of three years and four months previous service, Robert Ellsworth McGruder, Keyser, signed for three years in the Regular Army.

Another veteran, William W. Nelson, Gunter Hotel, Frostburg, who has served one year previously, enlisted for three years in the 82nd Airborne Division.

George Thomas Hess, Eckhart, Clarence J. Zelker, Eckhart, Robert Milton Kerns, 241 Welsh Hill, Frostburg, Roy Lawrence Warn, Eckhart, enlisted for two years in the Regular Army, unassigned.

William Thomas Willison, Eckhart, and James Arthur Devore, Route 1, Frostburg, signed for three years with the 24th Infantry Division on occupation duty in Japan.

Signing for three years in the infantry, unassigned, were Eugene Aloysius Seibert, Frostburg, and Joseph Lewis, Eckhart.

Lt. George Gocke, announced yesterday that he will show Air Force films to Boy Scout Troop No. 6, at the SS. Peter and Paul Hall, Fayette Street, tonight at 7:45. The showing is open to the public.

Lacerates Scalp

Kenneth McKee, 9, 42 Roberts Place, was treated in Memorial Hospital Saturday night for a lacerated scalp after he fell from a swing at a playground near his home.

In recent years the average world cotton crop has been above 25,000,000 bales. Prior to recent curtailment of acreage, the United States contributed about 15,000,000, and the rest of the world about 10,000,000 bales.

Advice To The Lovelorn

Small Town Girl Advised To Start "Canteen" in Community

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am of high school age and live in a small town, and if you don't do and talk like the other girls, you're just a snob, or stuck up, and I'm sick of it. Many of the girls in this town think it's big to swear, drink and smoke and stay out late, and they brag about it. And if a boy keeps his hair combed and wears a suit, he's just a sissy, and if you go with him it's because you can't get anyone else. That's what the girls think.

So when the girls won't have anything to do with them if they're clean and not drinking, the boys start to dress sloppy and drink, and talk about the different affairs they've had with girls—which they didn't have at all—the way the girls like them to do.

So I'm not going with anyone now. If I can't find a boy who's nice and has respect for me, I don't want any at all.

KEITH.

Dear Keith:

If things are as bad as you say they are in your town, then I think you're doing just right to refuse to have anything to do with so foolish and vulgar a crowd of boys and girls.

But somehow it's hard for me to believe that there wouldn't be some other young people in your community, even if only a few, who have the same sort of standards that you have. Don't you think you could find some if you really made a point of looking around for them?

I think you'd be a very smart girl if you, and one or two others who feel as you do, would go and talk this problem over with some older person in your town—one of your high school teachers that you all like, the woman in charge of your local YWCA, or some other adult that you trust. You might be able, with the help and advice of such a person, to develop something brand-new in your community in the way of a young peoples' "canteen" or other club that would give the town's boys and girls a whole new set of ideas and interests. Why not try it?

Teamsters May Reject Arbitration Offer

Union leaders yesterday were reported as unofficially opposing the use of arbitration in the settlement of a Pittsburgh teamsters strike which is idling Pittsburgh routes of Cumberland area trucking firms.

One teamster official said the offer to arbitrate the five cent wage issue between the union and the Western Pennsylvania Motor Carriers Association "is out the window."

Army Recruiters Enlist 18 Men

Captain Laurence M. Bairstowe, commander of the local Army Recruiting force, stated yesterday that 18 area men had enlisted in the Regular Army yesterday.

Two Cumberland men, Cambridge Graham Statler, 522 City View Terrace, and William Kenneth True, signed as a corporal at the New Cumberland, Pa., Disciplinary Barracks, and as a private in the engineers respectively. Both enlistments were for three years.

Threey ear Air Force enlistments included Percy Edward Edmondson, Keyser, Alvin Robert Miller, John Patrick Lynch, William Burns Hanson, and Charles Leatherman, all of Vesternport, and George Edward Winkler, Barton. All of the recruits with the exception of Winkler were 1947 high school graduates.

A veteran of three years and four months previous service, Robert Ellsworth McGruder, Keyser, signed for three years in the Regular Army.

Another veteran, William W. Nelson, Gunter Hotel, Frostburg, who has served one year previously, enlisted for three years in the 82nd Airborne Division.

George Thomas Hess, Eckhart, Clarence J. Zelker, Eckhart, Robert Milton Kerns, 241 Welsh Hill, Frostburg, Roy Lawrence Warn, Eckhart, enlisted for two years in the Regular Army, unassigned.

William Thomas Willison, Eckhart, and James Arthur Devore, Route 1, Frostburg, signed for three years with the 24th Infantry Division on occupation duty in Japan.

Signing for three years in the infantry, unassigned, were Eugene Aloysius Seibert, Frostburg, and Joseph Lewis, Eckhart.

Lt. George Gocke, announced yesterday that he will show Air Force films to Boy Scout Troop No. 6, at the SS. Peter and Paul Hall, Fayette Street, tonight at 7:45. The showing is open to the public.

KEEPING UP WITH

HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, July 20 — While Zane Grey was alive his stories written about the West made wonderful movies. Even after his death they continued to be filmed.

Judy Garland

Now his family has formed their own motion picture organization to be known as Telepictures, Inc. Mrs. Grey, widow of the writer, and their son, Romer, are vice - presidents, while Stephen Slesinger, New York publisher, is president.

All the story properties created by Grey, including 47 which have never been published, will be filmed. Except in one or two instances, all the rights will revert to the Grey family within a few months. This new company will cover radio, television, and all other rights, and I've been told that they had some very fine offers to release the so popular stories of the West.

I have a hot hunch that if Harry Cohn is really dusting off "Burlesque" for Larry Parks—all their troubles will be over the hill. Larry, who is plenty unhappy, wants the role of the hoofer (recently revived on Broadway by Bert Lahr) more than anything in the world. And I say it's a swell idea.

If my friend Harry is not fooling around with this idea—how come he turned down $250,000 from Warners who would like it for Jack Carson? Considering that Harry only paid $25,000 when he bought "Burlesque" from Paramount, he must have something up his sleeve.

Larry isn't the easiest boy in the world to cast following "The Jolson Story—but "Burlesque" might solve everything. Janis Carter is the girl being whispered for the part Barbara Stanwyck once played and which Jean Parker revived.

Gian-Carlo Menotti, whose two operettas, "The Medium" and "The Telephone", have created such a sensation in the East, is bringing his talents to the screen.

I was very interested to hear that Menotti has signed a contract to direct and write for MGM. I call that a coup in getting him.

"The Telephone" is a one-act comedy, with music, while "The Medium" is in two acts. I really don't suppose they should be called operettas, because they are scarcely long enough, but they are so completely charming. He's a very talented composer.

Latest bulletin on Judy Garland is both good—and bad. The bad part is that little Judy left Saturday for a sanatorium in the East where she must remain for two months or longer.

The good part is—the doctors assure MGM that she will be completely well following this rest.

She has been a very sick, nervous girl on the verge of a breakdown and it was thought advisable for her to have a change of scene. Vincente Minnelli has been devotion itself to her all through these trying days.

Chatter in Hollywood: Well, I checked one story and a plum fell in my lap. I called Jane Greer to ask if Eddie Lasker, son of Albert Lasker, would accompany her on location. She said, "No, it's not true."

"Are you marrying Eddie?" I asked.

She said, "Yes, I am. We have set no date but I expect to marry him."

Well congratulations Jane and Eddie. Jane is the ex-Mrs. Rudy Vallee, and is one of RKO's best bets.

I do hope Gloria De Haven will get the lead opposite Donald O'Connor in "Are You With It". She's the hottest girl under consideration at the moment. Well, I'm sure if Gloria could get a job, it would be the most wonderful thing in the world.

She left MGM and is now freelancing, and I believe her only trouble in the world was her worry over not getting the parts she felt she deserved. This would really set her up right.

Charles Le Maire has finally succeeded in convincing the academy group to give awards to the Hollywood designers. They would come under the art directors group.

All of Hollywood's designers who create styles for the stars, would be eligible—Orry Kelly, Eddie Stevenson, Travis Banton, Irene, Edith Head.

Personally, I think it's a very good idea. Certainly some of the clothes designed by these artists are outstanding and should be given recognition.

I was talking to Darryl Zanuck the other evening, and he told me he had brought Dr. Sidney Tamarino and his wife, who is a doctor, here for "The Snake Pit", so there will be no criticism of the scenes in the insane asylum and of the mentally sick heroine.

Must be strange for Olivia De Havilland to play a heroine who is mentally sick. Joan Crawford was awfully good in "Possessed" as a schizophrenic. Goodness, how times do change, when our glamour girls are willing, for the sake of their art, to play an insane character.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

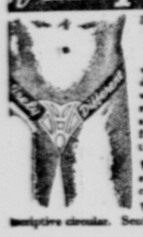

'Tis whispered that Dorothy Hart Paley has a very serious romance in New York. For a long time she was so heartbroken after she and Bill Paley separated.

Gertrude Lawrence will not do the new Charlot revue, which Bea Lillie and Jack Buchanan tried to talk her into doing. But Bea and Jack are delighted with the idea and have not given it up, by any means.

In the United States, in 1946, there were 231 fewer non-military hospitals than in 1945. Government hospitals have 73.7 per cent of all hospital beds in the country.

The good part is—the doctors assure MGM that she will be completely well following this rest.

She has been a very sick, nervous girl on the verge of a breakdown and it was thought advisable for her to have a change of scene. Vincente Minnelli has been devotion itself to her all through these trying days.

Chatter in Hollywood: Well, I checked one story and a plum fell in my lap. I called Jane Greer to ask if Eddie Lasker, son of Albert Lasker, would accompany her on location. She said, "No, it's not true."

"Are you marrying Eddie?" I asked.

She said, "Yes, I am. We have set no date but I expect to marry him."

Well congratulations Jane and Eddie. Jane is the ex-Mrs. Rudy Vallee, and is one of RKO's best bets.

I do hope Gloria De Haven will get the lead opposite Donald O'Connor in "Are You With It". She's the hottest girl under consideration at the moment. Well, I'm sure if Gloria could get a job, it would be the most wonderful thing in the world.

She left MGM and is now freelancing, and I believe her only trouble in the world was her worry over not getting the parts she felt she deserved. This would really set her up right.

Charles Le Maire has finally succeeded in convincing the academy group to give awards to the Hollywood designers. They would come under the art directors group.

All of Hollywood's designers who create styles for the stars, would be eligible—Orry Kelly, Eddie Stevenson, Travis Banton, Irene, Edith Head.

Personally, I think it's a very good idea. Certainly some of the clothes designed by these artists are outstanding and should be given recognition.

I was talking to Darryl Zanuck the other evening, and he told me he had brought Dr. Sidney Tamarino and his wife, who is a doctor, here for "The Snake Pit", so there will be no criticism of the scenes in the insane asylum and of the mentally sick heroine.

Must be strange for Olivia De Havilland to play a heroine who is mentally sick. Joan Crawford was awfully good in "Possessed" as a schizophrenic. Goodness, how times do change, when our glamour girls are willing, for the sake of their art, to play an insane character.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

'Tis whispered that Dorothy Hart Paley has a very serious romance in New York. For a long time she was so heartbroken after she and Bill Paley separated.

Gertrude Lawrence will not do the new Charlot revue, which Bea Lillie and Jack Buchanan tried to talk her into doing. But Bea and Jack are delighted with the idea and have not given it up, by any means.

In the United States, in 1946, there were 231 fewer non-military hospitals than in 1945. Government hospitals have 73.7 per cent of all hospital beds in the country.

Two Instructors Are Appointed To College Faculty

Training School Teacher Resigns

By RUDOLPH NICKEL

FROSTBURG, July 21—Miss Lillian C. Compton, president of State Teachers College, Frostburg, has announced the resignation of a teacher in the college elementary training school and the appointment of two new instructors to the staff of the college.

Dr. Sherman B. Barnes has accepted a position as professor of European History for the coming college term. He received his Bachelor's degree from Columbia University, and his Ph. D. from Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y. He has taught at the University of North Carolina, Cornell University, Southern Illinois Normal University, Carnegie Institute of Technology and his most recent position has been at Kent University, Kent, O.

Another addition to the college staff will be Mrs. Lucile Naff Clay who will instruct English. Mrs. Clay received her A. B. degree from Transylvania University and her master's degree from University of Kentucky. She has taught at Transylvania University, the University of Kentucky and Ashland College. Mrs. Clay is a member of the American Association of University Women.

Miss Ruby Ann Dahlgren, who has been on the faculty of the college elementary school since 1936, has resigned to accept a position at the new Loch Raven School in Baltimore County.

Miss Dahlgren, who is a graduate of State Teachers College, Frostburg, received her A. B. degree from the University of Maryland and her master's degree from Columbia. At present she is studying at Columbia during the summer to complete work on a Doctor of Education degree.

Evictions Filed

At a hearing today in Trial Magistrate's court on the first eviction summons served on Howard Davis and John Booth, who occupy apartments in the building on East Main Street purchased by Mr. and Mrs. Steve Karras, both tenants were ordered by Magistrate James P. Kennedy to vacate not later than July 31. Three other occupants who were summoned did not appear at the hearing. They were Mrs. Mary Layton, Edward Stott and Joseph Rafferty. A second summons in eviction was ordered served on Mrs. Layton, Rafferty and Stott, returnable Tuesday, July 29, when they will receive a hearing.

Mr. and Mrs. Karras, who moved here from Keyser, W. Va., and purchased the building from Myer Korns, stated today that they have been trying to get complete possession of the building since January, 1947, when they purchased it, for the purpose of making repairs and remodeling the second and third floors.

Garrett County Man Fined

Lawrence Anthony Minnick, Long Stretch, Garrett County, was given a hearing in Trial Magistrate's court today on charges of reckless driving and driving a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor. He was fined $10 and costs on the first charge and $100 and costs on the second, making a total of $111.50. He pleaded guilty to both charges and paid the fine and costs. Minnick was arrested on Sunday at 12:30 a. m., by Trooper G. M. Rotruck. He was tried before Magistrate James P. Kenney.

Frostburg Briefs

The annual Sunday school picnic of St. Paul's Lutheran Church will be held Thursday, July 31, at the Celanese Pool. Plans for the affair are being made by the officers and teachers of the Sunday school.

The Frostburg Homemakers will meet Tuesday, July 22, at the home of Mrs. Alberta Wellings, 168 Bowery Street.

A funeral service for Harry E. Wilson, 219 Maple Street, who died Sunday morning, will be held Wednesday, 2:30 p. m., at the residence, with Rev. Walter D. Mehrling, pastor of Zion Evangelical and Reformed Church, officiating. Burial will be in Allegany Cemetery.

Mrs. G. Gale Townsend, chairman of the drive to raise funds for the American Cancer Society, reports that $453.62 has been received to date. The fund was raised from volunteer contributions at local theatres. Mrs. Townsend was assisted by David Willetts, who served as treasurer, and a group of local girls who did the soliciting.

Personals

Rev. and Mrs. George L. Wehler, Broadway, left yesterday to spend two weeks with relatives in York County, Pa.

Mrs. Grant Durst and two children and Miss Delores Lemmert, this city, left Sunday to spend four weeks at Rehoboth Beach, Del. They will be joined later by Mr. Durst, who will spend two weeks there.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph O'Connor returned to Baltimore after spending a week with Mrs. John Stevens, Grahamtown.

Mr. and Mrs. William R. Murphy and son, Green Cone Springs, Fla., are visiting the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Marion Murphy, Maple Street. Murphy is assigned to the 16th Fleet, U. S. Navy, Florida Group.

Samuel Pfaff, who is employed on the staff of the Maryland State Police, Cecil County, visited relatives there recently.

5 Westernport Youths Arrested For Fighting

Five Westernport youths, arrested Sunday after a fracas with a group of men, were released from County Jail yesterday on bond of $12.50 each. They are charged with disturbing the peace.

Identified as Roy E. Dayton, Jr., Earl G. Kalbaugh, Alvin Fazenbaker, Richard Moran and Richard A. Michaels, the youths said the argument was started by the other group of men who were not identified.

They will be given a hearing before Magistrate John Laughlin at Westernport.

CHANGES MADE—The faculty of State Teachers College, Frostburg, will be enlarged by the addition of two instructors and a vacancy exists in the college elementary school by the resignation of Miss Ruby Ann Dahlgren. Miss Dahlgren, (left), who has been a teacher in the training school since 1936, has resigned to accept a position at the new Loch Raven School in Baltimore County. Coming here from Kent University, Kent, O., Dr. Sherman B. Barnes, (center), will join the history department of the college and Mrs. Lucile Naff Clay, (right), will instruct college English courses. She has taught at Transylvania College, University of Kentucky and Ashland College.

Parsons Man Dies As Result Of Fall Over 30-Foot Bank

Thomas Digman's Body Is Found

By MRS HELEN COLLETT

PARSONS, W. Va., July 21 — The third fatal accident in two weeks in Parsons occurred early Sunday morning when a Parsons resident Thomas Digman, 62, was found dead at the bottom of a 30 foot embankment.

Dr. Guy Michael, who examined the body, said that death was due to his spinal column being fractured in two places as a result of the fall.

According to Tucker County Sheriff D. E. Crosten, the man had been last seen in the living room of Luther Phillip's home, where he was visiting, listening to the radio late Saturday night. He was found Sunday morning by Walter Plum at the bottom of a 30 foot cliff which was between Parsons' High School and Plum's home along State Route 72.

Authorities report that no inquest will be held as the man had probably stumbled and accidentally fallen down the embankment. There was no evidence of foul play, police said.

Mr. Digman worked for many years for the Armor Leather Company in Parsons and recently had been employed at a saw mill. He is survived by the following children, Clayton and Charles Digman, and Mrs. Clarence Barr, all of Parsons; and Gerald Digman, Baltimore; and Wilson Digman, Washington; three brothers, L. D. Digman, Elkins; Dave Digman, Belington; and Harry Digman, Montrose, W. Va.; one half brother, William J. Digman, Parsons; four sisters, Mrs. L. L. Gainer, Elkins, Mrs. B. K. Gainer, Montrose; and Mrs. Nola Wilson and Mrs. Isora Carroll, Akron, O.

A funeral service will be held in Greelies Funeral Home tomorrow at 2:30 p. m. with Rev. W. R. Nelson, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Parsons, officiating. Interment will be in Parsons Cemetery.

Thomas H. Carney Killed By Train In Keyser Yards

Thomas Herbert Carney, 57, a B. and O. brakeman, was found dead and his body badly mangled yesterday morning about 7:15 a. m. east of the "Hump" office in the Keyser yard, by W. H. Switzer.

The body was pinned underneath a car. Carney had been working with a yard crew and had hooked up a train of cars and was walking along the No. 5 track at the "Hump" to see that all the cars were coupled. He was apparently struck by a cut of cars coming from the "Hump" down No. 5 track, officers said. No one witnessed the accident.

The man's clothing had caught on one of the cars and he was dragged approximately 350 yards.

Dr. W. A. Flick, who made an examination of the body said Carney had been dead from 15 to 20 minutes. His right leg was severed between the knee and ankle, and he also suffered a fracture of the ribs on the left side, a broken back, internal injuries and lacerations and abrasions of the head and face. An inquest will be held Thursday by a coroner's jury.

Carney was a native of Crellin, Md., the son of the late John and Bridget (Faherty) Carney. He was born at Hutton, Md., and had been rooming at the home of Mrs. Alice Rhodes, Argyle Street, Keysr.

He is survived by a sister, Miss Mary Carney, Crellin, and a brother, John Carney, address unknown.

The body was taken to Oakland yesterday afternoon, where funeral services will be held Wednesday. Interment will be in St. Peter's Cemetery, Oakland.

Barton High Graduate Receives Recognition

William Ray Myers, a student at Strayer College of Accountancy, Washington, has been chosen to become a member of Sigma Eta Sigma, Strayer Honorary Scholastic Fraternity. The students must maintain a high scholastic standing in order to be eligible for the fraternity.

Myers was salutatorian of the 1946 graduating class of Barton High School and received several other awards for outstanding work in school.

The new members of Sigma Eta Sigma were dinner guests of Edmond S. Donoho, president of Strayer College, at the Statler Hotel last Thursday evening where the initiation ceremony took place.

Myers is a son of Mrs. Katherine Shaw Myers, Moscow.

Reich Reparations Total 10 Million

BERLIN — (AP) — Reparations equipment valued at almost $10 million has been allocated from 95 German war plants to the western allied nations and Russia, the American military government has announced.

The machinery removed as reparations represents industrial capital equipment which can be used for peacetime production.

Ethelyn McIntyre Becomes Bride Of Howard Warnick

Couple Married At Bride's Home

By GEORGS W. DADDYSMAN

WESTERNPORT, July 21 — Mr. and Mrs. David McIntyre, Jr., Walnut Street, Westernport, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Ethelyn Louise McIntyre, to Howard Mason Warnick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Warnick, of near Bloomington, Md. The couple were married Saturday, July 12, at 7:30 p. m., at the home of the bride's parents. Rev. Philip M. Cory, pastor of the Piedmont Presbyterian Church, performed the double ring ceremony.

Mrs. Burton Thomas, Frostburg, cousin of the bride, was matron of honor and Gilbert Warnick, McMullen Highway, was his brother's best man.

Miss Helen McIntyre, cousin of the bride, played a prelude of nuptial music and the traditional wedding marches.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a street length dress of light blue crepe and a corsage of pink rosebuds. The matron of honor was attired in a printed jersey dress with corsage of pink rosebuds.

The bride is a graduate of Bruce High School, Westernport, class of 1945 and attended Catherman's Business School, Cumberland. She is employed in the office of the Luke plant of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company. Mr. Warnick, who is employed at the Luke Paper Company, served four years during World War II in the Medical Corps and Military Police.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. The house was decorated with ferns and white daisies. A large wedding cake with a miniature bride and bridegroom adorned the table. Mrs. Alice Schaidt and Mrs. Margaret Frenzel were in charge of the serving.

Out of town guests included Mrs. Alice Schaidt, Mrs. Margaret Frenzel and Mrs. James Stevenson, Cleveland, O.

Mr. and Mrs. Warnick will reside with the bride's parents until their apartment on West Hampshire Street, Piedmont, is completed.

Celebrate Golden Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. Louis J. Heiland, who were married July 4, 1897, in the parsonage of the Presbyterian Church, Keyser, by Rev. Moore, recently celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary with a family dinner at their home, 108 Cromer Street, Westernport.

Mrs. Heiland, a daughter of the late John W. and Martha (Fazenbaker) Lee, who was born at Westernport, is a past chief of Calanthe Temple No. 8, Pythian Sisters, Piedmont of which she is a charter member; a past noble grand of Miriam Rebekah Lodge No. 16, Westernport; also a member of Westernport Council No. 75, Daughters of America; Daughters of the Pochontas and Mt. Calvary Lutheran Church, Westernport.

Mr. Heiland was born on Phoenix Hill near Westernport, a son of the late Louis J. Heilant, Sr., and Marie (Berg) Heiland. He has been a member of Lafayette Lodge No. 3 Knights of Pythias, 52 years and two years ago was presented with a certificate of life membership. He also belongs to Mt. Calvary Lutheran Church.

Mr. Heiland operated a blacksmith shop on Washington Street, Westernport, for many years and on May 21, 1908, while employed in the blacksmith shop of the W. D. Althouse Phoenix Mine near Westernport, was injured in an explosion of dynamite. He has been retired since that time. His wife has been engaged in practical nursing over 35 years here and is well known.

The couple has two daughters: Mrs. Marie Harlan, San Diego, Cal., and Mrs. Fred Zachgo, Gore, Va. They have two grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

Thomas H. Lee, Keyser, is a brother of Mrs. Heiland and Mrs. A. S. Cosner, Piedmont, and Mrs. Nettie Dawson, Tunnelton, W. Va., are sisters. Mr. Heiland is the last member of his family.

Among those attending the family dinner were Mr. and Mrs. Earl Hopkins and sons, Harold, William and Michael, Annapolis, Md., and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lee, Keyser.

Items In Brief

An electric eye has been installed by the Potomas Light and Power Company at their Franklin sub-station near Westernport. When it becomes dark the lights automatically turn on and when it becomes daylight turns them off.

The first degree upon a class of candidates will be conferred by Philos Lodge No. 91, I. O. O. F., Westernport, at Petersburg, Saturday August 2. The Keyser lodge will give the initiary degree. The ceremonies will begin in the afternoon and conclude in the evening.

Past Grands Association will hold an all day picnic at Ted Kesner's cabin, Minco Park, Saturday, July 26.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul McCoy and family, Wood Street, left this morning for Boone, N. C., where Mrs. McCoy will attend the library workshop of the Appalachian State Teachers College there.

The tax collector will be at the City Building Tuesday, July 22, from 1 to 4:30 p. m. to receive state and county taxes.

Mrs. Louise Morgan Troy, Of Keyser, Dies In Washington

Was The Widow Of Frank Troy

KEYSER, July 21—Mrs. Louise Morgan Troy, probably the oldest resident of Keyser, died this morning at 10:45 at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Carl W. Condron, Sr., 43 North F Street. She had been critically ill for the past five weeks.

Relatives did not give Mrs. Troy's age, but she had lived in Keyser since 1870, when she came here to work in the A. W. Coffroth tailor shop.

She was the widow of Frank Troy, who died in 1899. She was born in Rocky Mount, Franklin County, Va., the daughter of the late Capt. John William Morgan and Martha Richards Morgan. She was the last of her generation.

Two Instructors Are Appointed To College Faculty

Training School Teacher Resigns

By RUDOLPH NICKEL

FROSTBURG, July 21—Miss Lillian C. Compton, president of State Teachers College, Frostburg, has announced the resignation of a teacher in the college elementary training school and the appointment of two new instructors to the staff of the college.

Dr. Sherman B. Barnes has accepted a position as professor of European History for the coming college term. He received his Bachelor's degree from Columbia University, and his Ph. D. from Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y. He has taught at the University of North Carolina, Cornell University, Southern Illinois Normal University, Carnegie Institute of Technology and his most recent position has been at Kent University, Kent, O.

Another addition to the college staff will be Mrs. Lucile Naff Clay who will instruct English. Mrs. Clay received her A. B. degree from Transylvania University and her master's degree from University of Kentucky. She has taught at Transylvania University, the University of Kentucky and Ashland College. Mrs. Clay is a member of the American Association of University Women.

Miss Ruby Ann Dahlgren, who has been on the faculty of the college elementary school since 1936, has resigned to accept a position at the new Loch Raven School in Baltimore County.

Miss Dahlgren, who is a graduate of State Teachers College, Frostburg, received her A. B. degree from the University of Maryland and her master's degree from Columbia. At present she is studying at Columbia during the summer to complete work on a Doctor of Education degree.

Evictions Filed

At a hearing today in Trial Magistrate's court on the first eviction summons served on Howard Davis and John Booth, who occupy apartments in the building on East Main Street purchased by Mr. and Mrs. Steve Karras, both tenants were ordered by Magistrate James P. Kennedy to vacate not later than July 31. Three other occupants who were summoned did not appear at the hearing. They were Mrs. Mary Layton, Edward Stott and Joseph Rafferty. A second summons in eviction was ordered served on Mrs. Layton, Rafferty and Stott, returnable Tuesday, July 29, when they will receive a hearing.

Mr. and Mrs. Karras, who moved here from Keyser, W. Va., and purchased the building from Myer Korns, stated today that they have been trying to get complete possession of the building since January, 1947, when they purchased it, for the purpose of making repairs and remodeling the second and third floors.

Garrett County Man Fined

Lawrence Anthony Minnick, Long Stretch, Garrett County, was given a hearing in Trial Magistrate's court today on charges of reckless driving and driving a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor. He was fined $10 and costs on the first charge and $100 and costs on the second, making a total of $111.50. He pleaded guilty to both charges and paid the fine and costs. Minnick was arrested on Sunday at 12:30 a. m., by Trooper G. M. Rotruck. He was tried before Magistrate James P. Kenney.

Frostburg Briefs

The annual Sunday school picnic of St. Paul's Lutheran Church will be held Thursday, July 31, at the Celanese Pool. Plans for the affair are being made by the officers and teachers of the Sunday school.

The Frostburg Homemakers will meet Tuesday, July 22, at the home of Mrs. Alberta Wellings, 168 Bowery Street.

A funeral service for Harry E. Wilson, 219 Maple Street, who died Sunday morning, will be held Wednesday, 2:30 p. m., at the residence, with Rev. Walter D. Mehrling, pastor of Zion Evangelical and Reformed Church, officiating. Burial will be in Allegany Cemetery.

Mrs. G. Gale Townsend, chairman of the drive to raise funds for the American Cancer Society, reports that $453.62 has been received to date. The fund was raised from volunteer contributions at local theatres. Mrs. Townsend was assisted by David Willetts, who served as treasurer, and a group of local girls who did the soliciting.

Personals

Rev. and Mrs. George L. Wehler, Broadway, left yesterday to spend two weeks with relatives in York County, Pa.

Mrs. Grant Durst and two children and Miss Delores Lemmert, this city, left Sunday to spend four weeks at Rehoboth Beach, Del. They will be joined later by Mr. Durst, who will spend two weeks there.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph O'Connor returned to Baltimore after spending a week with Mrs. John Stevens, Grahamtown.

Mr. and Mrs. William R. Murphy and son, Green Cone Springs, Fla., are visiting the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Marion Murphy, Maple Street. Murphy is assigned to the 16th Fleet, U. S. Navy, Florida Group.

5 Westernport Youths Arrested For Fighting

Five Westernport youths, arrested Sunday after a fracas with a group of men, were released from County Jail yesterday on bond of $12.50 each. They are charged with disturbing the peace.

Identified as Roy E. Dayton, Jr., Earl G. Kalbaugh, Alvin Fazenbaker, Richard Moran and Richard A. Michaels, the youths said the argument was started by the other group of men who were not identified.

They will be given a hearing before Magistrate John Laughlin at Westernport.

CHANGES MADE—The faculty of State Teachers College, Frostburg, will be enlarged by the addition of two instructors and a vacancy exists in the college elementary school by the resignation of Miss Ruby Ann Dahlgren. Miss Dahlgren, (left), who has been a teacher in the training school since 1936, has resigned to accept a position at the new Loch Raven School in Baltimore County. Coming here from Kent University, Kent, O., Dr. Sherman B. Barnes, (center), will join the history department of the college and Mrs. Lucile Naff Clay, (right), will instruct college English courses. She has taught at Transylvania College, University of Kentucky and Ashland College.

Parsons Man Dies As Result Of Fall Over 30-Foot Bank

By MRS HELEN COLLETT

PARSONS, W. Va., July 21 — The third fatal accident in two weeks in Parsons occurred early Sunday morning when a Parsons resident Thomas Digman, 62, was found dead at the bottom of a 30 foot embankment.

Dr. Guy Michael, who examined the body, said that death was due to his spinal column being fractured in two places as a result of the fall.

According to Tucker County Sheriff D. E. Crosten, the man had been last seen in the living room of Luther Phillip's home, where he was visiting, listening to the radio late Saturday night. He was found Sunday morning by Walter Plum at the bottom of a 30 foot cliff which was between Parsons' High School and Plum's home along State Route 72.

Authorities report that no inquest will be held as the man had probably stumbled and accidentally fallen down the embankment. There was no evidence of foul play, police said.

Mr. Digman worked for many years for the Armor Leather Company in Parsons and recently had been employed at a saw mill. He is survived by the following children, Clayton and Charles Digman, and Mrs. Clarence Barr, all of Parsons; and Gerald Digman, Baltimore; and Wilson Digman, Washington; three brothers, L. D. Digman, Elkins; Dave Digman, Belington; and Harry Digman, Montrose, W. Va.; one half brother, William J. Digman, Parsons; four sisters, Mrs. L. L. Gainer, Elkins, Mrs. B. K. Gainer, Montrose; and Mrs. Nola Wilson and Mrs. Isora Carroll, Akron, O.

A funeral service will be held in Greelies Funeral Home tomorrow at 2:30 p. m. with Rev. W. R. Nelson, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Parsons, officiating. Interment will be in Parsons Cemetery.

Thomas H. Carney Killed By Train In Keyser Yards

Thomas Herbert Carney, 57, a B. and O. brakeman, was found dead and his body badly mangled yesterday morning about 7:15 a. m. east of the "Hump" office in the Keyser yard, by W. H. Switzer.

The body was pinned underneath a car. Carney had been working with a yard crew and had hooked up a train of cars and was walking along the No. 5 track at the "Hump" to see that all the cars were coupled. He was apparently struck by a cut of cars coming from the "Hump" down No. 5 track, officers said. No one witnessed the accident.

The man's clothing had caught on one of the cars and he was dragged approximately 350 yards.

Dr. W. A. Flick, who made an examination of the body said Carney had been dead from 15 to 20 minutes. His right leg was severed between the knee and ankle, and he also suffered a fracture of the ribs on the left side, a broken back, internal injuries and lacerations and abrasions of the head and face. An inquest will be held Thursday by a coroner's jury.

Carney was a native of Crellin, Md., the son of the late John and Bridget (Faherty) Carney. He was born at Hutton, Md., and had been rooming at the home of Mrs. Alice Rhodes, Argyle Street, Keysr.

He is survived by a sister, Miss Mary Carney, Crellin, and a brother, John Carney, address unknown.

The body was taken to Oakland yesterday afternoon, where funeral services will be held Wednesday. Interment will be in St. Peter's Cemetery, Oakland.

Ethelyn McIntyre Becomes Bride Of Howard Warnick

Couple Married At Bride's Home

By GEORGS W. DADDYSMAN

WESTERNPORT, July 21 — Mr. and Mrs. David McIntyre, Jr., Walnut Street, Westernport, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Ethelyn Louise McIntyre, to Howard Mason Warnick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Warnick, of near Bloomington, Md. The couple were married Saturday, July 12, at 7:30 p. m., at the home of the bride's parents. Rev. Philip M. Cory, pastor of the Piedmont Presbyterian Church, performed the double ring ceremony.

Mrs. Burton Thomas, Frostburg, cousin of the bride, was matron of honor and Gilbert Warnick, McMullen Highway, was his brother's best man.

Miss Helen McIntyre, cousin of the bride, played a prelude of nuptial music and the traditional wedding marches.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a street length dress of light blue crepe and a corsage of pink rosebuds. The matron of honor was attired in a printed jersey dress with corsage of pink rosebuds.

The bride is a graduate of Bruce High School, Westernport, class of 1945 and attended Catherman's Business School, Cumberland. She is employed in the office of the Luke plant of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company. Mr. Warnick, who is employed at the Luke Paper Company, served four years during World War II in the Medical Corps and Military Police.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. The house was decorated with ferns and white daisies. A large wedding cake with a miniature bride and bridegroom adorned the table. Mrs. Alice Schaidt and Mrs. Margaret Frenzel were in charge of the serving.

Out of town guests included Mrs. Alice Schaidt, Mrs. Margaret Frenzel and Mrs. James Stevenson, Cleveland, O.

Mr. and Mrs. Warnick will reside with the bride's parents until their apartment on West Hampshire Street, Piedmont, is completed.

Celebrate Golden Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. Louis J. Heiland, who were married July 4, 1897, in the parsonage of the Presbyterian Church, Keyser, by Rev. Moore, recently celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary with a family dinner at their home, 108 Cromer Street, Westernport.

Mrs. Heiland, a daughter of the late John W. and Martha (Fazenbaker) Lee, who was born at Westernport, is a past chief of Calanthe Temple No. 8, Pythian Sisters, Piedmont of which she is a charter member; a past noble grand of Miriam Rebekah Lodge No. 16, Westernport; also a member of Westernport Council No. 75, Daughters of America; Daughters of the Pochontas and Mt. Calvary Lutheran Church, Westernport.

Mr. Heiland was born on Phoenix Hill near Westernport, a son of the late Louis J. Heilant, Sr., and Marie (Berg) Heiland. He has been a member of Lafayette Lodge No. 3 Knights of Pythias, 52 years and two years ago was presented with a certificate of life membership. He also belongs to Mt. Calvary Lutheran Church.

Mr. Heiland operated a blacksmith shop on Washington Street, Westernport, for many years and on May 21, 1908, while employed in the blacksmith shop of the W. D. Althouse Phoenix Mine near Westernport, was injured in an explosion of dynamite. He has been retired since that time. His wife has been engaged in practical nursing over 35 years here and is well known.

The couple has two daughters: Mrs. Marie Harlan, San Diego, Cal., and Mrs. Fred Zachgo, Gore, Va. They have two grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

Thomas H. Lee, Keyser, is a brother of Mrs. Heiland and Mrs. A. S. Cosner, Piedmont, and Mrs. Nettie Dawson, Tunnelton, W. Va., are sisters. Mr. Heiland is the last member of his family.

Among those attending the family dinner were Mr. and Mrs. Earl Hopkins and sons, Harold, William and Michael, Annapolis, Md., and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lee, Keyser.

Items In Brief

An electric eye has been installed by the Potomas Light and Power Company at their Franklin sub-station near Westernport. When it becomes dark the lights automatically turn on and when it becomes daylight turns them off.

The first degree upon a class of candidates will be conferred by Philos Lodge No. 91, I. O. O. F., Westernport, at Petersburg, Saturday August 2. The Keyser lodge will give the initiary degree. The ceremonies will begin in the afternoon and conclude in the evening.

Mrs. Louise Morgan Troy, Of Keyser, Dies In Washington

Was The Widow Of Frank Troy

KEYSER, July 21—Mrs. Louise Morgan Troy, probably the oldest resident of Keyser, died this morning at 10:45 at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Carl W. Condron, Sr., 43 North F Street. She had been critically ill for the past five weeks.

Relatives did not give Mrs. Troy's age, but she had lived in Keyser since 1870, when she came here to work in the A. W. Coffroth tailor shop.

She was the widow of Frank Troy, who died in 1899. She was born in Rocky Mount, Franklin County, Va., the daughter of the late Capt. John William Morgan and Martha Richards Morgan. She was the last of her generation.

Besides Mrs. Condron, Mrs. Troy is survived by another daughter, Mrs. M. R. Herndon, Spring Street, and one son, Frank Troy, Dawson, Md. Eighteen grandchildren and 11 great-grandchildren also survive. She was a member of the Church of the Assumption.

The body will be taken to the home of Mrs. Condron, 43 North F Street, Tuesday morning. Services will be conducted from the Church of the Assumption, James Street, Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock, by Rev. Father Kenneth Rizer. Interment will be made in Queens Point Cemetery.

Navy Uses New Plastic To Line Water Tanks

NEW YORK—(AP)—The U. S. Navy is using a war-developed plastic which is extraordinarily moisture-resistant to line fresh water tanks of its destroyers, the American Can Company, manufacturer of the material, has revealed.

The plastic was developed by company scientists for use as a lining of tin cans. It is being used today commercially in the side seams of tin containers for products which do not generate internal pressure.

The first machine invented to undercut coal in mines to take the place of laborious hand picking, was deliberately wrecked by the miners who thought it would deprive them of their jobs.

RADIO IN REVIEW

By JOHN CROSBY

Moonbeams and Rogers Brothers

Either by accident or design, Silver Theater, which occupies for the summer the Old Ozzie and Harriet half-hour (C.B.S. 6 p. m. E.D.T. Sundays), presented two dramas of such striking similarity that I'd like to dwell on them a moment. The first was a story of forty-one-year-old Kenneth Holden, business man of intense respectability, who one rainy night was trapped in a cab by Jeanie, age twenty. Ah, Jeanie, there was a girl! Moonbeams in her hair. Stars in her eyes. Comets in her ears. And inter-stellar space in her handbag.

John Crosby

A rainy night, a taxicab and a whole zodiac full of charm. Any one who ever has been to the movies can tell you what a combination like that will do to a middle-aged business man, particularly when he has been married—as had Kenneth—to a nice girl whose moonbeams had long since been replaced by something more practical by Antoine. To make matters worse, they raced, Kenneth and Jeanie, the last block through the rain. (Kenneth and his wife Virginia had once raced through the rain to but that was long ago. She carries an umbrella now and takes cabs. Up they went, Kenneth and Jeanie, laughing like children to Jeanie's Greenwich village furnished room, third floor back, where Jeanie hung the poor entranced idiot out in front of the fire to dry and Debussy at him. That finished it.

After that, Virginia, a woman of great poise and magnificent understanding, sat home chewing her nails while Kenneth hung around Greenwich Village, giving his little sprite small kisses and sizable checks and listening to her moon-spun conversation. "Like when I watch the dawn come," sighs Jeanie. "I love the dawn. I love the might too." That was the sort of babe she was, impractical but quivering with romance.

Naturally it couldn't last. Virginia and Jeanie had a good talk and a good cry together and Jeanie relinquished Kenneth, only slightly damaged, to commerce and respectability. Virginia went back to arranging those stuffy dinner parties. Jeanie went on playing Debussy. It stopped raining.

So much for Drama No. 1. Now for No. 2. A middle-aged genealogist, separated though not seriously so from his wife, picks up abode in an old haunted house to dash off a little genealogy. First night on the job, he encounters a hant, a girl named Melody. Melody has been dead these hundred years but the moonbeams still glitter in her hair, the stars are still bright in her eyes, the . . . well, never mind.

It's the same old story, except that Melody, disembodied as she is, is even more moonstruck than Jeanie and doesn't require the assistance of Debussy. The two of them race through the moonlight together with such determination that the genealogist clean forgets to call his wife sitting at home by the telephone, her heart aching. This situation too is clearly implausible. ultimateliy the wife shows up and has a good heart-to-heart talk (and a good cry) with the moonstruck ghost who agrees, sobbing, to take her clammy hands off him. As a final and to me heart-rending gesture, Melody even finishes his genealogical papers, which the man had totally neglected in favor of those moonlight romps.

Now, there's nothing unusual about this story. It's been told in a variety of ways since the dawn of time. But what makes this pair of dramas particularly quaint is the fact that Silver Theater is sponsored by 1847 Rogers Brothers Silver. During the intermissions the radio audience was tactfully advised that no more handsome present for a twentieth anniversary existed than Rogers Brothers Silver.

I don't for a moment mean to suggest that Rogers Brothers broke up these romances deliberately; nevertheless, it is a fact that silver is the hallmark of marriage, not of illicit Greenwich Village romance. One doesn't want silver candlesticks in Greenwich Village; one sticks the candles in old whiskey bottles. In Greenwich Village, the spoons are from Woolworth's, the trays from Kress's—not from Rogers Brothers. And in both cases, mark you, the husbands abandoned the charming but inexpensive tableware and came home to their own sideboards, gleaming with Rogers Brothers Silver.

Goossens To Stay In Australia

AUCKLAND, New Zealand (AP)—Eugene Goossens, newly appointed director of the New South Wales Conservatorium of Music and conductor of the Sydney Symphony, said he expects to spend the rest of his life in Australia.

The English conductor, interviewed in New Zealand, said that Australia was ripe for the development of music and there was a tremendous amount of work to be done.

10,000 'Live' Mines Drift Off England

LONDON — (AP)—Fifty-five "live" coastal minefields still threaten vacationers at British seaside resorts. Some 10,000 beach mines are waiting to be cleared, many of them cannot be unearthed until thousands of tons of sand are swept away with detectors and high-pressure water jets.

In two years of clearing-work 140 British officers and engineers have been killed.

Navy Uses New Plastic To Line Water Tanks

NEW YORK—(AP)—The U. S. Navy is using a war-developed plastic which is extraordinarily moisture-resistant to line fresh water tanks of its destroyers, the American Can Company, manufacturer of the material, has revealed.

The plastic was developed by company scientists for use as a lining of tin cans. It is being used today commercially in the side seams of tin containers for products which do not generate internal pressure.

The first machine invented to undercut coal in mines to take the place of laborious hand picking, was deliberately wrecked by the miners who thought it would deprive them of their jobs.

RADIO IN REVIEW

By JOHN CROSBY

Moonbeams and Rogers Brothers

Either by accident or design, Silver Theater, which occupies for the summer the Old Ozzie and Harriet half-hour (C.B.S. 6 p. m. E.D.T. Sundays), presented two dramas of such striking similarity that I'd like to dwell on them a moment. The first was a story of forty-one-year-old Kenneth Holden, business man of intense respectability, who one rainy night was trapped in a cab by Jeanie, age twenty. Ah, Jeanie, there was a girl! Moonbeams in her hair. Stars in her eyes. Comets in her ears. And inter-stellar space in her handbag.

John Crosby

A rainy night, a taxicab and a whole zodiac full of charm. Any one who ever has been to the movies can tell you what a combination like that will do to a middle-aged business man, particularly when he has been married—as had Kenneth—to a nice girl whose moonbeams had long since been replaced by something more practical by Antoine. To make matters worse, they raced, Kenneth and Jeanie, the last block through the rain. (Kenneth and his wife Virginia had once raced through the rain to but that was long ago. She carries an umbrella now and takes cabs. Up they went, Kenneth and Jeanie, laughing like children to Jeanie's Greenwich village furnished room, third floor back, where Jeanie hung the poor entranced idiot out in front of the fire to dry and Debussy at him. That finished it.

After that, Virginia, a woman of great poise and magnificent understanding, sat home chewing her nails while Kenneth hung around Greenwich Village, giving his little sprite small kisses and sizable checks and listening to her moonspun conversation. "Like when I watch the dawn come," sighs Jeanie. "I love the dawn. I love the might too." That was the sort of babe she was, impractical but quivering with romance.

Naturally it couldn't last. Virginia and Jeanie had a good talk and a good cry together and Jeanie relinquished Kenneth, only slightly damaged, to commerce and respectability. Virginia went back to arranging those stuffy dinner parties. Jeanie went on playing Debussy. It stopped raining.

So much for Drama No. 1. Now for No. 2. A middle-aged genealogist, separated though not seriously so from his wife, picks up abode in an old haunted house to dash off a little genealogy. First night on the job, he encounters a hant, a girl named Melody. Melody has been dead these hundred years but the moonbeams still glitter in her hair, the stars are still bright in her eyes, the . . . well, never mind.

It's the same old story, except that Melody, disembodied as she is, is even more moonstruck than Jeanie and doesn't require the assistance of Debussy. The two of them race through the moonlight together with such determination that the genealogist clean forgets to call his wife sitting at home by the telephone, her heart aching. This situation too is clearly implausible, ultimately the wife shows up and has a good heart-to-heart talk (and a good cry) with the moonstruck ghost who agrees, sobbing, to take her clammy hands off him. As a final and to me heart-rending gesture, Melody even finishes his genealogical papers, which the man had totally neglected in favor of those moonlight romps.

Now, there's nothing unusual about this story. It's been told in a variety of ways since the dawn of time. But what makes this pair of dramas particularly quaint is the fact that Silver Theater is sponsored by 1847 Rogers Brothers Silver. During the intermissions the radio audience was tactfully advised that no more handsome present for a twentieth anniversary existed than Rogers Brothers Silver.

I don't for a moment mean to suggest that Rogers Brothers broke up these romances deliberately; nevertheless, it is a fact that silver is the hallmark of marriage, not of illicit Greenwich Village romance. One doesn't want silver candlesticks in Greenwich Village; one sticks the candles in old whiskey bottles. In Greenwich Village, the spoons are from Woolworth's, the trays from Kress's—not from Rogers Brothers. And in both cases, mark you, the husbands abandoned the charming but inexpensive tableware and came home to their own sideboards, gleaming with Rogers Brothers Silver.

Goossens To Stay In Australia

AUCKLAND, New Zealand (AP)—Eugene Goossens, newly appointed director of the New South Wales Conservatorium of Music and conductor of the Sydney Symphony, said he expects to spend the rest of his life in Australia.

The English conductor, interviewed in New Zealand, said that Australia was ripe for the development of music and there was a tremendous amount of work to be done.

10,000 'Live' Mines Drift Off England

LONDON — (AP)—Fifty-five "live" coastal minefields still threaten vacationers at British seaside resorts. Some 10,000 beach mines are waiting to be cleared, many of them cannot be unearthed until thousands of tons of sand are swept away with detectors and high-pressure water jets.

In two years of clearing-work 140 British officers and engineers have been killed.

CARD OF THANKS

We take this opportunity to convey our heartfelt thanks to all the friends and neighbors who aided and comforted us in our recent bereavement, the death of our beloved brother, Charles H. (Mike) Newlen. We especially thank the minister, Rev Jesse Whitacre, for his comforting words, the pallbearers, those who sent floral tributes, and those who offered their cars and services.

Brothers and Sisters.

CARD OF THANKS

We take this opportunity to convey our heartfelt thanks to all the friends and neighbors who aided and comforted us in our recent bereavement, the death of our beloved brother, Charles H. (Mike) Newlen. We especially thank the minister, Rev. Jesse Whitacre, for his comforting words, the pallbearers, those who sent floral tributes, and those who offered their cars and services.

Brothers and Sisters.

Quiet Strength Of Selected Rails And Industrials Helps Stock Market

NEW YORK, Judy 21 (AP)—Quiet strength of selected rails and industrials helped the stock market today although exceptions were plentiful and dealings the slowest of the month.

Boardrooms reported that the President's economic message to Congress provided scant ammunition for either the bulls or bears but the fact that the White House stressed inflation buoyed the arguments of those who have recently been on the buying side because of this factor. Commitments again were trimmed on the idea the list was due for more of a technical correction following the lengthy climb.

The Associated Press 60-stock composite was off .1 of a point at 67.1.

Norfolk and Western added 6½ at 238½, Caterpillar Tractor two at 61½ and Douglas Aircraft two at 58. Ahead one or more were Atlantic Coast Line at 56, Santa Fe, 90, Southern Railway 40, International Paper 48¼, American Car and Foundry 49¾ and Container Corporation 44.

Equitable Office Building came out in blocks of nearly 10,000 shares and emerged up five-eighths at 4⅛.

Impoved were New York Central, Great Northern Railway, Baltimort and Ohio, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, United Aircraft, Consolidated Edison, American Smelting, Phelps Dodge, General Electric, J. C. Penney and Socony.

Railroad issues generally continued their trend of the past week in the bond market today with gains of a point or more sprinkled throughout the list.

Some issues of the New York, New Haven and Hartford road, whose reorganization proceedings may be completed within the next few weeks, moved ahead sharply when it appeared the plan would be completed before the revision of railroad bankruptcy laws could become effective. At the close, New Haven collateral 6s were up five and the 4½s of '67 had advanced 3½ on heavy sales.

Other rails improving included Baltimore and Ohio stamped convertibles of '60, Burlington 5s of 34, Rock Island 4s of '88 and refunding 4s, Missouri Pacific 5s of '65, and St. Louis Southwestern refunding 5s.

Creamery, higher than 92 score and premium marks (AA) 68½-69 cents, 92 score (A) 67, 90 score (B) 65¾, 89 score (C) 64¾. (New tubs usually command one-half cent a pound over the bulk carton price.)

Chicago Grain Market

CHICAGO, July 21. (AP)—Cool weather in much of the Midwest, which was viewed as retarding rapid growth of corn, created buying in the yellow grain on the Board of Trade today. At one time prices were up more than six cents, but these gains subsequently were reduced.

Wheat was firm most of the session, but a good part of the early gains in this grain also were lost. Oats held steady, aided by reports of a poor crop from sections of the Midwest. Soybeans were strong in a dull trade while lard eased. Closing futures:

WHEAT—July 2.39½-¾, September 2.35-2.35¼, December 2.33-2.33¼, May 2.30-2.30½.

CORN—July 2.17¼, September 2.09-2.08¾, December 1.86¼-1.85¾, May 1.81½-1.81.

OATS—July 1.02⅜, September 94-94⅛, December 91¾, May 90-89⅞.

Quiet Strength Of Selected Rails And Industrials Helps Stock Market

NEW YORK, Judy 21 (AP)—Quiet strength of selected rails and industrials helped the stock market today although exceptions were plentiful and dealings the slowest of the month.

Boardrooms reported that the President's economic message to Congress provided scant ammunition for either the bulls or bears but the fact that the White House stressed inflation buoyed the arguments of those who have recently been on the buying side because of this factor. Commitments again were trimmed on the idea the list was due for more of a technical correction following the lengthy climb.

The Associated Press 60-stock composite was off .1 of a point at 67.1.

New 1947 tops were touched by Union Pacific which finished up four at 144½, Amerada Petroleum 2½ at 89¾ and Allied Chemical one-fourth at 190¼.

Norfolk and Western added 6½ at 238½, Caterpillar Tractor two at 61½ and Douglas Aircraft two at 58. Ahead one or more were Atlantic Coast Line at 56, Santa Fe, 90, Southern Railway 40, International Paper 48¼, American Car and Foundry 49¾ and Container Corporation 44.

Equitable Office Building came out in blocks of nearly 10,000 shares and emerged up five-eighths at 4⅛.

Imposed were New York Central, Great Northern Railway, Baltimort and Ohio, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, United Aircraft, Consolidated Edison, American Smelting, Phelps Dodge, General Electric, J. C. Penney and Socony.

Railroad issues generally continued their trend of the past week in the bond market today with gains of a point or more sprinkled throughout the list.

Some issues of the New York, New Haven and Hartford road, whose reorganization proceedings may be completed within the next few weeks, moved ahead sharply when it appeared the plan would be completed before the revision of railroad bankruptcy laws could become effective. At the close, New Haven collateral 6s were up five and the 4½s of '67 had advanced 3½ on heavy sales.

Other rails improving included Baltimore and Ohio stamped convertibles of '60, Burlington 5s of 34, Rock Island 4s of '88 and refunding 4s, Missouri Pacific 5s of '65, and St. Louis Southwestern refunding 5s.

United States governments were unchanged to off 1-32 in over-the-counter dealings.

Chicago Grain Market

CHICAGO, July 21. (AP)—Cool weather in much of the Midwest, which was viewed as retarding rapid growth of corn, created buying in the yellow grain on the Board of Trade today. At one time prices were up more than six cents, but these gains subsequently were reduced.
Wheat was firm most of the session, but a good part of the early gains in this grain also were lost. Oats held steady, aided by reports of a poor crop from sections of the Midwest. Soybeans were strong in a dull trade while lard eased. Closing futures:
WHEAT—July 2.39½-¾, September 2.35-2.35¼, December 2.33-2.33¼, May 2.30-2.30½.

Unit Of Navy's Exhibit Wrecked Near Grafton

Others Arrive For Three-Day Show

Nearing the end of a 5,000 mile tour, misfortune struck the United States Navy exhibit scheduled to be shown here for three days beginning today, when the large truck bearing radar equipment was wrecked yesterday on Cheat Mountain near Grafton, W. Va.

The remainder of the exhibit arrived here last night and will be displayed as scheduled, Navy officers here reported last night.

Lt. Comdr. Hedrick said he had a telephone call from Comdr. J. J. Morgan, reporting the accident. Comdr. Morgan said one enlisted man was injured, but the extent of his injuries had not been determined. Brakes failed on the huge truck, as it was going down the mountain, and it careened off the highway and crashed, the NEWS was informed.

The exhibit will open here at 1 p. m. today and will remain open until 9 p. m. today, tomorrow and Thursday. Various types of equipment used by the Naval Reserve in training is included. A special prevue has been arranged for 1 p. m. today for civic, educational and industrial officials, Comdr. Hedrick said. After the exhibit closes here Thursday, it will proceed to Washington, the final stop on a tour of 14 states, which covered over 5,000 miles.

Manned by 27 enlisted men and two officers, the exhibit will be manned here by 26 men and one officer, since Comdr. Morgan remained in Grafton with the injured man, and to make arrangements to move the radar unit, as soon as it can be put back in movable condition.

Comdr. Hedrick said the exhibit will be shown here on Salem Street, alongside the State Armory, and that it is open to the general public without charge. The exhibition is shown in the interest of Navy and Naval Reserve recruiting and as an educational feature for the general public.

Roy Warnick Gets 2 Year Suspended Prison Sentence

Convicted On Count Of Common Assault

Charged with common assault after he allegedly attacked Mrs. Alexander Anderson, Detmold, and blackened her eye, Roy Warnick, about 30, Moscow, was given a suspended sentence of two years in the House of Correction by Magistrate Bernard McPartland, Lonaconing, last week.

The suspension was granted on condition that Warnick leave town for the two year period, Magistrate McPartland said, adding that according to testimony presented at the hearing, Warnick had been going with a daughter of Mrs. Anderson despite the mother's objection.

On several occasions, according to Magistrate McPartland, Warnick had created disturbances at the Anderson home and Mrs. Anderson had a warrant issued for his arrest after he allegedly blackened her eye on a previous occasion when she objected to his taking her daughter out.

Warnick, according to authorities was arrested last week and brought to the office of the State's Attorney for questioning before he was given a hearing in Lonaconing.

Three other George's Creek men were charged with disorderly conduct with one forfeiting a $25 bond, a second being committed to the County Jail for 25 days in default of a $25 fine and a third scheduled for a hearing Friday night, according to Magistrate McPartland.

The three men, who allegedly engaged in a fracas early Sunday morning near Barton, were identified as Russell Doman, Franklin, who was committed to jail; Robert Mathews, Moscow, awaiting a hearing, and Benjamin Hyde, Moscow, who forfeited his bond.

Magistrate McPartland, said Doman was given a hearing yesterday morning and convicted of the charge, while Hyde failed to appear for a hearing last night. Mathews was released on a $100 personal bond, the magistrate said.

He explained that the three men engaged in a fight near Barton shortly after midnight Saturday, but said it was not explained at Doman's hearing what the fight was about.

Man Wanted For Attacking Cosner Still At Large

Police Say Alt Has Not Been Found

KEYSER, W. Va., July 21 — Russell S. Alt, 24-year-old Army sergeant, wanted on a warrant charging him with assaulting his brother-in-law, Oscar Cosner, was still at liberty last night, and West Virginia State Police said they have not yet apprehended him.

Sgt. Alt, at home from Fort George G. Meade on a 30-day furlough, is accused by Cosner of attacking and beating the former local mailman Saturday evening, in the latter's South Water Street home.

Alt is a brother of Cosner's deceased wife, Hazel Alt, whom Cosner confessed killing with a baseball bat. Cosner was acquitted of a charge of murder by a jury at the May term of Court.

Cosner told authorities that Alt came into his home Saturday, while he (Cosner) was bathing and attacked him. Cosner was treated at Potomac Valley Hospital for a broken nose and bad bruises about his face and head.

Alt, according to Cosner, entered the bathroom and after a remark about his dead sister, Hazel, began raining blows on Cosner. The former letter carrier cried for help and George W. Haines and Howard Bennett, neighbors went to investigate. Alt ran, Cosner said.

Cosner also told authorities that Alt's father, Scott R. Alt was waiting in a parked truck outside the house.

This morning, Cosner was visited at Potomac Valley Hospital by Verna Alt, sister of Cosner's deceased wife, who was described by Cosner, as "the only member of the family who has been sympathetic to me."

Miss Cosner was quoted as telling reporters she heard her brother Russell Alt threaten Cosner back in December. She also stated her brother and father spent a part of last week in the Smoke Holes fishing and "they might be hanging around up there now, or he might be at our home in Purgittsville."

Police here said they have not seen Sgt. Alt and he has not been apprehended.

Coal Jumps Here 50 Cents Per Ton

While no price increases have been announced on the retail price, or price at the mines of coal produced in Western Maryland, it was revealed yesterday that West Virginia mines have raised the price of machine-mined soft coal 50 cents a ton.

C. Eugene Howell, local coal dealer and distributor who handles large quantities of West Virginia, Pennsylvania and Maryland coal, said last night this is the first notice of a price increase here, since the new contract agreement was signed by operators and miners. Howell expressed the opinion that price advances of Maryland coal may be more than 50 cents per ton, since the machine-mined coal is produced on a basis of more tons daily per man, and is therefore a little cheaper.

Howell said as far as he knows, his firm is the only one which has been notified of a price increase.

Local coal operators have not yet raised their coal at the mines, and they are checking production costs to determine the amount of raise necessary with the increased cost of operation under the new agreement. Robert L. Stallings, president of the Georges Creek Coal Company said his firm will have no new price list until later in the week.

In Baltimore, coal dealers have increased retail prices of coal, effective August 1, 75 cents to $1.50 cents a ton. It is also reported that retail dealers are not increasing their profit markup, but they cannot absorb the additional costs to them from the mines.

James Shriver Is Ill

James C. Shriver, 540 Rose Hill Avenue, who was admitted to Memorial Hospital July 12, was reported "about the same" last night. Mr. Shriver, who resigned as postmaster last year has been in failing health for several months.

He was reported to have been in a weakened condition and several blood transfusions have been administered. He was reported resting well yesterday and was able to be up and around, attaches said.

Local Man Is Adjutant Of Signal Corps School

A local man, First Lt. George W. Walburn, son of Mrs. Anna Walburn, 212 Elder Street, is adjutant and personnel officer of the Eighth Army Signal Corps School in Japan. He has been attached with the school since September 16, 1946.

Lt. Walburn enlisted in the Army in November, 1943, at Fort George G. Meade. Previous to his enlistment he was a teacher at Catonsville High School. He is a graduate of State Teachers College, Frostburg, and Columbia University. His wife is the former Miss Mary Elizabeth Benson, Baltimore.

Chamber Of Commerce Secretary And Flying Squirrel Match Wits

Chasing flying squirrels is not one of the duties imposed by the Chamber of Commerse on its secretaries, but Harold W. Smith, who holds that position in Cumberland, had the duty to perform or see the animal with the alleged wings wreck his home.

Smith said he first noticed that the squirrel had taken up residence in his Dingle home when he attempted to draw a pair of drapes in the front of the house. "It was a startling experience to see the animal glide from the drape rod to the fire place screen," he avowed.

Chasing a flying squirrel is no fun, Smith decided, so he tried to trap it in the fire place with the intention of forcing it to make exit up the flue. It was a difficult task but at length the squirrel was in the fireplace with a screen blocking the one exit and Smith making sure the flue was open.

Retiring for the night with the satisfaction of a job well done, Smith was not disturbed again until the next morning, when he found the squirrel sitting on a lamp as he came down stairs. Smith said he's sure the animal was laughing at him.

The chase started over once more, until the C. of C. secretary finally opened the front door, turned the porch light on and darkened the house.

Maybe he was just ready to leave, and maybe Smith outsmarted him, but the squirrel is outside and Smith is happy but "quiet" about the entire incident.

Two Boy Scout Troops Attend Summer Camp

Kenneth E. Jackson, Boy Scout executive of Potomac Council, announced yesterday that two troops are attending the boy Scout camp at Minco Park, near Fort Ashby, W. Va., this week.

Units who have set up camp at the area are Troop 4, sponsored by Centre Street Methodist Church, and Troop 43, Frostburg. Harold Kyle is scoutmaster of the Frostburg troop assisted by Ray Thomas, and Ivan Hall is scoutmaster of Troop 4.

Jackson also stated that an order of government surplus pup tents have arrived at the council office in the County Building and are ready for sale to council troops.

Four Moscow Men Forfeit $11.45 Bonds

Four Moscow men forfeited bonds of $11.45 each last night after being arrested Sunday in the New Germany recreation area on drunk and disorderly conduct charges, Magistrate J. U. Stanton, Grantsville, said.

The men identified as Lee McCutcheon, William R. Timney, Thomas Hughes, and James Fairgrieve, allegedly mistreated the dog of a caretaker and then "shoved" his wife after she complained about their actions.

The four men were arrested by Maryland State Police.

Autopsy Planned To Learn Cause Of Baby's Death

County authorities reported last night that an autopsy will be performed here today in connection with the investigation being conducted into the death of an 18-months-old child here Sunday night.

Morgan C. Harris, state's attorney, said an autopsy has been ordered of the body of the child, Junior Clinton Wills, son of Mervin C. and Nancy Jorette Divelbliss Wills, of Route 4, Christie Road.

He added the examination will be performed by Dr. Benedine Skitarelic, pathologist of Memorial Hospital.

The child died Sunday night about 8:15 p. m. upon admission to Allegany Hospital where it was taken by the parents.

Dr. H. V. Deming, deputy county medical examiner, who was called to examine the child, said the baby was breathing faintly as it was being carried into the hospital.

Authorities added the parents explained the child became suddenly ill Sunday at its home and began to experience difficulty in breathing at that time.

The parents told county authorities the child had fallen several times during the past week, explaining that he once fell about two and one-half feet from a lumber pile, had fallen while chasing a dog and another time tumbled down a bank.

Dr. Deming said the child suffered multiple contusions over the body, several lacerations on the face and a broken left collar bone.

County Investigator Terrence J. Boyle and Harris are continuing the probe pending an autopsy to determine the exact cause of death. Dr. Deming has not issued a verdict as to the cause of death.

A witness as summoned to the state's attorney's office last night for questioning in the case, county authorities said.

Three Permits Are Issued For New Homes

Two of the permits were issued to Marie K. Holzshu, 619 Washington Street, who indicated she will have two concrete block homes, to cost $6,000 each, erected on Fayette Street. The buildings will measure 36 feet by 27 feet, four inches, and will contain five rooms and a garage.

Harry L. Lindeman, this city, was issued a permit to erect a four room concrete block home on lots Nos. 40-41-42-43 Ford Avenue. He said $1,500 will be spent on the home and listed himself as the contractor.

Moose Degree Staff To Enter National Contest

Won State Honors In Baltimore

The degree team of Cumberland Lodge No. 271, Loyal Order of Moose has been awarded the degree staff championship for the Border States Moose Association, according to William G. Beier, governor of the local lodge, and will compete in the nation-wide contest at the national convention next month.

The local team competed with other Maryland lodge teams at the convention held in Baltimore last month, and official announcement has been received here that the group was awarded the state championship.

At a special meeting of the lodge's board of governors, it was announced last night that plans are being formulated to send the entire degree staff to Columbus, Ohio, August 21 and 22, to compete for national honors.

Beier announced last night that the lodge will hold "Family Night" at the lodge home, Friday of this week, at 8:30 p. m. for members, their families and invited guests. A free movie will feature the entertainment.

The next meeting of the lodge is scheduled for August 7, with a social hour to follow the business session.

Interior Department Grant Okayed By House

WASHINGTON, July 21 (AP)—The House approved today a conference agreement providing $194,587,859 for the Interior Department for the next 12 months, including $389,528,038 for reclamation project construction in the West.

The money granted the department as a whole in the conference report sent to the Senate was $101,500,000 or 34.3 per cent less than the budget estimate of $296,100,000.

Rep J. Glenn Beall, (R-Md.) in a telephone conversation with the News late last night said this appropriation does not include the Savage River Dam and does not change the status of the project. He said only projects already approved by the Budget Director were included, and the local project is not affected in any way.

Post Office Robbery Report Is Unfounded

West Virginia State Police at Romney said last night that an investigation proved that the report that the Green Spring, W. Va., post office had been broken into last night was unfounded.

Trooper F. H. Tribett said the report of the robbery might have arisen from the reflection of sharp flashes of lightning upon the window panes of the building during an electrical storm.

AFL Organizer Will Attend Trades Meeting

Earl A. Rider, Philadelphia, AFL organizer, will attend the meeting of the Allegany Trades Council tonight at 7:30 o'clock in Trades Council hall to assist in the plans for an Allegany County labor rally planned here late this month.

The council plans to bring a labor attorney here to give a digest of findings of labor attorneys in connection with the Taft-Hartley labor law and has invited all members of Allegany County labor unions to attend the meeting.

Harry E. Castle To Attend Labor Relations Course

Training Sponsored By Local 26, URCLPWA

Harry E. Castle, 602 Fairview Avenue, a truck tire builder at the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company, will lay down his tools this weekend to put on the cap and gown of a student for a week.

Castle, who has been an employe of the Kelly plant for the past 26 years, has been chosen by Local 26, United Rubber, Cork, Linoleum and Plastic Workers of America, CIO, to attend a course of study for labor leaders to be held July 27 to August 2 in Antioch College, Yellow Springs, Ohio.

Antioch College, according to John F. Chisholm, chairman of Local 26's educational committee, is one of six American colleges which will give courses in labor leadership this year for the URCLPWA.

The union recently embarked upon an educational program to train members for better labor leadership as its contribution to better labor relations.

Castle is now chairman of the local's legislative committee and has been active in union affairs here.

He was secretary-treasurer of the Western Maryland Industrial Union Council and was president of that organization the following year.

He has held various posts in the local, including the vice-presidency in 1944 and has represented the local in various conventions.

Castle said last night the union hopes that ideas gained in the training courses will be useful in the daily operation of the union.

Barefoot Girls Are Returned To South Carolina

Officials Come For Escapees

Two officials of the State Industrial School at Columbia, S. C., came here yesterday to return two girls who escaped there several weeks ago, and gave themselves up to Maryland State Police July 11, when they decided they had been "hungry and homeless" long enough.

The two girls, Mary Bradley, 18 and Ruth Wright, 15, were barefooted when they surrendered to police, and explained they left the school without shoes, "because we had to climb over a wire fence, and you can't climb it with shoes on"

When the officials arrived for the two girls, they had in custody a third girl, Betty Senn, 16, whom authorities found in Bridgeport, Ohio, working as a dishwasher in a restaurant. The three girls escaped together, and told authorities here they had separated "somewhere in West Virginia after a quarrel"

Both the Bradley and Wright girl indicated they like Maryland and said "after we get out, we'd like to come back here and go to work somewhere. People up here treat us nicer than we've ever been treated."

The girls said they were glad to return to the School and take whatever punishment is coming to them. They have decided to complete their sentences, they told the Sheriff, so they won't have to hide from place to place.

Henry Sherry Becomes State Police Clerk

Henry Sherry, son of Sgt. John Sherry of the Cumberland Police Department, yesterday was assigned to Barracks C, of the Maryland State Police as a clerk.

DO VOTERS SUPPORT MARSHALL PLAN!

For a month and a half the Marshall Plan has been on Page One. The administration bases our foreign policy on it, and in Paris it brought the final showdown between East and West.

Are they willing to support it despite Russia's refusal to take part in the planning? Are they willing to see new billions of taxpayer money go to support the Marshall Plan?

The Gallup Poll for Wednesday, July 23, will provide the answers to these questions in the first comprehensive survey of American public opinion on the Marshall Plan. The people's attitudes have been probed both quantitatively and qualitatively, by the "quintamensional" method of polling recently developed by the Gallup Poll. By using this technique Dr. George Gallup will be able in tomorrow's article to tell not only how many voters approve the Marshall Plan, but in addition will tell how much they know about it, measure the depth of their interest in the issue, and analyze why they feel the way they do.

Unit Of Navy's Exhibit Wrecked Near Grafton

Others Arrive For Three-Day Show

Nearing the end of a 5,000 mile tour, misfortune struck the United States Navy exhibit scheduled to be shown here for three days beginning today, when the large truck bearing radar equipment was wrecked yesterday on Cheat Mountain near Grafton, W. Va.

The remainder of the exhibit arrived here last night and will be displayed as scheduled, Navy officers here reported last night.

Lt. Comdr. Hedrick said he had a telephone call from Comdr. J. J. Morgan, reporting the accident. Comdr. Morgan said one enlisted man was injured, but the extent of his injuries had not been determined. Brakes failed on the huge truck, as it was going down the mountain, and it careened off the highway and crashed, the NEWS was informed.

The exhibit will open here at 1 p. m. today and will remain open until 9 p. m. today, tomorrow and Thursday. Various types of equipment used by the Naval Reserve in training is included. A special prevue has been arranged for 1 p. m. today for civic, educational and industrial officials, Comdr. Hedrick said. After the exhibit closes here Thursday, it will proceed to Washington, the final stop on a tour of 14 states, which covered over 5,000 miles.

Manned by 27 enlisted men and two officers, the exhibit will be manned here by 26 men and one officer, since Comdr. Morgan remained in Grafton with the injured man, and to make arrangements to move the radar unit, as soon as it can be put back in movable condition.

Comdr. Hedrick said the exhibit will be shown here on Salem Street, alongside the State Armory, and that it is open to the general public without charge. The exhibition is shown in the interest of Navy and Naval Reserve recruiting and as an educational feature for the general public.

Roy Warnick Gets 2 Year Suspended Prison Sentence

Convicted On Count Of Common Assault

Charged with common assault after he allegedly attacked Mrs. Alexander Anderson, Detmold, and blackened her eye, Roy Warnick, about 30, Moscow, was given a suspended sentence of two years in the House of Correction by Magistrate Bernard McPartland, Lonaconing, last week.

The suspension was granted on condition that Warnick leave town for the two year period, Magistrate McPartland said, adding that according to testimony presented at the hearing, Warnick had been going with a daughter of Mrs. Anderson despite the mother's objection.

On several occasions, according to Magistrate McPartland, Warnick had created disturbances at the Anderson home and Mrs. Anderson had a warrant issued for his arrest after he allegedly blackened her eye on a previous occasion when she objected to his taking her daughter out.

Warnick, according to authorities was arrested last week and brought to the office of the State's Attorney for questioning before he was given a hearing in Lonaconing.

Three other George's Creek men were charged with disorderly conduct with one forfeiting a $25 bond, a second being committed to the County Jail for 25 days in default of a $25 fine and a third scheduled for a hearing Friday night, according to Magistrate McPartland.

The three men, who allegedly engaged in a fracas early Sunday morning near Barton, were identified as Russell Doman, Franklin, who was committed to jail; Robert Mathews, Moscow, awaiting a hearing, and Benjamin Hyde, Moscow, who forfeited his bond.

Magistrate McPartland, said Doman was given a hearing yesterday morning and convicted of the charge, while Hyde failed to appear for a hearing last night. Mathews was released on a $100 personal bond, the magistrate said.

He explained that the three men engaged in a fight near Barton shortly after midnight Saturday, but said it was not explained at Doman's hearing what the fight was about.

Man Wanted For Attacking Cosner Still At Large

Police Say Alt Has Not Been Found

KEYSER, W. Va., July 21 — Russell S. Alt, 24-year-old Army sergeant, wanted on a warrant charging him with assaulting his brother-in-law, Oscar Cosner, was still at liberty last night, and West Virginia State Police said they have not yet apprehended him.

Sgt. Alt, at home from Fort George G. Meade on a 30-day furlough, is accused by Cosner of attacking and beating the former local mailman Saturday evening, in the latter's South Water Street home.

Alt is a brother of Cosner's deceased wife, Hazel Alt, whom Cosner confessed killing with a baseball bat. Cosner was acquitted of a charge of murder by a jury at the May term of Court.

Cosner told authorities that Alt came into his home Saturday, while he (Cosner) was bathing and attacked him. Cosner was treated at Potomac Valley Hospital for a broken nose and bad bruises about his face and head.

Alt, according to Cosner, entered the bathroom and after a remark about his dead sister, Hazel, began raining blows on Cosner. The former letter carrier cried for help and George W. Haines and Howard Bennett, neighbors went to investigate. Alt ran, Cosner said.

Cosner also told authorities that Alt's father, Scott R. Alt was waiting in a parked truck outside the house.

This morning, Cosner was visited at Potomac Valley Hospital by Verna Alt, sister of Cosner's deceased wife, who was described by Cosner, as "the only member of the family who has been sympathetic to me."

Miss Cosner was quoted as telling reporters she heard her brother Russell Alt threaten Cosner back in December. She also stated her brother and father spent a part of last week in the Smoke Holes fishing and "they might be hanging around up there now, or he might be at our home in Purgittsville."

Police here said they have not seen Sgt. Alt and he has not been apprehended.

Coal Jumps Here 50 Cents Per Ton

While no price increases have been announced on the retail price, or price at the mines of coal produced in Western Maryland, it was revealed yesterday that West Virginia mines have raised the price of machine-mined soft coal 50 cents a ton.

C. Eugene Howell, local coal dealer and distributor who handles large quantities of West Virginia, Pennsylvania and Maryland coal, said last night this is the first notice of a price increase here, since the new contract agreement was signed by operators and miners. Howell expressed the opinion that price advances of Maryland coal may be more than 50 cents per ton, since the machine-mined coal is produced on a basis of more tons daily per man, and is therefore a little cheaper.

Howell said as far as he knows, his firm is the only one which has been notified of a price increase.

Local coal operators have not yet raised their coal at the mines, and they are checking production costs to determine the amount of raise necessary with the increased cost of operation under the new agreement. Robert L. Stallings, president of the Georges Creek Coal Company said his firm will have no new price list until later in the week.

In Baltimore, coal dealers have increased retail prices of coal, effective August 1, 75 cents to $1.50 cents a ton. It is also reported that retail dealers are not increasing their profit markup, but they cannot absorb the additional costs to them from the mines.

James Shriver Is Ill

James C. Shriver, 540 Rose Hill Avenue, who was admitted to Memorial Hospital July 12, was reported "about the same" last night. Mr. Shriver, who resigned as postmaster last year has been in failing health for several months.

He was reported to have been in a weakened condition and several blood transfusions have been administered. He was reported resting well yesterday and was able to be up and around, attaches said.

Veterans must apply in person and must present honorable discharge certificates. Letters requesting medals will not be answered and no medals can be issued through the mails.

Local Man Is Adjutant Of Signal Corps School

A local man, First Lt. George W. Walburn, son of Mrs. Anna Walburn, 212 Elder Street, is adjutant and personnel officer of the Eighth Army Signal Corps School in Japan. He has been attached with the school since September 16, 1946.

Lt. Walburn enlisted in the Army in November, 1943, at Fort George G. Meade. Previous to his enlistment he was a teacher at Catonsville High School. He is a graduate of State Teachers College, Frostburg, and Columbia University. His wife is the former Miss Mary Elizabeth Benson, Baltimore.

Chamber Of Commerce Secretary And Flying Squirrel Match Wits

Chasing flying squirrels is not one of the duties imposed by the Chamber of Commerse on its secretaries, but Harold W. Smith, who holds that position in Cumberland, had the duty to perform or see the animal with the alleged wings wreck his home.

Smith said he first noticed that the squirrel had taken up residence in his Dingle home when he attempted to draw a pair of drapes in the front of the house. "It was a startling experience to see the animal glide from the drape rod to the fire place screen," he avowed.

Chasing a flying squirrel is no fun, Smith decided, so he tried to trap it in the fire place with the intention of forcing it to make exit up the flue. It was a difficult task but at length the squirrel was in the fireplace with a screen blocking the one exit and Smith making sure the flue was open.

Retiring for the night with the satisfaction of a job well done, Smith was not disturbed again until the next morning, when he found the squirrel sitting on a lamp as he came down stairs. Smith said he's sure the animal was laughing at him.

The chase started over once more, until the C. of C. secretary finally opened the front door, turned the porch light on and darkened the house.

Maybe he was just ready to leave, and maybe Smith outsmarted him, but the squirrel is outside and Smith is happy but "quiet" about the entire incident.

Two Boy Scout Troops Attend Summer Camp

Kenneth E. Jackson, Boy Scout executive of Potomac Council, announced yesterday that two troops are attending the boy Scout camp at Minco Park, near Fort Ashby, W. Va., this week.

Units who have set up camp at the area are Troop 4, sponsored by Centre Street Methodist Church, and Troop 43, Frostburg. Harold Kyle is scoutmaster of the Frostburg troop assisted by Ray Thomas, and Ivan Hall is scoutmaster of Troop 4.

Jackson also stated that an order of government surplus pup tents have arrived at the council office in the County Building and are ready for sale to council troops.

Four Moscow Men Forfeit $11.45 Bonds

Four Moscow men forfeited bonds of $11.45 each last night after being arrested Sunday in the New Germany recreation area on drunk and disorderly conduct charges, Magistrate J. U. Stanton, Grantsville, said.

The men identified as Lee McCutcheon, William R. Timney, Thomas Hughes, and James Fairgrieve, allegedly mistreated the dog of a caretaker and then "shoved" his wife after she complained about their actions.

The four men were arrested by Maryland State Police.

Autopsy Planned To Learn Cause Of Baby's Death

County authorities reported last night that an autopsy will be performed here today in connection with the investigation being conducted into the death of an 18-months-old child here Sunday night.

Morgan C. Harris, state's attorney, said an autopsy has been ordered of the body of the child, Junior Clinton Wills, son of Mervin C. and Nancy Jorette Divelbliss Wills, of Route 4, Christie Road.

He added the examination will be performed by Dr. Benedine Skitarelic, pathologist of Memorial Hospital.

The child died Sunday night about 8:15 p. m. upon admission to Allegany Hospital where it was taken by the parents.

Dr. H. V. Deming, deputy county medical examiner, who was called to examine the child, said the baby was breathing faintly as it was being carried into the hospital.

Authorities added the parents explained the child became suddenly ill Sunday at its home and began to experience difficulty in breathing at that time.

The parents told county authorities the child had fallen several times during the past week, explaining that he once fell about two and one-half feet from a lumber pile, had fallen while chasing a dog and another time tumbled down a bank.

Dr. Deming said the child suffered multiple contusions over the body, several lacerations on the face and a broken left collar bone.

County Investigator Terrence J. Boyle and Harris are continuing the probe pending an autopsy to determine the exact cause of death. Dr. Deming has not issued a verdict as to the cause of death.

A witness as summoned to the state's attorney's office last night for questioning in the case, county authorities said.

Three Permits Are Issued For New Homes

Three building permits, all for new homes, were issued yesterday in the office of the City Engineer.

Two of the permits were issued to Marie K. Holzshu, 619 Washington Street, who indicated she will have two concrete block homes, to cost $6,000 each, erected on Fayette Street. The buildings will measure 36 feet by 27 feet, four inches, and will contain five rooms and a garage.

Harry L. Lindeman, this city, was issued a permit to erect a four room concrete block home on lots Nos. 40-41-42-43 Ford Avenue. He said $1,500 will be spent on the home and listed himself as the contractor.

Moose Degree Staff To Enter National Contest

Won State Honors In Baltimore

The degree team of Cumberland Lodge No. 271, Loyal Order of Moose has been awarded the degree staff championship for the Border States Moose Association, according to William G. Beier, governor of the local lodge, and will compete in the nation-wide contest at the national convention next month.

The local team competed with other Maryland lodge teams at the convention held in Baltimore last month, and official announcement has been received here that the group was awarded the state championship.

At a special meeting of the lodge's board of governors, it was announced last night that plans are being formulated to send the entire degree staff to Columbus, Ohio, August 21 and 22, to compete for national honors.

Beier announced last night that the lodge will hold "Family Night" at the lodge home, Friday of this week, at 8:30 p. m. for members, their families and invited guests. A free movie will feature the entertainment.

The next meeting of the lodge is scheduled for August 7, with a social hour to follow the business session.

Interior Department Grant Okayed By House

WASHINGTON, July 21 (AP)—The House approved today a conference agreement providing $194,587,859 for the Interior Department for the next 12 months, including $389,528,038 for reclamation project construction in the West.

The money granted the department as a whole in the conference report sent to the Senate was $101,500,000 or 34.3 per cent less than the budget estimate of $296,100,000.

Rep J. Glenn Beall, (R-Md.) in a telephone conversation with the News late last night said this appropriation does not include the Savage River Dam and does not change the status of the project. He said only projects already approved by the Budget Director were included, and the local project is not affected in any way.

Post Office Robbery Report Is Unfounded

West Virginia State Police at Romney said last night that an investigation proved that the report that the Green Spring, W. Va., post office had been broken into last night was unfounded.

Trooper F. H. Tribett said the report of the robbery might have arisen from the reflection of sharp flashes of lightning upon the window panes of the building during an electrical storm.

AFL Organizer Will Attend Trades Meeting

Earl A. Rider, Philadelphia, AFL organizer, will attend the meeting of the Allegany Trades Council tonight at 7:30 o'clock in Trades Council hall to assist in the plans for an Allegany County labor rally planned here late this month.

The council plans to bring a labor attorney here to give a digest of findings of labor attorneys in connection with the Taft-Hartley labor law and has invited all members of Allegany County labor unions to attend the meeting.

Harry E. Castle To Attend Labor Relations Course

Training Sponsored By Local 26, URCLPWA

Harry E. Castle, 602 Fairview Avenue, a truck tire builder at the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company, will lay down his tools this week-end to put on the cap and gown of a student for a week.

Castle, who has been an employe of the Kelly plant for the past 26 years, has been chosen by Local 26, United Rubber, Cork, Linoleum and Plastic Workers of America, CIO, to attend a course of study for labor leaders to be held July 27 to August 2 in Antioch College, Yellow Springs, Ohio.

He will leave here Saturday to begin the training course to be presented by instructors at the well known school.

Antioch College, according to John F. Chisholm, chairman of Local 26's educational committee, is one of six American colleges which will give courses in labor leadership this year for the URCLPWA.

The union recently embarked upon an educational program to train members for better labor leadership as its contribution to better labor relations.

Castle is now chairman of the local's legislative committee and has been active in union affairs here.

He was secretary-treasurer of the Western Maryland Industrial Union Council and was president of that organization the following year.

He has held various posts in the local, including the vice-presidency in 1944 and has represented the local in various conventions.

Castle said last night the union hopes that ideas gained in the training courses will be useful in the daily operation of the union.

Barefoot Girls Are Returned To South Carolina

Officials Come For Escapees

Two officials of the State Industrial School at Columbia, S. C., came here yesterday to return two girls who escaped there several weeks ago, and gave themselves up to Maryland State Police July 11, when they decided they had been "hungry and homeless" long enough.

The two girls, Mary Bradley, 18 and Ruth Wright, 15, were barefooted when they surrendered to police, and explained they left the school without shoes, "because we had to climb over a wire fence, and you can't climb it with shoes on"

When the officials arrived for the two girls, they had in custody a third girl, Betty Senn, 16, whom authorities found in Bridgeport, Ohio, working as a dishwasher in a restaurant. The three girls escaped together, and told authorities here they had separated "somewhere in West Virginia after a quarrel"

Both the Bradley and Wright girl indicated they like Maryland and said "after we get out, we'd like to come back here and go to work somewhere. People up here treat us nicer than we've ever been treated."

The girls said they were glad to return to the School and take whatever punishment is coming to them. They have decided to complete their sentences, they told the Sheriff, so they won't have to hide from place to place.

Henry Sherry Becomes State Police Clerk

Henry Sherry, son of Sgt. John Sherry of the Cumberland Police Department, yesterday was assigned to Barracks C, of the Maryland State Police as a clerk.

DO VOTERS SUPPORT MARSHALL PLAN?

For a month and a half the Marshall Plan has been on Page One. The administration bases our foreign policy on it, and in Paris it brought the final showdown between East and West.

What do American voters think of the plan?

Are they willing to support it despite Russia's refusal to take part in the planning? Are they willing to see new billions of taxpayer money go to support the Marshall Plan?

What do they think the expenditures will do to America's economy?

Do Americans have a clear idea of the purpose behind the plan?

The Gallup Poll for Wednesday, July 23, will provide the answers to these questions in the first comprehensive survey of American public opinion on the Marshall Plan. The people's attitudes have been probed both quantitatively and qualitatively, by the "quintamensional" method of polling recently developed by the Gallup Poll. By using this technique Dr. George Gallup will be able in tomorrow's article to tell not only how many voters approve the Marshall Plan, but in addition will tell how much they know about it, measure the depth of their interest in the issue, and analyze why they feel the way they do.
